SOAK RICH BILL CONFEREES PLAN ALL DAY PARLEY

Push Frenzied Drive to Adjourn.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—In a final, frenzied drive for adjournment by Thursday, senate and house conferees on President Roosevelt's wealth confiscation tax bill canceled their week-end golf engagements and planned to meet all day tomorrow before a White House conference in the evening on the "must" program.

At the conference the President will disclose what measures he is willing to sacrifice and what measures he wants enacted in the final days of the session.

Seek to Jam Bills Through.

At the parley will be Vice President John N. Garner, Speaker Joseph Byrns, Senate Majority Leader Joseph Robinson, Senator Pat Harrison, and Representative John O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house rules committee.

A meeting of the conferees on the wealth confiscation tax bill broke up shortly before midnight with no result. Standing in the lobby and admittedly disappointed was Charles O. West, new undersecretary of the interior and lobbyist for President Roosevelt.

Actually inside and participating in the conference was Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, who recently testified that the proposed wealth confiscation program would result in turning over the Henry Ford estate to the "money lenders" and the public investing in stock of the firm.

New Deal Lobbyist Outside.

Another of the Roosevelt administration lobbyists present just outside the conference committee room was Fred Lee, counsel for the now defunct Federal Alcohol Control administration, which the new bill is designed to revivify either as an independent agency or as a part of the treasury department.

It was considered significant that no further action would be taken by the house and senate managers of the tax and liquor control bills pending discovery tomorrow night the wishes of President Roosevelt in the matter. It tentatively was agreed to meet again Monday morning.

While a few members began drifting homeward and others conceded that it would be impossible to hold a quorum of both houses here for more than a week, the leaders nevertheless hoped to jam through eleven major pieces of legislature.

These included the Guffey coal bill, under debate in the house; a modified form of the Frazier-Lemke farm bankruptcy act, invalidated by the Supreme court; railway retirement legislation, also knocked out by the Supreme court; the banking bill, a rivers and harbors measure, amendments to the Tennessee valley authority act, the soak the rich tax bill, a third deficiency appropriation bill, the Walsh bill requiring NRA standards in government contracts, the bill barring suits for gold or its equivalent on repudiated government obligations, and the federal alcohol control act.

Utility Bill Held Doomed.

There appeared to be little hope for the administration's utility bill, still tied up in conference in a war over the "death sentence" for holding companies. Definitly in the discard for this session are the Copeland-Tugwell food and drug bill, passed by the senate but not the house; the Duffy bill amending the copyright law, also passed by the senate, and the ship subsidy bill, passed by the house.

Most of the eleven measures the leaders hope to jam through in the "big push" next week now are in conference, but original action in both houses will be required on the Guffey coal bill, the new Frazier-Lemke bill, and the new rail pension bill.

Some senators are saying that this session of congress, if the leaders are successful in putting through this hodgepodge of legislation with virtually no debate or opposition for intelligent amendment, will go down in history as having passed more unconstitutional laws than any of its predecessors, including the record breaking New Deal seventy-third congress.

At least three of these measures, the Guffey coal, Frazier-Lemke, and Risk Threat of Rain for Great Pageant.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

Chicagoland's annual songfest and pageant last night for the sixth time wove its midsummer spell of sounds and sweet airs, blazing colors and lovely voices over a multitude that filled three-fourths of the terraced benches of Soldiers' field.

Undismayed by a late afternoon downpour of rain which swept over the lake front and flooded the stadium with shallow puddles, more than 80,000 people, according to a careful estimate, were on the damp benches when the three hours' entertainment began an hour late. The throng, despite weather conditions, was enthralled with the bands, drum corps, dancing girls, parades and fireworks brought together with six months' planning at this sixth annual Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Fine Spirit of Audience.

No finer tribute to the love of music and urbanity of the people of this great metropolis of the west could be paid than the way the crowds, undeterred by the threatening skies and storms, turned out for the entertainment. It was perhaps the old pioneer spirit animating the crowd which would not be thwarted by obstacles.

The festival blazed out with a gorgeous fireworks display directed by Frank Duffield. The crowd gasped with pleasure at the display, which surpassed anything yet seen in Europe. The representation of the skyline of Chicago was a novel creation.

A touch of pathos was added to the splendor of the spectacle when, preliminary to the fireworks, likenesses of Will Rogers and Wiley Post with an Uncle Sam, bowed in grief, were flashed on a fiery screen and the crowd stood in tribute to two great Americans while the band played "taps."

A European Comparison.

As an assembly of music loving people the spectacle was unique. On the European scene there has been nothing to compare with it in animation and size unless perhaps in Vatican square before Saint Peter's when Pope Pius XI. made his first exit from the Vatican or Hitler addressed his followers at the templehof in Berlin.

From the opening crash of band music until those in the audience became performers and sang together, and later when the pyrotechnical experts with their fiery fingers traced our nation's history in blazing colors against the background of a black sky, there was an increasing panorama of sights and sounds.

Setting Thrills Audience.

The setting itself was a part of the entertainment. The huge audience bathed in white light sloped up toward the lights of the Doric columns like terraced gardens of geraniums and lilies and dahlias. Great pencils of light swept the skies. American flags fluttered from the top of the bowl and toward the end of the performance a harvest moon appeared over the lake front.

MIGHTY CROWD GATHERS

An hour's downpour of rain which ceased at 6:00 had tested the morale and enthusiasm of the crowds. It left both undiminished. As the clouds broke thousands upon thousands slowly filled the dark spaces of the sloping sides of the bowl with

M'CUTCHEON ON THE GRAF

Cartoonist Embarks on Zeppelin; Describes Departure

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, En Route to Europe, Aug. 17 [By Wireless].—Two hundred friends of arriving and departing passengers braved the rigors of early rising and took a special train at 4:10 o'clock this morning to Santa Cruz, 50 miles south of Rio de Janeiro, to greet the Graf at the field where the huge new Zeppelin hangar nears completion.

At 6:15 o'clock, with the first streaks of dawn, the ship, resembling a faint silver pencil, appeared, enlarging with its arrival at 6:40 o'clock, when the field force seized the ropes and guided the craft to a gentle landing.

In the early sunlight the beautiful lines and graceful proportions of the great silver airship which Chicago admired when it returned from its around the world flight, were strikingly impressive.

At 7 o'clock the arrivals disembarked. Outgoing passengers immediately replaced the incoming, and the ship arose at 7:20 o'clock on its homeward voyage with 20 passengers, three of them women.

The sky and sea were clear, but a strong head wind reduced the speed to 40 miles an hour. We have been cruising all day at an altitude of 1,300 feet in bright sunlight along the attractive Brazilian coast.

Conditions aboard are clean and comfortable. There is a lounging and dining room 17 feet square, and 10 cabins, each the size of a European railway compartment. There is no bathroom, as a sufficient water supply would be too weighty, but comfortable washrooms are ample for herren and damen. . . . . . .

We are due in Pernambuco at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Gets Religion, Confesses to Lynching 35 Years Ago

Beaufort, N. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Carteret county officers today disclosed receipt of a letter from Cortez, Fla., signed A. F. Taylor in which the writer said he participated in a lynching here 35 years ago. Asserting that he had become religious and was being troubled by his conscience, the writer said he was willing to return here if officers wanted him. However, they decided it was useless to accept his offer.

Nazi Proposes State Rule of Child Breeding

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Belief was expressed by Walter Darre, minister of agriculture, in a book published today that the office of every German marriage clerk should have a superintendent of breeding attached to it.

In his volume, "The New Nobility of Blood and the Soil," Darre demanded the appointment of superintendents or guardians of breeding to make sure that all marriages shall be eugenically above reproach.

"Nobody need feel shocked," he said, "if we evoke experiences in breeding animals for our guidance in this matter. Certainly human dignity is not offended if animal breeding and human breeding are compared to each other."

Urges 4 Marriage Classes.

Darre urged that candidates for marriage be divided into four classes:

1. A class consisting of only 10 per cent of the girls who are pronounced fit for marriage each year, made up of maidens whose marriage in every respect seems desirable and hence should be given every assistance.

2. A class, which Darre believes will be by far the largest, composed of girls to whose marriage there is fundamentally no objection from the viewpoint of possible offspring.

3. A class to be comprised of girls who morally and legally are fit to marry but whose hereditary predisposition indicates they should have no children. Their marriage is to be permitted only if guaranties can be given they will have no children.

Would Bar Fourth Class.

4. A class to be composed of girls against whose marriage there are fundamental objections. They must be forbidden to wed.

Discussing illegitimate children, Darre said: "From the viewpoint of improvement of the race, the first consideration is that of hereditary value, that is, origin, and only in the second place does there enter the question of legitimacy or illegitimacy."

Legionnaire's "Hula" Skirt Set on Fire; He May Die

MAYOR PICKS NAME OF WILL ROGERS FOR NEW ISLAND AIRPORT

Mayor Kelly yesterday informally christened Chicago's proposed island aviation field as the "Will Rogers airport."

"That will be the name," he said. "I shall recommend the necessary action by the city council at its next meeting and there is no doubt that it will be taken immediately. Chicago is proud to pay this tribute to the greatest humorous commentator of our time and the man who did more from the passenger's seat for the encouragement of flying than any other in the world."

The mayor said that he is assured that there will be a definite grant of federal funds within the next two weeks for construction of the island.

PILOT LASSOS DANGLING WHEEL; LANDS AIRPLANE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—[U. P.]—Dick Field, Skyways, Inc., pilot, and his skill with a lasso saved four lives at municipal airport today when a wheel of Field's plane became dislodged in midair.

Field was aloft with three passengers when a shackle strap holding a landing gear leg became unfastened and the left wheel dangled uselessly from its braces.

Field crawled out on the wing, holding a coil of rope. Hanging on grimly he improvised a lasso, caught the wheel, and lashed it into place. When he landed the ship the lashed wheel held. While Field lassoed the wheel Don Long, 22, who never before had piloted a plane, held the ship on its course over the airport.

BLAME WAR GAS FOR 1,421 U. S. SOLDIER DEATHS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Official war department figures show that 1,221 United States soldiers died in hospitals as a result of gas poisoning during the world war. In addition, it was estimated that 200 died on the battlefield as the result of gas.

This was made known in connection with publicantion of an official handbook by the British government giving data on the poison gas situation.

Ethiopia Peace Parley Halted; Faces Breakup

Battle Reported

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The three power conference on Ethiopia ran into a dramatic deadlock today. No session took place and no session has yet been scheduled for tomorrow, and descriptions of the situation put out this evening by the British and Italian delegations were flatly contradictory.

According to both the British and French delegations, it is Premier Mussolini of Italy who is holding up the show. The British, who are particularly bitter, declare that concrete proposals in the form of a series of alternatives were submitted yesterday to Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate, with the invitation to state precisely what was the Italian point of view with regard to these alternatives.

Proposals Put Up to Duce.

Aloisi, according to this version, refused to commit himself in any way, and said he would have to submit the proposals to Premier Mussolini. It was then decided to await an answer from Rome before continuing the conference.

In the opinion of the British delegation the proposals submitted to Aloisi yesterday contained all the elements necessary for a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, and no delay in replying is justified. The British spokesman said that if something were not done before very many more days the British delegation would return home.

The British government, however, evidently does not believe the deadlock will last indefinitly, because Sir William Malkin, British foreign office expert on Ethiopia, left London for Paris by plane this evening to be on hand if needed.

French sources gave substantially the same picture of the situation as the British, indicating that Premier Laval of France and Capt. Anthony Eden of Britain were standing pretty closely together.

Italians Give Own Version.

An official of the Italian embassy, who received the press on behalf of Baron Aloisi, tonight blandly said the facts in the case are entirely different. According tothe Italian version, no concrete proposals were submitted yesterday, and there was no question of any answer from Rome to anything.

Asked what was holding up the conference, the Italian spokesman contented himself with saying that negotiations were continuing. All efforts to obtain more precise information were ignored by the Italian mouthpiece.

The main purpose of the Italian

ALASKAN CRAFT DUE IN SEATTLE BY TOMORROW

Funeral Services in Cal. and Okla.

Plans for Funerals

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Families of Will Rogers and Wiley Post tonight were making plans for their funerals upon the return of their bodies from Alaska. Mrs. Rogers, here en route to California, said funeral services for her husband would be conducted in Los Angeles next Thursday or Friday, with burial at Forest Lawn cemetery.

At Maysville, Okla., Mrs. Post and W. R. Post, father of Wiley, decided to have funeral services at the family home, probably on Thursday, depending upon arrival of the body. Burial is to be in Oklahoma City.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Weeping skies and lowering murk impeded the flight of Joe Crosson out of Alaska with the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post today.

Ace pilot of the far north, Crosson brought the bodies of the cowboy philosopher and round the world flyer here from Point Barrow in his pontoon equipped monoplane, landing at 7:35 a. m. [12:35 p. m., Chicago time]. The distance is 500 miles, some of the way over dangerous sawtooth peaks. Three hundred miles of the distance is in the arctic circle.

A big Pan-American Airways plane stood ready at the airport to drone on toward Seattle, Wash., with the noted air crash victims, but rain and a low ceiling intervened. Late tonight Crosson said he would hop off at 6 o'clock in the morning.

Flying Weather Nasty.

The government forecaster called it "nasty flying weather."

The "inland route," east and south toward Telegraph Creek and Prince George, was fairly clear after getting out of the Fairbanks area, the weather observer said, and should such conditions continue, it would permit a takeoff tomorrow.

Pan-American officials sent word that the route of the plane called for stops at White Horse, Telegraph Creek, Richmond, and Prince George, in the Canadian provinces, and that it would probably reach Seattle Monday.

For four and a half hours Crosson battled through murky arctic skies this morning to bring the bodies to Fairbanks from Point Barrow, where Rogers and Post crashed to death in their vacation plane Thursday evening.

Radio Operator Aboard.

Radio Operator Robert Gleason flew with Crosson on the 1,000 mile round trip. Most of the Fairbanks populace witnessed the sombre spectacle of their arrival. Crosson alighted gently on the Chena river.

Between lines of sorrowing Alaskans, the linen-swathed bodies were borne to an undertaking establishment.

Physicians said Rogers had a severe cut on his forehead. His chest was crushed. Post's legs, right wrist, and upper left arm were broken. Abrasions also were found. Their faces, however, were not appreciably marred.

Their crash from a height of 50 to 60 feet above a small arctic stream, 15 miles south of Barrow, was more definitly ascribed to engine trouble today, as had been reported by a native who saw their scarlet monoplane fall.

Overcast at Barrow.

The weather at Barrow at the time was overcast, but there was a 1,000 foot ceiling and 10 miles of visibility, the government bureau here said it had learned.

From New York Charles A. Lindbergh came into the plans to take the bodies south.

Acting for the grief stricken widows, Lindbergh last night sent a message authorizing Dr. Henry W. Greist, Presbyterian medical missionary at Barrow, to turn the bodies over to Crosson. Previously, Greist and Charles Brower, trader for more than half a century at the settlement, had prepared them for the first phase of the sorrowful odyssey.

Long Journey Ahead.

Ahead of Crosson lay 2,000 miles or more of the northland to be traversed before he reaches Seattle. S. E. Robbins, Pan-American Airways pilot, left Los Angeles today for Seattle with instructions to fly the bodies from there to Los Angeles. He will meet and take up the work of Crosson.

Rex Beach, the author, close friend of both men, was in the sorrowing throng which greeted in silence the famous pair of aerial cronies they had cheered only a few hours before they crashed Thursday night into the bank of an icy stream.

The quiet spoken Beach recalled a joyous evening he spent with Rogers and Post last week at Juneau.

"We gabbed until midnight," Beach recalled, "although we did little talking."

Talked of Siberia.

Beach said Rogers talked eagerly of possibly flying on to Siberia and even back to Greenland and Iceland before returning to the United States.

The wistful parts played by Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Post in the ill-starred vacation flight were revealed.

"Don't go, Will; please don't go," Mrs. Rogers pleaded when her noted husband climbed into a plane at Los Angeles a few weeks ago for a Seattle rendezvous with Post.

In a letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Laine of San Angelo, Tex., Mrs. Post disclosed she had planned to accompany Rogers and her husband, but had been talked out of it.

Both Rogers and Post had "kidded" her out of going along, saying the arctic tundra was "no place for a lady."

FAMILIES AWAIT BODIES

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Funeral services for Will Rogers were set tentatively tonight for next Thursday or Friday in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Rogers announced, through Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a family friend, that his body would be placed temporarily in a vault at Forestlawn cemetery.

Later the body probably will be taken back to Oklahoma for its final resting place in Rogers' native soil.

Mr. Jones, who hurried to New York today to meet Mrs. Rogers on her arrival here from Maine en route to California, said the family would leave New York by train tomorrow afternoon for the coast.

Children With Mother.

With the grief stricken widow tonight were her daughter Mary, her sons, Will Jr. and James, and her sister, Miss Theda Blake, who accompanied her from Maine. Will Jr. came east by airplane to join them. James met his mother in Stamford, Conn., this morning.

The group will be met in Kansas City by Mrs. Thomas McSpadden, sister-in-law of Mrs. Rogers, who will accompany the party on to the coast.

Mrs. Rogers was secluded with her children and sister in a Park avenue hotel and was unable to see any but the closest family friends.

Seclusion Is Desired.

The decision to hold the Rogers services in Los Angeles instead of Oklahoma was reached when Mrs. Rogers expressed the feeling she was unequal to another long trip from the coast back to Oklahoma after a transcontinental journey from Maine.

Every effort to shield Mrs. Rogers from crowds will be taken on the westward trip, Jones said. It was Mrs. Rogers' wish to be left in seclusion.

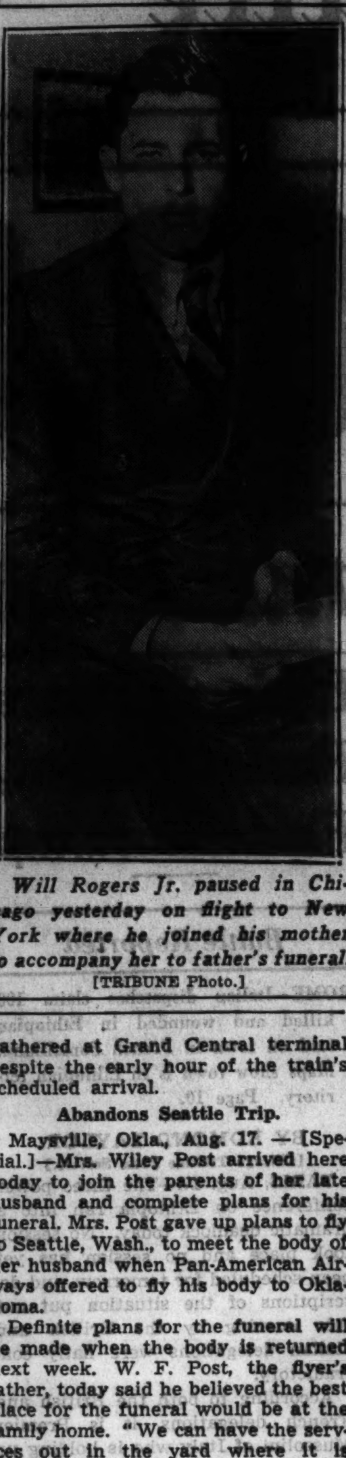
JOINS MOTHER



Will Rogers Jr. paused in Chicago yesterday on flight to New York where he joined his mother to accompany her to father's funeral.

Abandons Seattle Trip.

Maysville, Okla., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Wiley Post arrived here today to join the parents of her late husband and complete plans for his funeral. Mrs. Post gave up plans to fly to Seattle, Wash., to meet the body of her husband when Pan-American Airways offered to fly his body to Oklahoma.

Definite plans for the funeral will be made when the body is returned next week. W. F. Post, the flyer's father, today said he believed the best place for the funeral would be at the family home. "We can have the services out in the yard where it is shady," he said. Burial will take place in Oklahoma City.

One of Greatest Flyers.

Messages of condolence arriving at the Post home today gave the grief stricken parents an insight into the inestimable regard that the world had for their flying son. Pride showed through his grief when the elder Post admitted that he had come to regard Wiley as one of the greatest flyers in the world. "But I never told him so," he said shyly.

Mrs. Post was virtually unable to talk about her son. Through her tears she told of her great love for Wiley and sighed. "Why did it have to happen so far away from home," she wondered.

Both men were thrown into the water but were able to swim to safety. Fire which followed the explosion caused a damage of $800 to the boat which is owned by Klopfer.

FRED STONE PENS APPRECIATION OF FRIEND ROGERS

Noted Actor Describes First Meeting.

BY FRED STONE.
[Noted Stage and Screen Star.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Sometimes into a man's life comes a stranger and a friendship forms that lasts out the span of their lives.

To the stage door of the Knickerbocker theater—in 1906—came a shy, nervous young man. I was sitting outside the stage entrance, resting after a hard rehersal. I heard this man say to the doorman, "Is Fred Stone in there? I want to see him."

"I'm Fred Stone," I said. And he answered, "I'm Will Rogers." For the rest of our lives it was "Bill" and "Fred."

Inquires for Indian Boy.

He came to inquire for an Indian boy I had hired to teach me roping for a stunt in my new show. The Indian, Black Chambers, was from his own home town, Claremont, Okla. I explained I had sent Chambers back to Oklahoma because of ill health.

"I'm a roper," said Bill. "What are you doing? Learning trick roping?"

I explained I wanted to do a dance in the rope while spinning it.

"O shucks," said Bill, "I'll teach you all the ropin' you want to know."

"Come on in," I said. And we went into the theater. I saw some real roping then, and right there our friendship started.

Meets Rogers' Wife.

A few weeks later I met Bill and he took me to see his pretty wife. She was sweet and genuine, too, just like Bill. Bill brought her out to see us.

Babies were born to each of our families and, as they grew up, Bill took a house across the street from us in Amityville, Long Island. What grand days those were. With great pride I watched Bill grow in the profession until he stood alone as the greatest "one man show" the world has ever known. I've heard him on one of his concert tours talk three hours without stopping and then say to his audience, who clamored for more, "Aw, go home. We're goin' to turn the lights out now."

"Cracks Up" in Plane.

Seven years ago this month, when I was just Bill's age now, I "cracked up" in my plane. It's history now how he flew to New York and offered to take my place so the show could go on. I remember now how he walked into my room at the hospital and grinned at me with tears running down his face.

Bill was a great philosopher. He loved life and laughter. Both are eternal. He lives in the hearts of those who knew him; heard him, saw him, or read what he wrote.

Loving him, missing him, we give him to the ages.

FLYERS' RESCUER TO QUIT ALASKA FOR VISIT HOME

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Technical Staf Sergt. Stanley R. Morgan, the signal corpsman at Barrow who recovered the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, will visit the United States mainland this fall for the first time since he and Mrs. Morgan entered the barren lands of northern Alaska seven years ago.

Joseph B. L. Hickerson, office manager for the signal corps here, said today that Sergt. and Mrs. Morgan went to Point Barrow, northernmost tip of America, seven years ago. The sergeant never has left his station since.

The Morgans have two children, and despite the lonely isolation of the post on the shores of the arctic, closed by pack ice to shipping except for a few brief weeks in summer, it's home to the Morgans.

The 34 year old sergeant is the United States government to the few whites and the few hundred Eskimos there, Hickerson said.

Morgan is not only the signal corps radio operator, but he is the United States commissioner—"the law" north of the 71st degree of latitude—and the department of agriculture's weather bureau reporter.

Mrs. Morgan also can operate the radio and she stands watches at the key when her husband is out hunting or fishing or off on one of the missions such as recovering the bodies.

Women's Service Bureau to Be Closed Saturday

The service bureau for women, which has aided 2,600 non-family women in Cook county during the last three years, will be discontinued on Aug. 24, Leo M. Lyons, county administrator for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, announced yesterday. Closing of the bureau, which operated four shelters, is part of the commission's program of consolidation and retrenchment. The women receiving aid from the bureau who are eligible will be certified to the state employment service for assignment to Works Progress administration projects.

LEAST PRETENSE IN STUDIO ROOM OF BIGGEST STAR

Director Tells Simplicity of Will Rogers.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The door of Will Rogers' dressing room at his movie studio was opened and closed for the last time today.

It isn't much of a dressing room.

Put it in a tenement house, on the third floor back, with a view of the "elevated," and it would be typical. Three dollars a week would be about right, if you were renting it.

The man whose name is on the door never starred in a talking picture which made less than a million dollars.

But you wouldn't think so if you saw his dressing room.

The big mirror, rimmed with electric lights, is covered with dust. Most of the light bulbs are burned out.

On the floor, newspapers and some airline time tables.

The makeup table is covered with sheets of writing paper, with a few lines of typing across their white faces. Rogers sometimes wrote his newspaper column here.

Just a Place to Go.

"But this wasn't really his dressing room," said Dave Butler, who directed most of Rogers' pictures. "This is just the place he came when he couldn't think of any other place to go.

"Bill's real makeup table was the rumble seat of his car.

"He used to come tearing up beside the stage, or the location where we were working, in his roadster. He never had a chauffeur.

"Usually, he'd be a few minutes late. And he'd yell, 'Hold on there, boys, I'm a-comin'.

"Then, you'd see him open that rumble seat, pull out a pair of pants and his shirt, and in a second he'd be ready for work."

Rogers, unlike most stars, never slept in his dressing room. There was no place to lie down.

"What he'd do," said Butler, "was hitch those old spectacles on the end of his nose, slide down in a chair, and snooze."

Never Looked at Script.

There were no scenarious "scripts" in the dressing room, either. "Bill never saw one in his life, I guess," the director said. "He'd get the idea of the scene, from me or anybody he could find, and then he'd mold it his way.

"We were making 'Handy Andy' about the time Dillinger escaped jail. There was a jail scene in the picture. We shot it and were going to quit work for the day.

"Bill was standing behind the bars for a closeup. Suddenly he said, 'Y' know, Dave, I could git out of this jail any time I wanted to. I already got my wooden gun whittled out.'"

The director said he turned on the lights, marshalled the sound crew and took four "takes" of that remark.

Miss Lunch Call.

Butler looked at the clock. It showed nearly noon.

"About this time of the day," he said, "Bill used to yell, like a Comanche Indian, 'lunch-eeee!' It's going to seem funny without that."

The director closed the door of the dressing room.

There were tears in his eyes.

If Will Rogers were alive, he would want his two finished, but unreleased, motion pictures to be screened, close friends said today.

Executives at Twentieth Century-Fox studios remained undecided whether to junk "Steamboat Around the Bend" and "In Old Kentucky," or to put them in circulation.

Bar Posthumous Releases.

Hollywood has an "unwritten law" forbidding the release of a picture after the death of the star. But Butler said Rogers opposed this custom.

Butler said Rogers expressed his view when the late Marie Dressler died, with one finished picture unreleased.

"She was a great woman and I don't see why the fact of her death would keep a lot of people from getting what she had to give, in her pictures. Death comes to everybody. I'd sure want to go on, in that way, if it were me instead of Marie," Butler said Rogers stated.

AIR HERSE PILOT ADVISES POST

While at Juneau at beginning of aerial jaunt over Alaska, Wiley Post (left) received advice from Joe Crosson, veteran pilot of the far north. Yesterday Crosson arrived in Fairbanks with plane bearing bodies of Post and Will Rogers, who lost lives when craft crashed.

PAINTER HOPES POST PORTRAIT WILL SAVE HOME

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Within a block of the National Academy of Design, where his works have been exhibited, J. J. Muller, well known portrait artist, sat in his studio today and wondered how he could obtain $200 by Wednesday to save himself and his wife, Rose, from being evicted.

Among portraits hanging in his studio, the artist has one which is believed to be the last portrait of the late Wiley Post, and it is this that may save Muller from his present difficulties.

Muller has done oil portraits of President Roosevelt, Gov. Lehman, Albert Einstein, and many other prominent figures. He has not had a commission for some time and his rent is three and a half months in arrears.

QUICK THINKING PILOTS PREVENT AIRPLANE CRASH

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—[U. P.]—Quick thinking and expert handling of a plane by Pilot R. O. Daniels and Co-Pilot G. J. Moore averted a possible air disaster today when a ten passenger Northwest Airlines ship made a forced landing here. None of the passengers was injured.

After taking off for Spokane both motors began to sputter. Daniels banked immediately and headed for Boeing field. He saw that the plane could not make the field. He quickly drew up the retractable landing gear and slid down on sandy area at the south side of the field.

The ship spun around twice before stopping. It was not damaged.

The passengers congratulated Daniels and Moore, then took off in another plane for Spokane.

MORRISON MAID LEAVES POLICE AT SEA IN QUIZ

Explains Debts and Tells of Family Harmony.

Mrs. Marian Koch, 27 years old, 5608 Princeton avenue, maid in the home of Kenneth A. Morrison, assistant controler of the Chicago park district, was questioned last night by investigators who announced later that she was unable to throw any light on the murder of her employer. Morrison's body bearing three bullet holes was found early Wednesday in his automobile in front of 628 Alaska street.

With the failure of this "lead" to uncover any clew, Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle and Capt. Andrew Barry of the Hudson avenue police declared their investigation was at a standstill. All efforts to find a motive for the "forty minute ride" murder have failed since the police first began work on the case.

Story Corroborates Family's.

Mrs. Koch told Mr. Boyle that the home life of Morrison, his wife, and his three children by a former marriage, was very amicable. Morrison was at home almost every night, declared the domestic, and between him and his wife existed perfect harmony. The maid thus substantiated the statement of the widow and friends who have been unable to hint of a murder motive.

Mrs. Koch denied published reports that Morrison feared for his life because of two mysterious men seen near his apartment at 7318 Harvard avenue.

"I saw these men, but Mr. Morrison only laughed at me when I told him I was afraid," said Mrs. Koch. "He pooh-poohed the idea and told me I was imagining things."

Explains List of Debts.

Mrs. Koch did account to the police for Morrison's heavy indebtedness, despite his salary of $5,400 a year. The Morrison family lived high, the maid related, buying only the best, and buying that extravagantly.

"Whenever they appeared to be out of the red, some more charge accounts would come in," she averred.

Asked what she thought was a possible explanation of Morrison's death, Mrs. Koch declared she knew of no rational motive, but that "he might have planned suicide. He was too proud to kill himself, and he may have hired some one else to do it."

Overhears a Remark.

Mrs. Koch also told of overhearing Mrs. Morrison remark at one time to her husband: "I got you out of one jam. What are you going to do, get into another one?"

Yesterday the family was in Buffalo, N. Y., for Morrison's burial, but Capt. Barry said that upon their return he would ask the widow about the "jam" to which her telephone remark referred. Mr. Boyle surmised it might have arisen from Morrison's solicitude for Mrs. Madge Watson, a waitress, for whom he obtained a park job. Mrs. Morrison, however, has declared her approval of this friendship.

In the course of the Morrison murder investigation Mrs. Watson, called here from her home at Danville, became reconciled with her estranged husband, Kenneth, a laundry worker, and, according to Capt. Barry, has now been eliminated from the case.

Seeks Data on Insurance.

Yesterday Mr. Boyle telegraphed to the Mutual Life Assurance company of Waterloo, Ont., for the name of Morrison's beneficiary under a $20,000 policy and for information on whether it carried a double indemnity clause.

Morrison's personal files showed his annual premium to be $468. Mr. Boyle said the accountant had obtained a $4,950 loan on the policy and appeared to be seeking another.

Capt. Barry continued last night to insist that robbery was not the motive of the murder. Police found $25 in Morrison's pockets. They have failed to implicate any suspect.

'MONEY GUARDS' PROVE BANDITS; FLEE WITH $600

Policeman Raymond Bender, 1270 Marion court, and his wife were shopping last night in Madigan Brothers drygoods store at 4030 West Madison street when Bender saw three men enter, carrying guns. Bender watched them ascend the stairway to the second floor, believing them to be money guards.

Miss Ann Nolan, 1014 North Springfield avenue, the cashier, also thought the men were money guards, and on their instructions placed $600 in a satchel which one of them carried. One of the men then fired a warning shot, and the three hurried to the first floor.

At the sound of the shot, Bender realized the men were robbers and drew his own revolver. Because of the large crowd, he waited until the robbers got outside the store, and then fired three shots. The bandits, apparently uninjured, were joined by three companions who had waited near the front door, and all escaped in a sedan.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Department of justice men said today that George Barrett, 48, will stand trial in Indianapolis for the killing of Nelson B. Klein, 37, Cincinnati federal agent. Klein, springing a trap four years in the making, fell from a burst of gunfire late yesterday at College Corner on the Ohio-Indiana border 35 miles northwest of here.

MEAT STRIKERS TRAIN GUNS ON PROCESSING TAX

Detroit Women Leave for Washington.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Zuk, leader of the Detroit housewives' strike for lower meat prices, said the delegation which left for Washington tonight would demand abolition of AAA processing taxes.

The action committee of which she is chairman has wired both President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace for appointments Monday, she said, when the five women chosen to make the trip will present their plea for an immediate 20 per cent reduction in meat prices.

Seek Price Inquiry.

The women also will urge approval of a resolution by Representative John D. Dingell [Dem., Mich.], calling for a nation-wide investigation of meat costs.

Butcher shops were picketed here again today by housewives who paraded streets in several business districts carrying placards calling on others to join in the boycott. Hearing on an injunction petition filed by the Butchers' association seeking to restrain the women from picketing has been postponed until next week.

Deny Cannon Charge.

At the strike headquarters the charge of Representative Clarence Cannon [Dem., Mo.] that the strike was organized by packers "as a part of their campaign against the processing tax," was called "absurd."

The action comittee has said its fight is primarily against the packers, whom they charge with using "the processing taxes to make more millions for themselves at the expense of the consuming public."

Asks Strike Quiz.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A congressional investigation of meat strikes in Detroit was asked in a resolution introduced today by Representative Clarence Cannon [Dem., Mo.].

Cannon contended the strikes against retail meat prices in that city were being financed by meat packers.

He denied meat was selling at exorbitant prices.

The resolution asked $5,000 to finance the proposed inquiry.

GROUP HERE JOINS FIGHT.

A group of women who have been actively "striking" against high meat prices in Detroit will join Chicago women on Wednesday and present their demands for a 20 per cent reduction in meat costs to officials of local packing companies.

The leaders in the Detroit boycott will meet with members of the United Conference Against the High Cost of Living, Mrs. Dina Ginsberg, president of the organization, said yesterday. The women, after their visit to the stockyards, will attend two massmeetings, one at 3437 Ogden avenue and the other at 366 East 47th street.

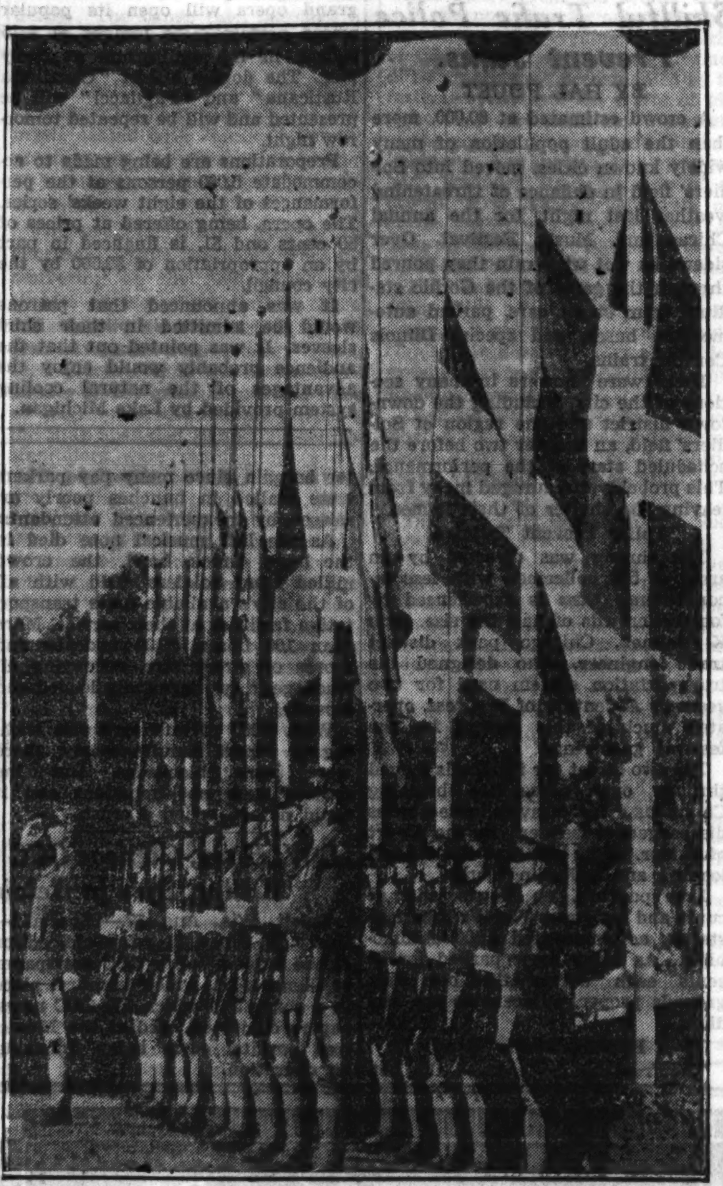
At these meetings, Mrs. Ginsberg said, a strike of Chicago women against butcher shops will be discussed. The organization, which maintains headquarters at 160 North Wells street, attributes the high cost of foods to the AAA hog reduction program and crop processing taxes of the New Deal.

BRITAIN RUSHES TROOPS, PLANES TO FIGHT INDIANS

SIMLA, India, Aug. 17.—(AP)—British troops and planes were dispatched from here today in an effort to disperse 2,000 tribesmen reported to be concentrated in a threatening manner on the Gandab road in the northwest frontier province.

The tribesmen were reported gathering with the intention of wrecking the road, which is of strategic value. Last Thursday 200 persons made an unsuccessful attempt to damage it, and since then various contingents have arrived to join them.

A number of army posts participated in today's troop movements. One of the advance planes reported "contact" with the tribes, but visibility was poor, hampering operations.



A detail of riflemen presents arms at California Pacific International exposition in San Diego, Cal., in tribute to memory of Will Rogers and Wiley Post. Flags of 32 nations at fair are at half staf in honor of victims of plane crash.

AUTO TRAILER IS SIDEWIPED BY TRUCK; ONE DIES

Others in Party Are Unhurt; Driver Held.

C. C. Van Marter, 50, of Detroit, Mich., a civil engineer, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident on the Lincoln highway near St. Charles. Van Marter was in a trailer which was sidewiped by a truck. Also in the auto-trailer party were Rudolph Johnson of the Detroit police force; Van Marter's brother, Morris, a Detroit police sergeant; the dead man's wife and their 14 year old son, Theodore; Sergeant Van Marter's wife and a friend of the family. They were uninjured. Erwin B. Frezie of Bensonville, driver of the truck, said the trailer swung into him as he passed. He was held for the inquest.

Man Killed; Wife Injured.

Martin Vanderstarr, 55 years old, 916 Wadsworth avenue, Waukegan, a stationary engineer, died in the Swedish Covenant hospital of injuries incurred when the automobile in which he and his wife were riding collided with another automobile at Lillard and Caldwell avenues. Mrs. Leona Vanderstarr, wife of the man killed, is in a serious condition. Dr. John H. Vallancey, 4770 Lincoln avenue, a physician, driver of the other car, was not held by the police.

Mrs. Sophie Reifon, 21 years old, 3439 South Morgan street, was fatally injured when the car in which she was riding, driven by her husband, Paul, 24 years old, crashed into an electric light post at Halsted and 45th streets. She died at the German Deaconess hospital. Reifon told police the steering gear on his car apparently broke, causing him to lose control of the machine.

Other occupants of the car who were injured and taken to the German Deaconess hospital are: Paul's brother, Peter, 22 years old; Miss Bertha Kunce, 17 years old, 953 West 34th place; Miss Caroline Daroba, 19 years old, 1810 West 21st street, and Miss Estelle Babi, 18 years old, 2146 West 31st street.

One Other Victim.

The deaths of Mrs. Reifon, Vanderstarr and one other brought the 1935 trafic toll for Cook county to 577. Until 2 p. m. yesterday 457 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 10,236 injured. The other death:

Edwin Freuhe, 30 years old, 4000 Oakton street, Niles Center, a truck driver, died in St. Francis hospital of injuries incurred a week ago when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into the rear of an automobile at Oakton street and Hamlin avenue, Niles Center.

ADMITS MIDGET PLAYED MARKET WHILE IN PRISON

Fernekes Deals Concealed by Warden Whipp.

Warden Frank D. Whipp of the Joliet penitentiaries admitted yesterday that Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes, who escaped from the old prison on Aug. 3 in civilian clothes, conducted a brokerage account with a Chicago concern during his incarceration for bank robbery.

When a questioner introduced the matter of playing the market Warden Whipp replied:

"O, that was some time ago. Fernekes hasn't been doing it lately. I don't want to say anything about it because it might jeopardize what we are trying to do."

Whipp declined to name the brokerage concern with which the Midget dealt or to reveal any of the outlaw's transactions. Fernekes is understood to have corresponded with several Chicago banks about his deposit accounts or about his market business.

Hide Efforts to Trace Convict.

Police have been told that the Midget is now in Chicago and the warden's taciturnity is believed to be in deference to efforts being made to trace the killer through his dealings with brokers.

Several years ago another Joliet convict, a broker, made $38,000 playing the market while serving a sentence.

State's Attorney Will R. McCabe of Will county reiterated yesterday his confidence in the theory that bribery enabled Fernekes to walk unmolested to freedom. The little gunman entered the penitentiary ten years ago under a sentence of ten years to life.

Holds Guards May Be Goats.

Prison officials have insisted that dishonesty played no part in the escape. They blame only the "stupidity" of the guards, four of whom they discharged. Prosecutor McCabe surmised that perhaps these four were "just made the goats."

"In time," he asserted, "I will uncover the facts."

The discharged guards are James Nolan, foreman of the fiber shop where Fernekes worked; Capt. Michael Leonard, guard in the visitors' room, through which Fernekes passed, and Robert Shaw and Frank Friend, the door guards who opened the gates when Fernekes approached in the guise of a visitor. After lie detector tests the four were officially absolved from the suspicion of bribery.

GOVERNOR GIVES MERCY PARDONS TO 19 PRISONERS

Parchman, Miss., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Sennett Conner today opened the gates of the Mississippi state penitentiary to 19 prisoners as a result of his "mercy court" hearings for "forgotten men and women" of the penal farm.

A majority were serving life terms and have served more than ten years of their sentence.

They had no relatives or friends on the outside to intercede for them.

Gov. Conner said his hope of finding deserving cases had been rewarded.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TROUPERS' SPIRIT PRAISED BY CRITIC

Regarded as Triumph of Chicagoland Art.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Congratulations to the participants in last night's Chicagoland Music Festival! Under adverse circumstances they fairly outdid themselves. There is something about that feeling that "the show must go on," even when the weather creates a fear that it will not so much as start, that puts extra vim into it once it gets under way.

So the electricity that had been in the air got into the hearts of the audience as soon as the drum corps and bands began to limber up wrists and lips preliminary to the first notes of the program. There was promise even in the preliminary exercises.

The concert proper began with three prize winning choral organizations of 1935, the men's chorus, the Green Bay, Wis., Y. M. C. A. club directed by Earl E. Fisk, in the "Villa" from Lehar's "The Merry Widow;" the women's chorus, the College Choral Singers of Racine, Wis., directed by Mrs. J. A. Jacobson, in Schubert's "The Lord Is My Shepherd;" the mixed chorus, the Ukrainian chorus of Chicago, directed by George Benetzky in MacFarlane's "In Pride of May."

Ukrainian Chorus Popular.

The last named has been a frequent and honored guest in these programs. So far it has won three first places and one second in the Chicagoland Festivals.

Prize winning bands entered immediately. Class A adult was the Cedar Falls, Iowa, band directed by James A. Melichar; class B adult, the Cudahy, Wis., municipal legion band directed by Edward J. Zielinski; class C juvenile, the Wurlitzer Concert Band of Chicago, directed by Marcel Ackerman; class D juvenile, the Boone county farm bureau of Belvidere, Ill.

Bands Swarm Onto Field.

These led the procession, being joined by other contesting bands, some of whom had taken second and third places in the contest. At the end came a huge band from the Chicago Federation of Musicians, led by President James C. Petrillo, and by that time there were something like three thousands players on the field.

After time out for the evolutions of the Racine Boy Scout Drum and Bugle corps, Glenn Cliffe Bainum mounted the stand and led the massed band through Sousa's "Liberty Bell" march, and it was something to hear. Meanwhile, no less than 45 drum majors twirled their stafs of office, one with the double head of fire under the hand of Larry Hammond. With him were the two first place winners, Richard A. Abercrombie of Chicago, adult, and Cathryn Clark of Elkhart, Ind., juvenile.

Winning Soloists Escorted On.

Mr. Petrillo led his band across the field playing a gay march, while on the east and west came cars carrying the two first place winners in the vocal solo contest, Nelle Stuart, soprano, of Champaign, and Roy Anderson, baritone, of Chicago. Mr. Anderson sang "Sylvia," by Oley Speaks, and Miss Stuart followed with the famous aria, "Pace, Pace," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," and there was little question about their right to occupy first place.

Leon Benditzky, staf pianist of station W-G-N played their accompaniments, having previously played for the choruses. Both these young artists will go immediately from this festival concert into radio appearances.

But before this there was more music. The fine festival chorus organized in its present form for the first time this year was directed by Edgar Nelson in Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving," its male section by Harry S. Walsh in "The Bells of St. Mary" by Adams, and three exceptionally gifted cornetists, Ernest Pechin, Joseph Thompson, and Truman Weimer, played Smith's "The Three Kings," which was just about the hit of the evening up to that time.

Victor Grabel, general musical director of the festival, introduced his own rousing march, "Glory of the Marines," which introduces the official song of the Marines and was sung by the chorus to loud applause. Then came the operatic high spot.

Margery Maxwell, Eula Corner, Driskill Wolf, Eugene Dressler, Raymond Koch, and Philip Gates sang the sextet of "Lucia di Lammermoor," and without exaggeration it became one of the finest performances of this well known work in history. Amplification of sound, which had been a bit strident here and there before, by this time had been set to what it should be, intensification without distortion.

The performance made such a hit that Miss Maxwell, the soprano, was obliged to take an encore on behalf of her companions, singing "The Last Rose of Summer" in ideally charming fashion.

Time Passes Swiftly.

Such was the manner of the 1935 Chicago Music Festival. Time was passing swiftly, but there were other musical numbers of value, some charming, some inspiring, all worth your while to sit in Soldiers' field and hear.

One event of great entertainment came when Noble Cain, the general choral director, took his own A Cappella choir in hand, with Mr. Koch as baritone soloist and the fine festival as accompanying body, in a special arrangement of "Wagon Wheels."

And the Negro chorus sang spirituals as only Negroes can sing them. Directed by J. Wesley Jones and his assistant, William Myricks, they made a special hit of their own in "O Southland," "Let Us Cheer the Weary Traveler," and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." And the audience, which was by this time occupying better than three-quarters of the vast stadium, lifted up its own huge collective voice in community singing.

A World in Song.

It was as though the whole world had suddenly burst into song. Edgeless, full toned, not extraordinarily loud for such a great crowd, but no end inspiring. Frank Bennett, David Pritchard of Racine, Carl Craven, and Rollin Pease were the leaders.

Once again the festival chorus and band were heard when George Carlson directed a grave but inspiring arrangement of "The Lost Chord" by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Mr. Grabel took his band, as fine in its way as a symphony orchestra is in its, through his own arrangement of part of "Thus Spake Zarathustra," by Richard Strauss, for which Deems Taylor, famous critic of New York, made an introductory speech. And Mr. Cain took the great chorus and great band through the Hallelujah chorus from "The Messiah," an annual festival feature and a great climax, the most magnificent hymn of praise ever penned. Beyond this no musical program could hope to proceed. It was the top of all.

GOV.GEN.MURPHY FREES 74 REBELS IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Conditional pardons were given today by Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy to 74 of the 87 men convicted at Malolos on June 28 of participation in the Sakdalista revolt of May 2.

The governor general held that the 74 were "misguided followers" of Sakdalista agitators who were campaigning against the plans for establishment of a commonwealth government here pending complete independence a decade hence. The rebellion was quickly suppressed by the constabulary. Sixty lives were lost.

Thirteen men who allegedly were the leaders when control of the town of San Ildefonso was seized will remain in prison to serve sentences ranging from 12 to 17 years.

ROBBED BY BOGUS AGENTS.

Three men, who posed as government liquor inspectors, yesterday visited the tavern of Mrs. Irene Friszerski, 5358 South Marshfield avenue, and took $194 from a bureau drawer.

CHAMPAIGN GIRL AND CHICAGO MAN WIN AS SOLOISTS

Music Festival Judges Pick Two from 700.

BY KAY HALL.

Roy P. Anderson, 1129 North Parkside avenue, and Miss Nell Stuart of Champaign won the titles of the best man singer and the best woman singer in the Chicagoland Music Festival final contest held at the Drake hotel yesterday.

Mr. Anderson, 31 years old, is a clerk in the Federal Reserve bank. Miss Stuart is the daughter of Robert James Stuart, a locomotive engineer on the Illinois Central railroad. She is 21 years old. Anderson's baritone won the men's contest with "Sylvia," by Oley Speaks, while Miss Stuart, a soprano, sang Verdi's "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio." Both singers received gold medals.

A Singer Nine Years.

Anderson was born in Chicago and first started singing nine years ago when he joined the Junior Association of Commerce Glee club. Six years ago he started study with Emerson Abernethy, to whom he gave credit for "being here and winning." He sings with the Messiah Lutheran church in Austin and the Swedish Choral club and has been soloist with the Uptown chorus. His wife, Lillie, declared that their 3 year old son, Kenneth, had prophesied his father would win.

Miss Stuart was accompanied by her mother, Elizabeth, and sister, Marion. She is a graduate of the University of Illinois and comes to Chicago every week-end from Champaign to study under John Dwight Sample.

Contracts for Winners.

Miss Stuart will sing with the Northerners on W-G-N tomorrow night and also has a contract for an appearance on the Carnation Milk program on Aug. 26. Anderson will go to New York in September to sing on the Swift & Co. hour, of which Deems Taylor is master of ceremonies.

Taylor, noted composer and critic, was guest judge for the men's division yesterday.

The other judges were Maurice Rosenfeld and Edgar Nelson for the men's division and Rollin Pease of the University of Arizona, Harry S. Walsh and Willard Andelin, for the women's division.

Others Win Honors.

Second places were won by George Bolser, 24 years old, of Rantoul, a student at the Milliken Conservatory of Music, a baritone, and Mrs. Elsa Gretzinger, 32 years old, a soprano, the wife of the Rev. Daniel J. Gretzinger, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Bloomington, Ill. They received silver medals.

Third place bronze medals went to Arthur Deckert, 32 years old, of Salem, Ill., a tenor who is a maintainer for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, the father of two children, and to Miss Jeane Price, 20 years old, 5905 West Ohio street, a contralto who is the daughter of Dr. R. N. Price, a dentist. She is a graduate of Austin High school.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN DROWNS.

A tall thin man with light red hair was drowned yesterday afternoon in Lake Michigan at 56th street. Witnesses said the man disrobed and dived from the piling. His body was recovered.

MUSIC FESTIVAL CROWD OF 80,000 HANDLED EASILY

Skillful Trafic Police Prevent Jams.

BY HAL FOUST.

A crowd estimated at 80,000, more than the adult population of many widely known cities, moved into Soldiers' field in defiance of threatening weather last night for the annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Over sidewalks wet with rain they poured through the gates of the Gothic stadium from street cars, parked automobiles, buses, and special Illinois Central trains.

There were showers in many sections of the city, including the downtown district and the region of Soldiers' field, an hour or two before the scheduled start of the performance. This probably discouraged many from leaving the shelter of their homes.

Police Prevent Tangles.

The throng was directed by an army of 500 policemen with less inconvenience than is experienced by football crowds of half the size. Otto K. Jelinek, Chicago park district trafic engineer, who designed the transportation system used for two years by A Century of Progress, operated much of this system for the festival gathering.

The two street car terminals moved throngs over passerelles bridging Columbus drive. Heavily loaded buses discharged passengers in the Court of Honor. This also was the taxicab loading and unloading zone.

Free parking, on lawns and at curbs and in former World's Fair taxi stands, accommodated 4,500 automobiles. As many more parked for 50 cents each within the old Fair grounds proper, adjacent to the stadium.

Fee Parking Poorly Handled.

The free parkers enjoyed the better bargain since many pay parkers were stalled in bunches poorly arranged by inexperienced attendants.

As the last musical note died in the huge Greek bowl, the crowd milled from Soldiers' field with all of the city's available mass transportation facilities at their service. More than 100 buses, 2,100 taxicabs and scores of street cars, occupying all trackage in two terminals, loaded and moved.

With 9,000 private cars also wishing to depart simultaneously, there were some blockades. But the crowds were not impatient and it could not be called a crush.

OPERA AT NAVY PIER OPENS TONIGHT; CITY FUNDS AID VENTURE

Chicago's first municipally aided grand opera will open its popular priced performances tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the auditorium at Navy pier. The double bill of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" will be presented and will be repeated tomorrow night.

Preparations are being made to accommodate 5,000 persons at the performances of the eight weeks' series. The opera, being offered at prices of 50 cents and $1, is financed in part by an appropriation of $2,500 by the city council.

It was announced that patrons would be admitted in their shirt sleeves. It was pointed out that the audience probably would enjoy the advantages of the natural cooling system provided by Lake Michigan.

H. W. Hoey, Glencoe CCC Editor, Dies in Beloit

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Harry W. Hoey, 21 years old, editor of the Skokie Valley CCC newspaper at Glencoe, Ill., which won first place in a contest in which 100 CCC newspapers competed, died at the Municipal hospital early today following an operation.

Polish Celebration Today to Mark Homeland Victory

Chicagoans of Polish birth and extraction will gather near Kosciuszko's monument in Humboldt park today to celebrate Poland's victory over the bolsheviks at the Vistula river fifteen years ago. John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Poland, will be the chief speaker. It is expected that more than 100,000 will attend the celebration and partake in the parade which precedes it. The event is celebrated because the victory saved Poland as an independent republic. The parade will start from Milwaukee avenue and Augusta street.

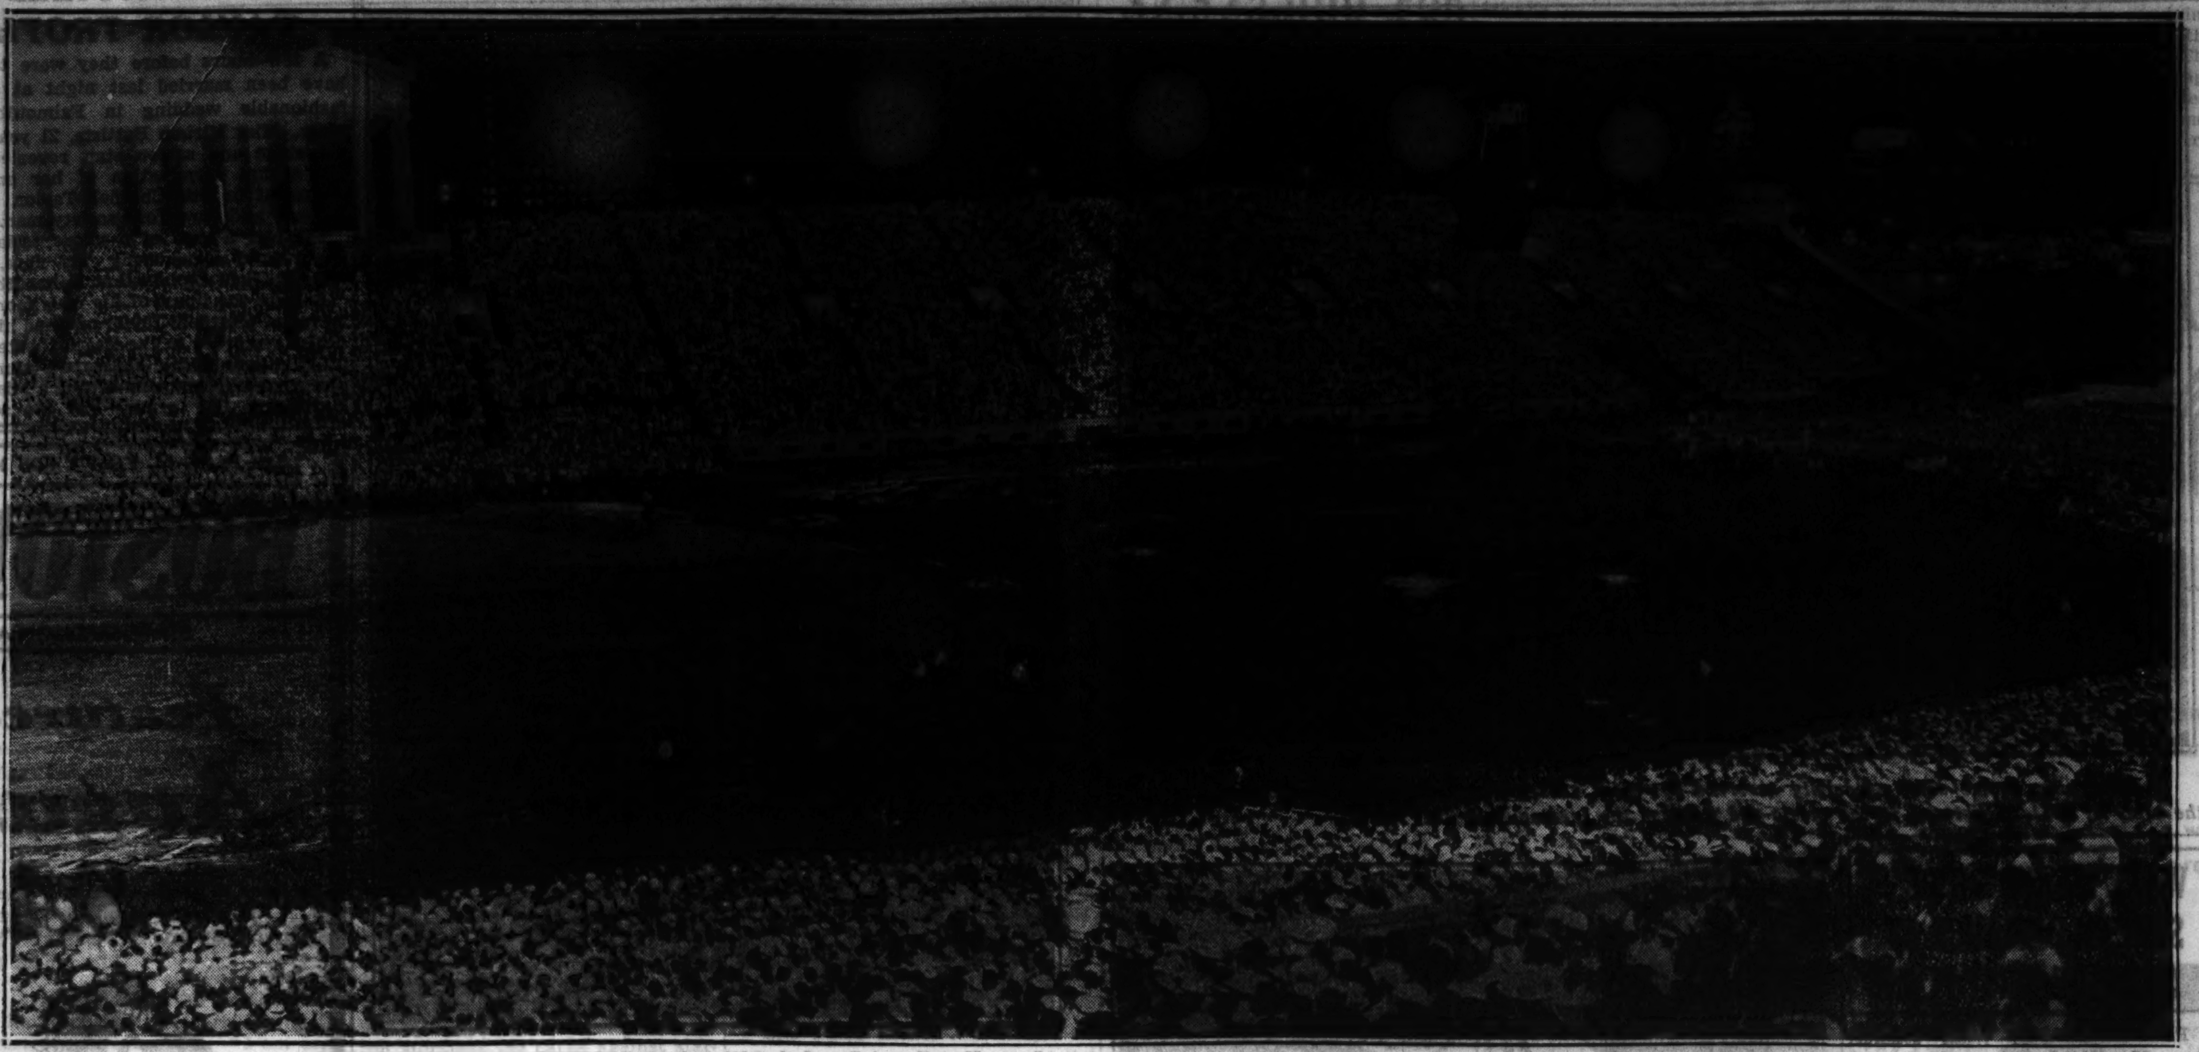
THRONG OF 80,000 JAMS SOLDIERS' FIELD FOR CHICAGOLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL



Crowds estimated to total 80,000 filled Soldiers' field last evening for the sixth annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by The Tribune and associated newspapers. This picture, made from the east side of Chicago's great stadium, shows large sections of the crowds on both sides. The turnout was reduced somewhat by a late afternoon rainfall. Besides listening to a wide variety of music, the throng of 80,000 participated itself—in mass singing of old time favorites. A great fireworks spectacle concluded the Festival.

CHICAGO'S GREAT MUSIC FESTIVAL THRILLS 80,000

Mighty Throng Cheers; Joins in Singing.

splotches of varied color till the stadium in the twilight of a murky sky looked like a terraced garden of flowers vivid with greens and reds and yellows and white. And as a promise that there would be no postponement of the entertainment a rainbow appeared in the sky over the lake front.

The late afternoon shower was responsible for the belated arrival of thousands. Because of the rain there was some discussion of postponing the festival until tonight, but the clouds broke, and, through the cooperation of Chicago radio stations the information was broadcast that the show would go on, but that it would open at 8 o'clock instead of 7:30 to give those who had hesitated to start because of the weather a chance to get there.

Miracles were performed by hastily summoned city park workers and officials sweeping the center of the bowl clear of the accumulated mud puddles. Truckloads of old newspapers were rushed to the field to serve as cushions on the rain dampened benches.

GREAT SPECTACLE OPENS

The twilight deepened as the huge arena filled. Into the ring marched a dozen drum and bugle corps and an accordian band. To the sights and sounds were now added an avalanche of muffled noises and the beat of marching feet.

The spectacle, as the curtain rose on the evening's entertainment was fantastic. The huge horseshoe of the bowl brilliant like a huge electric sign; ahead to the north the Field museum. The doric columns, massive against the sky, and the first lights of the downtown buildings flashing up over the rim of the bowl.

Drum Corps Arrive.

At 8 o'clock the Marshall Field drum corps marched on the field from the south end. There followed drum corps in uniforms of blue, Boy Scouts in khaki, white clad accordian players. Four huskies dragged the University of Chicago's immense base drum over the soggy field.

For half an hour the oval was a riot of sounds with an unsolved pattern of uniformed men maneuvering and evolving and counter-marching till they are all massed together on the wooden stage at the north end of the stadium.

When this preliminary parading of the various bands was finished the field was two-thirds full, and many thousands outside were struggling to get in.

Crowd a Mighty Chorus.

By the time the preliminary parades were over it was completely dark and there was a momentary interval with only the hum of the still gathering multitude and the blare of a welcome to late comers over the loud speaker. Then between two high poles at the north end a huge American flag was slowly drawn against the dark mass of the Field museum and eighty thousand spectators stood and sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." A mighty chorus!

The choral part of the program followed. The deep mellow volume of a male chorus floated down the field from the huge amplifiers. Then, in pleasing contrast, came the voices of women. Finally there was a blending of both as a mixed chorus followed the first two on the stage. The voices penetrated to the farthest corners of the big arena in the same smooth flow of tone.

A mighty roar of applause followed. Again it was the turn of the bands.

Brass and silver flashed under the white lights. Uniforms outsparkled the pictorial colors of the arena setting with their brilliancy. Onto the field they came from every opening, led by prancing drum majors. They were the winning festival bands. They filled the center of the field. "Let's give them a hand," came from the amplifier. And a rising patter echoed from the respondent crowd across the arena. Like the drum corps they marched and counter marched.

Then they massed in the center and from the full throated brass came the quivering patriotic cadences of Sousa's "Liberty Bell." There was a constant patter of hands from the terraces and they stamped and hummed in rhythm with the music.

Agile Drum Majors Perform.

While the music continued there came another brilliant spectacle. Far at the end of the field forty or more drum majors twirled batons with dismaying swiftness. They tossed them in the air and caught them deftly. The bands then marched up the field and above the gleam of the brass horns shone the two blazing batons twirled by Larry Hammond. It made a brilliant pageant. The band music ceased with James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, leading his band across the field.

The program shifted back to the choruses. While the bands were maneuvering on the field a thousand singers of the mixed festival chorus and the hundred musicians of the festival band were silently taking their places behind the fifteen microphones on the great improvised wooden stage under the flaming stripes of the Star Spangled Banner. Soon the amplifiers were sending out a concord of sweet sounds, contrasting with the heavy harmony of the bands. Into the dark high canopy of the sky "The Prayer of Thanksgiving" by Kremser rose and fell sweetly and solemnly like the tones of a mighty organ.

Suddenly on the scene appeared three cornet artists and their playing of "Three Kings," probably got the most prolonged applause up to that time. Then again came the festival chorus with its thousand voices thrilling the crowd with the "Bells of St. Mary."

Prolonged Cheers for Soloists.

Roy Anderson, Chicago baritone and winning man singer of the festival sang "Sylvia" by Oley Speaks, and only the necessity of getting on with a well charged program prevented the crowd from having its demands for an encore fulfilled. They were equally insistent for more when Miss Nell Stuart, soprano, and winning woman singer of the festival sang "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio," by Verdi.

As Miss Stuart's lovely voice faded from the microphone again there was heard the music of the festival band directed by Victor Grabel playing his own composition, "The Glory of the Marines." It caught the fancy of the crowd and many hummed it along with the festival chorus and the silver trumpeters. "From the Halls of Montezuma, etc.," sang the thousand voices from the stage while the crowd paid its tribute with fervor to Uncle Sam's great sea soldier corps.

It was now time for one of the high moments of the evening, the offering of the sextet from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," accompanied by the festival orchestra. As shafts of blue light swept the black sky the strains of the popular Italian opera filled the heavens. And before the multitude had concluded its expression of approval, Miss Margery Maxwell, one of the sextet was singing the "Last Rose of Summer." She sang beautifully, and the crowd applauded lustily.

This and the splendid singing of Billy Hill's "Wagon Wheels," by the famous Chicago A Capella choir, with Noble Cain directing, formed an ideal prelude for one of the evening's outstanding events.

Over the microphone came the soul moving voices of a thousand Negroes under the direction of J. Wesley Jones, singing the spirituel "O, Southland."

That was only the beginning. Soon these thousand voices were heard in two even more entrancing melodies. They were "Let Us Cheer the Weary Traveler" and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," with a sweet melancholy of the sopranos that touched the crowds with high emotion.

Acclaim Negro Singers.

Across the stadium burst a swell of applause and a chorus of "Oh's" and "Ah's."

Onto the field soon swept a thousand ariels—tiny sprites dressed in wisps of green dress with orange collar and carrying parasols of yellow and white. They tripped over the green sod of the oval while Mr. Grabel and the festival band played Tschaikowski's "Sleeping Beauty."

The tiny girls trained carefully for weeks to enact a field of moving daisies gave a fairy atmosphere to the scene and delighted the eyes of the crowd.

FURIOUS RAINSTORM IN PART OF CITY DROPS MERCURY 10° IN HOUR

Another of the sudden, brief, but drenching rainstorms which have recurred during the last month, swept Chicago loop and western districts yesterday shortly after 5 p. m., flooding basements, impairing trafic, and tumbling the temperature ten degrees within an hour. The fall amounted to .42 of an inch.

One death was indirectly attributed to the storm. Joseph Katuraskis, 21 years old, was electrocuted by an electric light socket when he went to the basement of his home at 1525 South 51st avenue, Cicero, to move some books out of range of water which was pouring in the windows.

Slight damage was done when lightning struck two homes, one at 2627 South Central Park avenue, and another at 1455 North Lockwood avenue. Willow Springs county highway police reported heavy rains throughout their territory, with water standing in the roads.

SUSPECT IN U. S. MAIL BOMBING SEIZED BY CZECHS

KOSICE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Police today arrested Johann Drotar, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was sought for questioning in connection with the sending of a bomb through the mails.

Hunted by U. S.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Postal inspectors said today that Johann Drotar was wanted for questioning in connection with a bomb explosion which shattered the right hand of a postal employé here in May, 1934.

The inspectors said they never had charged Drotar with complicity in the mailing of the bomb and that they probably would not ask for his return to the United States unless new evidence had been developed against him in Czechoslovakia.

Drotar was described as a friend of John Lucas, who is serving a 12 year sentence in the penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., for sending the bomb through the mails. Disguised as a book, it was sent in a package addressed to Mrs. John Lucas in Czechoslovakia. Suspecting the package might contain narcotics, postal inspectors sent it to the dead letter office here, where Myrton L. Genung opened it. The explosion which followed mangled his hand and injured another employé slightly.

HURT IN CAVE-IN; DIES.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Howard Spillers died today of injuries suffered yesterday when he was trapped in a cave-in of the courthouse wreckage. George Bull was killed yesterday in the crash.

TRADE ADVISERS URGE ROOSEVELT DELAY TAX PLANS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Roper business advisory council was disclosed today to have advised President Roosevelt to postpone the tax program until next session.

The council, which is composed of business leaders, urged in a confidential report to the President that the situation be given further study with a view to a more rounded tax program in 1936.

The document probably will not be made public under a council ruling some weeks ago against publicity.

The report said budget balancing was probably impossible because of emergency expenses.

Saloonist, Spurned, Ends Life on Woman's Porch

John Basile, 31 years old, 642 North Central Park avenue, shot and killed himself yesterday on the front porch of a home at 2729 North 75th avenue, Elmwood Park, where Mrs. Caroline Bancroft, 30 years old, lives with her mother. A note beside the body told the story: "Caroline, I can't live without at least being friends with you, and you won't even be friends. so good-by. I am sorry. Johnny." Mrs. Bancroft, whose husband is a gasoline station employé, said she quit her job in a tavern owned by Basile when he began showing her attention.

LEAPS TO DEATH FROM ROOM.

Nels Seagram, 34 years old, was killed early this morning when he plunged from the window of his second story room at 707 Buckingham place. Police said evidence in the room indicated Seagram had been drinking heavily. He was unmarried and had no family in Chicago.

FAMILY OF THREE FROM WISCONSIN KILLED IN CRASH

Angola, Ind., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Three Wisconsin residents were killed late today in an automobile accident on U. S. Highway 20, 19 miles east of Angola in Williams county [Ohio].

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brookham of Prescott, Wis., died instantly in the crash and a daughter, Bertha, 15, succumbed to her injuries at the Cameron hospital here. A son, Donald, suffered a broken leg.

Officers were told the Prescott car skidded on soft gravel and collided with a truck coming in the opposite direction. Occupants of the truck were unhurt.

Six Are Injured.

Noblesville, Ind., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Vance Hill, Lansing, Mich., was perhaps fatally injured and his wife, daughter, Mary, 14, and son, Vance Jr., were seriously hurt today when the car in which they were riding collided with a machine occupied by Victor Overman and Hugh Carey, both of whom suffered concussion of the brain.

DILLINGER MOB, BIRTH CONTROL GROUPS LIKENED

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Archbishop John Gregory Murray today charged that birth control organizations were like the Dillinger mob, as both, he said, were "organized to commit murder."

"I see little difference in killing an unborn child and a living person," the archbishop asserted in an interview replying to criticism aimed at him by Margaret Sanger of the National committee of federal legislation for birth control.

He made his charge on the eve of an official pronouncement throughout the archdiocese ordering all Catholics to renounce membership and employment in organizations advocating birth control or sterilization.

WINNERS IN BAND, DRUM CORPS AND CHORUS DIVISIONS

Old Iowa Musical Group Victor Third Time.

Thousands of singers and players from the Chicagoland area and many other sections of the country and Canada participated yesterday afternoon in the final contests of the Sixth Annual Music Festival. Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded for the first three places in each event. The first place winners were on the festival program in Soldiers' field in the evening.

One of the most interesting contests was that between the adult bands in the large unit division. This was held at the Lake Shore Athletic club. The winner was a fifty-five piece band from Cedar Falls, Ia., directed by James A. Melichar.

This organization is forty-four years old and won the same competition in the music festivals in 1930 and 1931, but had not entered again until this year. The two oldest members of the band are Leo F. Hughes and L. H. Hughes, brothers. Leo, who is 49 years old, and L. H. Hughes, who is 51, have been in the band for thirty-two years.

Des Plaines Band Second.

The St. Mary's Training school band of Des Plaines, Ill., directed by Anthony Guerrera, took second place in this division. Third place was won by the Froebel Summer school band of Gary, Ind., under the direction of Ken W. Resur.

Winners in the other band divisions were:

Adult bands, small units—First, Cudahy, Wis., Municipal and American Legion band, 30 pieces, directed by E. J. Zielinski; second, Hagerstown, Ind., band, 30 pieces, W. J. Stahr, directing, and Lanark, Ill., concert band, 25 pieces, directed by Beth D. Hower. Mrs. Hower directed five bands which reached the finals.

Juvenile bands, large units—First, Wurlitzer concert band of Chicago, 61 pieces, directed by Marcel Ackerman; second, Emerson school summer band of Gary, Ind., 107 pieces, directed by H. S. Warren, and third, Chicago Boys' club band, 84 pieces, directed by John Sovinec.

Juvenile bands, small units—First, Boone county farm bureau band of Belvidere, Ill., 30 pieces, directed by Harold Luhman; second, Chadwick, Ill., school band, 26 pieces, directed by Beth D. Hower, and third, Thornton Fractional township band, 30 pieces, directed by Newell H. Long.

Chorus Contest Winners.

Winners in the chorus contests [only first two places picked] were:

Men's chorus—First, Green Bay, Wis., Y. M. C. A. Glee club, 44 members, directed by Earl E. Fisk, sang "High Barbary," by Arthur E. Hall, and "Vilia," from the "Merry Widow"; second, Meistersingers guild of Two Rivers, Wis., 45 members, directed by Thomas L. Bailey, sang "High Barbary" and "Were You There?" by Burleigh.

Women's chorus—First, College Choral singers of Racine, Wis., 30 members, directed by Mrs. J. A. Jacobson, sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by Schubert; second, the Ladies' choir of Hamilton, Canada, 32 members, directed by Miss Lydia Llewellyn-Thomas, sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Mixed chorus—First, Ukrainian chorus of Chicago, 50 members, directed by George Benetzky, sang "In Pride of May," by Will C. Macfarland, and "Christmas Bells," an old folk song; second, Egyptian Choral club of West Frankfort, Ill., 125 members, directed by Frank E. Trobaugh, sang "In Pride of May" and "Send Forth Thy Spirit," by Schnetky.

Drum and Bugle Contests.

Results of the drum and bugle corps contests were:

Junior division—First, Racine, Wis., Boy Scouts Drum and Bugle corps, 47 pieces, directed by William L. Peterson; second, John Philip Sousa Sea Scout Drum and Bugle corps of Kalamazoo, Mich., 45 pieces, directed by A. T. Stevens, and third, St. Augustine church of Chicago Boy Scouts Drum and Bugle corps, 45 pieces, directed by Peter Rechs and Eli Quintell.

Juvenile division—First, Polish National Alliance Commune corps of Cicero, 46 pieces, directed by Frank Jendraszewski; second, Danville Boy Scouts corps, 33 pieces, directed by Alan Deego, and third, Boys' Alliance Club corps of Chicago, 60 pieces, directed by Stanley M. Pinski.

Winning Baton Twirlers.

Winners of the baton twirling contests were:

Senior class—First, Richard Abercrombie, 5912 North Paulina street; second, Donald Williams of Madison, Wis., and third, Ellsworth Donner of Madison, Wis.

Junior class—First, Kathryn Clark, 14 years old, of Elkhart, Ind.; second, Robert Abbott, 15 years old, 1801 North 79th court, Chicago; third, Ted Erickson, 13 years old, 1650 West 105th street, Chicago.

The adult band contests were both held at the Lake Shore Athletic club and the juvenile band contests were held at the Knickerbocker hotel. The chorus competitions were at the Drake hotel. The drum and bugle corps and the baton twirling contests were held at Soldiers' field.

WAKE ISLAND BIRDS SCREAM DEFIANCE AT SIGHT OF FIRST PLANE

PEALE ISLAND, Wake Islands, Aug. 17.—[U.P.]—Frigate birds and tern, startled from their age old isolation, circled around a lagoon off Peale Island today screaming defiance at a visitor from another world, the Pan-American Airway's giant clipper plane.

The birds, undisturbed in their possession of these coral atolls for centuries, have not rested since the four motors of the clipper drove them into frightened flight yesterday as the plane landed on the lagoon to complete a 1,200 mile flight from the Midway Islands.

It was the first time an airplane ever had visited the Wake Island group, where Pan-American has established one of its chain of landing bases and radio stations to be strung out from California to China.

CAR CRASH FREES KIDNAP VICTIM; 1 CAPTOR CAUGHT

Three robbers and their kidnaped victim escaped injury yesterday morning when their stolen automobile crashed into a light pole at Long avenue and Eddy street while they were being pursued by a police squad. One of the robbers, who said he is Anthony Fernandez, 19 years old, 2201 North Lawndale avenue, was captured at the scene, but his two companions escaped.

Sergt. Herbert Haerle and members of his squad from the Irving Park station saw the men force Norman Fritzinger, attendant of a gasoline station at 3559 North Central avenue, into their car at that address and drive east in Addison street. The policemen pursued, firing several shots into the air. The bandits returned the fire and several struck the squad car. The crash occurred when the driver lost control of the automobile.

Fernandez admitted to Investigator Gus Bartels of the state's attorney's office that he had committed more than 50 robberies in the last two months.

NRA BATTERY MAKER TO RUN AS G. O. P. DELEGATE

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Fred C. Perkins, the Pennsylvania battery manufacturer who defied NRA and spent 18 days in jail before he was bailed out, returned home today with eyes directed toward a seat in the next Republican national convention.

He said he had been encouraged by talks with former President Hoover and other Republican leaders to run as a delegate from his home town of York.

Perkins' refusal to sign the code for his industry resulted in a complaint being made against him. He spent 18 days in jail when unable to raise $5,000 bail.

Released when a fellow townsman befriended him, he was convicted and fined $1,500, but never paid the fine. The Supreme court decision killing the NRA caused the government to drop its efforts to collect.

Two Robbers Truss Dentist, Make a $2 "Extraction"

Kansas City, Kas., Aug. 17.—(AP)—There was an extraction in a dentist's office here today. "We hate to do this, but we've got to live," said two men as they tied up Dr. J. W. Kain and robbed him of $2.

5C TO $500 TAGS ON INDIAN RELICS AT PAYNE SALE

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The price of Indian stone axes ranged from 50 cents to $100 at the world's largest curio sale today. The top quotation on spearheads was $130.

From more than a million pieces in the stone age collection of the late Edward W. Payne, bargain hunters in relics could obtain their choice of curios individually or by lots. Also, they could purchase them on a price range of 5 cents to $500 each.

Sale of the collection, once valued by Payne at $1,000,000, was ordered by a Springfield bank, which acquired the collection when the Payne estate went into receivership after his death in 1932.

E. B. Montgomery, Havana Consul, Sent to Mexico

CONSTITUTION DAY COMMITTEE TO MEET AT NOON THURSDAY

The first general meeting of the Chicago Constitution day committee, it was announced yesterday, will be at a luncheon in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house next Thursday at noon.

Julius H. Miner, general director of the celebration, has returned from the east, where he discussed the program with several national leaders including former President Hoover and Alfred E. Smith. He also saw men who may be asked to speak here on Sept. 17. Among them are three United States senators, Carter Glass of Virginia, Democrat; Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, Republican, and Millard Tydings of Maryland, Democrat. Miner is to report at the luncheon.

Director Miner announced that sixty names have been added to the committee list, carrying the total beyond the 300 mark.

ARMY CAPTAIN IN CCC GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Court martial and conviction of Capt. George E. Pruytt, 56, U. S. A., quartermaster and agent finance officer for the Redding, Cal., district of the Civilian Conservation corps, was announced today by Ninth Corps Area Judge Advocate General Col. Kyle Rucker.

Capt. Pruytt was convicted of embezzlement of army funds and failure to maintain certain records required by the military code, as well as gambling while serving as disbursing officer, Col. Rucker said. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and shorn of his uniform, reduced, after confirmation by President Roosevelt, to one year's imprisonment and dismissal from the service.

A native of Illinois, Capt. Pruytt rose from the ranks and was a member of the Kansas volunteers in the Spanish American war.

THREE RABBIS ARGUE WITH CAR DRIVER; ONE DIES; AUTO MAN HELD

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Rabbi Mendel Kurman, 75, of this city, died tonight on the way to Atlantic City hospital after a heated quarrel between himself and two other rabbis, on one hand, and a jitney driver on the other. Harvey Jacobs, 34, the driver, was held without bail on a charge of murder.

According to the fragmentary story first pieced together by police, three rabbis argued with Jacobs over the fare for being taken to the Municipal market, where they were to slaughter poultry, according to the kosher rites. They claim to have offered $1 and maintain Jacobs demanded more.

Whether death resulted from a heart attack or an alleged beating had not been determined late tonight by the county medical examiner.

ACTRESS BREAKS OTIS CHATFIELD-TAYLOR TROTH

A few hours before they were to have been married last night at a fashionable wedding in Falmouth, Mass., Miss Miriam Battista, 21 year old stage and screen star, revealed the abrupt termination of her engagement to Otis Chatfield-Taylor, a Chicago and New York society man.

"It was a case of a man's social background conquering his love," Miss Battista explained at Falmouth.

Despite the upset of his matrimonial plans, Chatfield-Taylor pursued his duties yesterday in the Beach theater at Falmouth which houses the summer repertory company of which Miss Battista is the ingénue and the society man is director and financial backer.

"Yes, Miriam told me," he said quietly last night. "I was very much surprised. I hadn't expected it. I guess we won't be married tonight."

Hold City Driver to Jury in Killing of Foreman

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that Michael Parise, 21 years old, 1025 South Morgan street, chauffeur for the city asphalt plant at 1533 South Ashland avenue, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the death of William Gannon, 28 years old, 2814 Chase avenue, foreman of the tool room at the asphalt plant. Gannon died Aug. 10 from injuries received in a fight with Parise following a softball game in the plant yard on Aug. 8.

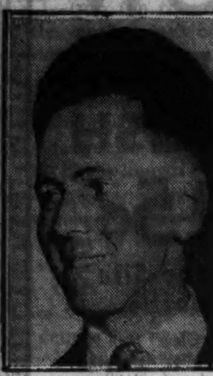
CHICAGO TO SEE WONDER MOVIES OF U. S. WILD LIFE

Nature Dramas Prepared by Science Museum.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Sensational but thoroughly scientific movies of the wonders of North American wild life are being whipped into shape in the studios of the ivy clad Natural History museum in Lincoln park.



ALFRED MARSHALL BAILEY.
Director, Academy of Sciences.

You soon shall see in fascinating close-ups the courtship dances, at once comical and poetic, which prairie chickens perform on a sequestered stretch of prairie near the little town of Toledo, county seat of Cumberland county, in east central Illinois.

You shall see, at their housekeeping and in flight, the handsome, maroon beaked Franklin gulls which a church now numbering more than 700,000 members calls "the miracle birds" and to which it has erected a beautiful monument in the Temple grounds at Salt Lake City.

The Grizzlies of Yellowstone.

You shall see grizzly bears ignoring human beings within 100 feet of their feeding places in Yellowstone park, but keeping a wary eye out—furtive backward and sidelong glances—for a bigger grizzly which, when it lumbers toward the feeding places, is sullenly but promptly made way for.

And you shall see Shiras moose, antelope, and elk as they come and go, feed and fight in the wild.

All these shows will be free to grown-ups and to school children. They will be given this coming autumn and winter in the public schools on dates to be announced and at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoons in the lecture hall of the museum at the head of Lincoln avenue in the park. They represent many weeks of patient, skilful work done from blinds—and sometimes with flashlight guns—by men long trained in it, and they are the most brilliant of a multitude of services rendered to the nature lovers of Chicagoland by the Academy of Sciences which also maintains the museum in the park.

Bailey Returns with "Movies."

The academy's director, Alfred Marshall Bailey, is just in from the wilds with 5,000 feet of motion picture film. Hence the intensive daily activity in the museum's studio in preparation for the great free shows. His latest trip took him from the north rim of the Grand Canyon of Arizona northward through Utah and thence into the Yellowstone. For five weeks he worked with the United States biological survey and the Utah fish and game department, and he had prime success in his bloodless hunting. Physically more of the scholar than of the hunter type, he stood up well under the roughing and returns looking fit. You can't wear down a man whose researches have taken him from the highlands of Ethiopia to the ice fields of the Arctic.

One of the treasures he brings back from Great Salt lake is a movie of adult white pelicans standing guard over their young in the heat of the day to protect them from the sun.

A Chicagoland Wild Life Drama.

But, intimate though the director's pictures from the far west are, Chicagolanders are going to be even more delighted with one of the successes he achieved nearer home. Through the good offices of the Illinois Natural History survey at the University of Illinois the academy got track of the sequestered Cumberland county courting grounds—some call them strutting grounds—of the prairie chickens, birds which are now extremely rare in Illinois.

Their courtship dances, which are more of an ornate strut and flutter than a rhythmic motion, begin at sunrise. The male birds go through a pompous pantomime of strutting and prancing until 7 o'clock for the allurement of the females and then depart to feed during the rest of the morning and most of the afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock they return to the same spot and dance until long after dark.

Make Room for the Males!

The dancers are evenly spaced, about 35 feet apart, and each male reserves about 10 square yards for the exhibition of his charms and his grace.

All the males in the flock will be dancing at the same time, but—unlike their more gifted relatives, the Wisconsin sharp-tailed grouse—not in unison. All through the Cumberland county dance the males utter a booming cry. They lift the long straight tufts of feathers on the side of their heads and throats and balloon out the orange colored paunches on the side of their necks and just below the jaws.

Entranced by the booming and the pomposity, the female walks into the strutting ground and toward the male of her choice. At her appearance all the dancers face her and redouble the tempo of their antics. No male bird chases her, but waits for her to come to him to be bred.

Act II—The Wisconsin Grouse.

The courtship dance of the Wisconsin sharp-tailed grouse, which the academy will also show in motion pictures, has more the aspect of a carefully rehersed performance. It is danced in unison by groups of half a dozen males, is rhythmic, and is accompanied by an insistent tapping of the feet which gives off a noise like machine gun fire. The birds vary it with curious and simultaneous pauses.

"This performance," said Mr. Bailey, "has much of the quality of the turkey trot dance. We photographed it near Babcock, Wis., 100 miles north of Madison."

The Franklin Gulls.

Reverting to the work in the far west, the director said: "I am especially glad to report that we are well satisfied with the interesting studies of Franklin gulls which we obtained on the islands in Great Salt lake."

And well he may be glad, for these gulls are the historic "miracle birds" of Mormon annals and so sacred to the people of that faith that wanton killing of them is punishable by law. Twenty-two years ago a superb Doric memorial of granite and bronze, designed by Mahonri Young, grandson of Brigham Young, was erected in Temple block, Salt Lake City, in honor of the gulls, which had saved the Mormon crops in a time of dire scarcity.

Saved Mormon Crops in 1848.

That was in June, 1848, a year after the arrival of the first Mormons in Utah. The winter wheat which the colonists had planted in Salt Lake valley was doing well when clouds of insatiable black crickets descended upon the fields.

Destruction of the entire planting seemed certain, for, as even the redoubtable Brigham Young said: "The crickets are the greatest plague, for we can hit men, but when you hit one cricket the air is at once alive with them, and if you kill one, two come to bury him."

Man's effort to destroy the pests was unsuccessful. In the moment of deepest despair flocks of gulls—now known to ornithologists as Franklin and California gulls—swept in from the islands of Great Salt lake. They were as insatiable as the crickets and by devouring them they won for the Mormons the battle against starvation.

After 87 years that rescue is held in grateful remembrance and the fourth tablature on the miracle memorial reads: "Sea Gull Monument, Erected in Grateful Remembrance of the Mercy of God to the Mormon Pioneers."

Brings Back Pelicans, Too.

"Handsome devils—these Franklins!" exclaimed Mr. Bailey—speaking from the point of view of the crickets—as he gave me a preview of the pictures.

Other treasures he has brought home include motion films of the beautiful white pelicans of Great Salt lake, formerly abundant but now scarce because the drainage of lakes by irrigation has left in all North America only about seven breeding places for them.

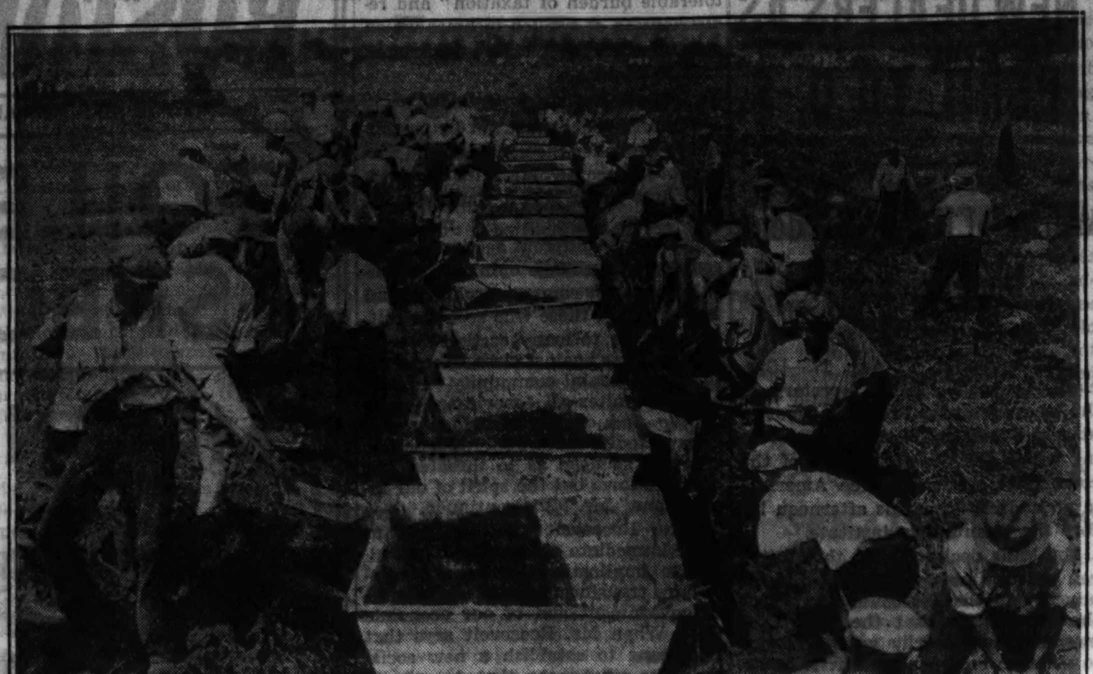
"One of the most interesting of all our wild creatures," the director said, "because one of the largest of our birds, the adult weighing 16 pounds. They are also one of the oldest survivals of early bird life on the planet, their period extending way back to the ice age. Wonderful mothers, too, for from their nests on Gunnison Island in the north central part of the lake they travel from 25 to 75 miles to obtain food for their young. The mother swallows the food, then regurgitates it upon her return home, and the young plunge deep into her lower mandible to get it. Our motion films show them doing that!"

Life Made Richer and Fuller.

Such are some of the fruits of the latest bloodless hunting of an institution that is not half appreciated by Chicagoans. I hope to be allowed to tell you in next Sunday's TRIBUNE what the Academy of Sciences does to make life richer and more instructive—yes, and more exciting—for the Chicago boy when he fares forth into the woodlands and fields of our own countryside.

What it does is an eye-opener.

WPA STARTS PROJECT IN FOREST PRESERVE



Starting the first Works Progress administration job in the Chicago area, these men are engaged in removing the top soil from 120 acres of the Whistler forest preserve at 129th and Halsted streets. The land will be built up from spoilage obtained in the deepening and widening of the Little Calumet river and then the top soil will be replaced. Twenty-six WPA projects have been started in the state, taking 3,000 men off the relief rolls.

PLEADS FOR RETURN OF BRIEF CASE.

Miss Vivian McBride, 22 years old, 5300 Ferdinand street, appealed to the police yesterday to recover a brief case containing a valuable collection of music which was seized from her lap as she was riding on a Lake street elevated train.

U. S. GRANTS CITY $2,925,000 FOR STREET REPAIRS

First Item in 100 Million WPA Program of Kelly.

The allocation of $2,925,000 in federal funds for the improvement of Chicago streets was announced in Washington yesterday. The sum, approved by President Roosevelt, represents the first phase of the $100,000,000 works relief program outlined by Mayor Kelly three weeks ago in conferences with Harry Hopkins, National Works Progress administrator, and Robert J. Dunham, state director of the WPA.

In addition to the outright grant of nearly three million dollars, a loan of $3,575,000 will be required to complete the work, the total cost of which is estimated at $6,500,000. This loan, officials said, may be secured from the Public Works administration or the city may raise the money through the sale of bonds.

Trafic Safety Items Included.

The projects approved by the President before he left for Hyde Park, N. Y., for the week-end, include the construction of three pedestrian underpasses, eight grade crossing eliminations and the widening of 41.5 miles of existing pavement. Of the $100,000,000 works relief program for the city, 31 millions will be for street improvements.

Although approval by the President theoretically is the last word, the city may have to wait for some time before receiving the money. Controler General J. R. McCarl has been holding up the larger approved projects pending establishment of a federal auditing bureau to supervise the spending of the money.

Six Other Towns Benefit.

Six other grants to Illinois towns aggregating $281,872 also were announced in Washington yesterday. The towns and projects include:

BLANDINSVILLE, waterworks improvements, $29,454.

GALATIA, waterworks construction, $27,000.

KANKAKEE, sewers and sewage treatment, $150,136.

McLEANSBORO, sewers and sewage treatment, $32,737.

SPARLAND, waterworks construction, $13,909.

VERMONT, waterworks improvements, $28,636.

These grants contemplate additional expenditures of $344,500.

3,000 at Work on 26 Projects.

Some of the 3,000 men transferred from the relief rolls to 26 projects financed by the new federal Works Progress administration in Cook county and downstate Illinois yesterday were at work on a project in the forest preserve at 129th and Halsted streets.

The men are engaged in removing the top soil from 120 acres of the Whistler tract in the preserve. The tract will be built up by spoilage taken from the deepening and widening operations on the Little Calumet river. The top soil then will be replaced.

Woman Cashier Robbed of $600 Pay Roll by 2 Men

As Miss Lulu Brekenridge, 26 years old, 1140 South Mansfield avenue, cashier for the Dosler Supply company at 1935 South Wabash avenue, started to enter the office building yesterday with the company's $600 pay roll, two men leaped from an automobile at the curb, took the money from her, and escaped.

HOUSE PLANNING VOTE TOMORROW ON GUFFEY BILL

Narrow Margin Passage Is Predicted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—With the Democratic majority divided as it never has been before at this session, the house today completed consideration of the Guffey coal socialization bill and prepared for a record vote on Monday.

With Charles West, lobbyist for President Roosevelt, hard at work in the ante-rooms putting pressure upon the rebels against the bill, and with the Democratic leaders using every possible method to whip the reluctant representatives into line, even the most hopeful forecasts were that the house would approve the measure by only a few votes.

West Working Hard.

West has been laboring for the legislation in the house ever since President Roosevelt sent his letter containing the now celebrated advice to push the bill through regardles of "reasonable" doubts as to its constitutionality. West is credited with wringing from senate Democratic chiefs an agreement to bring the measure up on the senate floor.

The bill creates a commission to regulate wages, hours, trade practices and prices in the soft coal industry. A tax would be levied on all producers with a 90 per cent rebate for all who comply with the commission's orders. It is, in effect, its opponents declare, another NRA for the bituminous coal fields and just as illegal as the Supreme court declared the old NRA to be.

Expect Price Boost.

One result of the measure will be an immediate boost in soft coal prices, observers declared.

The pledge of Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson to bring the measure up in the senate if it passes the house has many congressmen worried. The almost universal belief now is that congress will adjourn by the end of the next week. Speaker Joseph W. Bryns today altered his "Sept. 1" prediction to "Aug. 24" today.

But if a serious effort were made to pass the Guffey bill, as desired by the President, the senate might be thrown into a long drawn out controversy which would endanger an early adjournment. On the other hand, a few observers pointed out, the senate passed the tax bill in two days and might, in its present mood, approve the Guffey bill in as short a period.

Predict Close Vote.

After a week of intensive polling of the house, Democratic Whip Patrick Boland today predicted a favorable margin of twenty or thirty votes for the bill. Representative Claude Fuller, Arkansas Democrat and one of the foes of the measure, said it would lose by twenty votes.

Boland's first poll showed that the bill would lose. Then he, West, and the powerful Pennsylvania delegation went to work and succeeded in swinging some thirty congressmen from "no" to "aye."

The house usually takes Saturdays off, but the leaders succeeded in getting approximately 100 of the 430 members to attend today's session. Inasmuch as the house was sitting as "committee of the whole house on the state of the Union," only 100 members were necessary to constitute a quorum.

REVEAL LOBBYING QUIZ MAY EXTEND INTO '36 CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A continuation of the power lobby investigation into the early stages of the 1936 campaign was revealed today as a strong probability.

With the bitter controversy over abolition or regulation of public utility holding companies expected by many to furnish a major campaign issue, importance was attached to this development.

Members of the senate lobby committee, it was learned, expect to hold few hearings during the coming four month congressional recess, but will resume in earnest when congress reconvenes in early January.

Meanwhile, its investigators will be busy assembling and correlating a mass of information already received.

10,000 PROTEST WPA SECURITY WAGES IN N. Y. DEMONSTRATION

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A demonstration of protest against the security wage scale paid on WPA projects here began shortly before noon today in Union square, and union leaders estimated that 10,000 members of various A. F. of L. locals and independent labor organizations took part.

After hearing the speeches of the strike leaders the workers paraded to the office of Gen. Hugh Johnson, WPA administrator. Gen. Johnson was out of the city, however, it was asserted.

The parade was led by David Lesser, president of the Workers Unemployed council. Organizations taking part in the demonstration included those of the bricklayers, electrical workers, dressmakers, cloakmakers, ladies' garment makers, bookkeepers, stenographers, accountants, knit goods workers.

The unions demand the union rate of pay for skilled workers on all federal work-relief developments and the payment of 82½ cents an hour for unskilled workers.

rail pension bills, are clearly class legislation and fraught with opportunities for playing politics.

It is well known that leaders in the senate, including Majority Leader Robinson and Harrison, chairman of the finance committee, are opposed to much of the pending grist, but they don't dare say so, for there is no telling when President Roosevelt will add this or that part of it to his "must" list. They remember too well his letter to Representative Samuel B. Hill [Dem., Wash.] saying he wanted the Guffey bill despite constitutional doubts, "however reasonable."

Frazier-Lemke Bill.

The new Frazier-Lemke bill seeks to circumvent constitutional objections by authorizing bankruptcy courts to order foreclosure sales after three years if the farmer has not satisfied his creditors. In the meantime, the farmer merely would be required to pay a "reasonable rent" which would go for taxes and, assuming there was anything left, to the creditors.

In the Supreme court case Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, dissenting, stated in his minority opinion that the decision of the majority left no way open for congress to enact any kind of railway pension legislation.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] and Representative Robert Crosser [Dem., O.], however, believe they know more about it than the chief justice.

They have drafted two separate pieces of legislation, one for the tax on pay rolls of employers and employés and one for the pensions themselves. Opponents of the bills concede that this ingenious scheme is constitutional if the administration's social security law is.

Power Held Exceeded.

The majority opinion of the Supreme court held that congress, in the original railway pension act, was assuming powers which it did not have under the interstate commerce clause to achieve "social ends."

Besides the deadlock on the Wheeler-Rayburn utility bill there is a possibility that the administration will lose the TVA amendments, so dear to the heart of Senator George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.].

Conferees on the banking bill have completed their work, with Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] having his way on most of the controversial amendments to the federal reserve act, and final action is expected in both houses by Tuesday.

Son of Ibn Saud Honored on Visit to Transjordan

AMMAM, Transjordan, Aug. 17.—(AP)—An Arab legion and the Transjordan frontier force paraded today in honor of the Emir Saud of Saudi-Arabia, who is here on a good will visit and to participate in the forthcoming conference of Arab leaders on the Italo-Ethiopian crisis. This is the first visit of a member of the Saudi-Arabian royal family to Transjordan. The Emir Saud is a son of King Ibn Saud.

NRA INCENSED BY VANDENBERG IDLENESS CHARGE

Officials Declare Force Is Cut from 5,500 to 3,746

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—NRA officials today took time off from their private knitting, letter writing and powwowing to become incensed over the revelation by Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] that the supposedly defunct Blue Eagle organization actually is costing taxpayers more now than when it was alive a year ago.

The NRA felt itself vindicated by pointing out that there are now only 3,746 clerks, typists, lawyers, messengers, and economists on its pay roll, compared with 5,500 when the Supreme court "killed" the recovery administration on May 27. Just why there still should be 3,746 on the pay roll was not explained.

Pay Rollers on Vacation.

Visitors wandering up and down the past offices occupied by the NRA's healthy corpse find that some of the pay rollers are on an outright vacation, others are making a pretense at working, and a few have managed to work up a sweat in the current August heat. Here are some of the sights which could be seen in NRA offices today:

A young man attached to one of the deputy administrator's offices—what the deputy has left to administer is uncertain—perched on top of a stenographer's desk in deep consultation with the starry eyed steno. Both looked well rested and sun tanned and unconcerned with anything except each other.

Two young women calmly sipping coca-colas out of bottles and innumerable young ladies in various offices buffing their nails, powdering their noses, or patting their hair in place.

Whacking Good Card Game.

A whacking good card game, which was more or less chronic throughout the life of the NRA, going on among the survivors of NRA's once thunderous press section.

An assortment of young persons of both sexes shuffling papers, ruffling through card indexes, or harassing typewriters.

At least these sights could be seen until noon, when everybody knocked off for the Saturday half holiday. There are others who are drawing pay and on an outright vacation, no fooling about it. Since they didn't get their anual two weeks off during hectic NRA days, they are taking it now under the terms of President Roosevelt's open handed order granting "accumulated leave with pay."

Visitors' Eyes Cannot See.

Among others whom NRA has managed to keep on its pay roll are the members of the championship baseball teams, who, Supreme court to the contrary notwithstanding, trounced all other nines in the government league.

Behind closed doors, where visitors' eyes cannot pry, there is supposedly much powwowing and brain exercising among NRA experts and higher ups.

Behind all doors but one. The office of administrator, which resounded to the bellowings of Hugh Johnson, the southern suavities of S. Clay Williams, and the dulcet tones of Donald Richberg is vacant and silent. NRA has no boss.

PRESIDENT CUTS CAKE AT PARTY SIGNALIZING SON'S 21ST BIRTHDAY

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—In the high ceiling dining room of his family home on his Dutchess county estate President Roosevelt tonight cut into a birthday cake with its twenty-one glittering candles signalizing the majority of his son, Franklin Jr.

Gathered at the table were Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother; Mrs. Roosevelt; sons John and Franklin, and James' wife. No outsider pierced the family group. Absent were son Elliott, who is in Texas, and daughter Anna, who is in the west with her husband, John Boettiger of Chicago.

The President was cheerfully confident that congress would soon adjourn when he boarded his train tonight to return to Washington.

"Boss Man," shouted a man in a small crowd at the station, "when are you going to get those fellows away?"

"I think we can finish this week," shouted the President in reply.

MILLS ASSAILS NEW DEALERS AS PERIL TO U. S.

Warns of Heavy Burdens Upon Industry.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury under President Hoover, attacked the New Deal as "the entering wedge for the application of the coercionist system to free America" in an address here this afternoon before the Chautauqua institute.

Mr. Mills declared that the American system now was being undermined, and that he could not accept the explanation that the New Deal measures temporarily were designed to meet an emergency. Mr. Mills asserted that the New Deal was pushing forward toward its central objective even as the emergency waned, and that if any doubt remained, it must have been dispelled by "the President's remarkable press interview after the NRA decision."

Hamper Recuperative Forces.

Mr. Mills who has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential nominee warned that there was "grave reason to suspect that some of the New Dealers, at least, realized the pressure that could be brought by placing upon private industry heavier and heavier burdens, and by hampering the recuperative forces generated within the existing economic order until the people, discouraged by the continued depression, would lose all faith in the old order and turn definitly to the government as their sole means of salvation."

Substituting for Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Mr. Mills assailed the wealth redistribution program. He maintained that the man who accumulated great wealth could get no benefit from his wealth unless he makes it work for someone else through production."

Declaring that recurring booms and depressions were the greatest obstacles to steady progress, Mr. Mills suggested that American banking structures and practices should be reformed. He advocated among other things protection for wage earners through the creation of funds by compulsory withdrawals from the current stream of production or income, increased production by unshackling business energy, reduction of the "intolerable burden of taxation" and redistribution of swollen incomes which governments, local, state and federal, seek to acquire.

Must Exchange Opinions.

"Governments must not be permitted to squander the earnings and savings of the people," Mr. Mills declared.

"There never was a time when it was more important for men and women from different sections of the country to exchange opinions, to consult as to their common problems, and in the face of those who seek for selfish purpose to array section against section, class against class, to reassert the fundamental community of interest that unites all Americans.

"We find ourselves suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with issues that cut so deep as to threaten not only the form but the spirit of our institutions," Mr. Mills continued.

"The Roosevelt policies, both in their immediate consequences and ultimate implications, mean a revolutionary transformation of our scheme of government and of our economic life. When Mr. Roosevelt says that he means to establish a new social order he must mean that America is to abandon its free institutions and its voluntary economic system in favor of an authoritarian government and an economic system based on coercion on the obedience of the many to the few. There is no other social order to which to turn, and there is no middle ground."

23 Hurt When Truck and New York Trolley Car Hit

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Twenty-three persons were injured this afternoon in a collision between a five ton truck and a trolley car. Five of the injured were taken to Columbus hospital. The others were treated by ambulance physicians. Attempting to pass the trolley, the truck cut in too close and was jammed against an elevated pillar.

LOBBYIST PUSHES BILL IMPERILING GRAINEXCHANGES

Would Give Monopoly to U. S. Subsidized Body.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Into the congressional hopper in the closing days of the prolonged session of congress an adroit lobbyist has tucked a bill which would give a government subsidized corporation a monopoly among grain coöperatives to endanger exchanges of the country.

The bill is known as the commodity exchange act, which already has been passed by the house and Wednesday was reported out of the senate agricultural committee. As weary senators relax vigilance in their impatience to be off to their homes to end the grind of hotly contested administration programs, the bill may be slipped through by a chorus of unchallenging "ayes" on a batch of minor measures.

Lobbyist Scores Success.

Gambling on this chance is M. W. Thatcher, high salaried lobbyist for the Farmers' National Grain corporation, whose three years of skillful laboring has plucked the bill out of the senate agricultural committee. In the last two sessions of congress Thatcher has guided his bill through the house, but ran into a stone wall of opposition from Senator Ellison D. [Cotton Ed] Smith, chairman of the senate agriculture committee.

Senator Smith, who has large cotton holdings, made his determined singled handed stand against the bill because as it passed the house it would affect cotton tradings. At his insistence cotton trading was stricken from the bill, and having no interest in grain Senator Smith withdrew his opposition and allowed the bill to come into the floor of the senate.

No public hearings were held on the bill by the senate, which would bring the light of publicity on monopolistic features. A few desultory hearings were held by the house agriculture committee, but the bill was amended after the close of the hearings to include a provision permitting the farmers' national to grant rebates on commission for grain handled by the coöperative for its regional members.

Thatcher Authorizes Change.

This amendment was authorized by lobbyist Thatcher, members of the committee declared privately. Only one voice was raised against the bill and that was of Representative Harry P. Beam [Dem., Ill.] who wrote a minority report challenging its broad grant of powers.

Thatcher publicly desclaims authorship of the measure, although privately he takes credit with his associates, according to committee members.

He enjoys unusual privileges for a lobbyist, being the only one who is admitted to a cabinet press conference. He regularly attends those of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Thatcher came to Washington after a somewhat murky past in the northwest. According to a volume "Wheat and Politics," written by a former associate in the Farmers' National, Thatcher was indicted twelve years ago for falsifying bank and other records in North Dakota.

"Misinterpreted," He Says.

The associate, J. W. Brinton, wrote that Thatcher "when brought before the bar of justice sought and secured immunity and protection by turning state's evidence, admitting his guilt and saving himself from a felon's cell." Thatcher insists the incident was the result of a misinterpretation of his part in an involved financial operation.

Thatcher entered into the picture of the Farmer's National Grain corporation shortly after it was created in the wheat price pegging effort of the farm board.

In an audit of the affairs of the corporation by Controler General J. R. McCarl it was disclosed that the board of directors of the coöperative voted Thatcher $12,000 to be its Washington representative in 1932. The audit also revealed that he gets $1,000 a month from the Portland office of the Farmers' National but is silent as to whether this is in addition to the yearly salary.

Coöperatives Fight Bill.

At the house hearings opponents of the commodity exchange act charged that it was not the result of any public demand for regulation of commodity exchanges and that it was not protecting the public interest in such exchanges. The bill was opposed by coöperatives organized under the Capper-Volstead act, from the provisions of which it exempts the farmers' national.

Opponents charged that the bill was misnamed in that it only regulates grain exchange and is applicable to no other commodity. In the form the measure passed the last two sessions of the house it included every commodity, but at this session was drawn on wheat and cotton and the last was stricken out by the senate committee.

During the meagre house hearings it was charged, and not denied, that the Farmers' National was seeking a monopoly of the marketing of farmers' grain.

Independent Coöps Periled.

Representatives of interested groups asserted that the coöperative's activities are harmful to and threaten the very existence of independent competitive coöperative associations.

The opponents declared that if the monopoly is granted the Farmers' National the action will be a national calamity not only to the public generally but to the farmers in particular. They pointed to the spectacle of a government subsidized corporation, heavily in debt to the federal treasury, paying out the money of the government and farmers in the form of fancy salaries to its officials and its lobbyists.

No power has been so grossly abused as that given the Farmers' National, according to witnesses who appeared before the committee. They asserted the corporation is destroying the dirt farmer owned and controled coöperatives.

Pays Low Interest.

In this connection it was pointed out that the Farmers' National is not operated or controled by producers but by a group which during the period of the farm board secured the 16 million dollars from the government. The coöperative pays interest on the loan at the extremely low rate of one-eighth of 1 per cent of half the sum.

The most important special privilege the bill would give the Farmers' National is the rebate feature, which is in direct opposition to the declared federal policy against rebates and rate cutting in business.

Under the rules of the Chicago Board of Trade, of which the Farmers' National is a member, any member is subject to disciplinary action for granting rebates to customers. Members must charge the full commission of 1½ cents per bushel for the handling of wheat.

On this count the Farmers' National ran into trouble with the Board of Trade. A year ago the coöperative, charged with violation of the rebate rule and in danger of losing its seat, promised to discontinue the practice if the Board of Trade would forgive its past offenses.

Bars Trade Board Ouster.

The bill not only would allow the coöperative this privilege but also has a provision which would prohibit the Board of Trade from excluding it from membership for any reason. A section states that the coöperative may not be excluded from membership unless the Board of Trade secures authorization from a commission established by the bill.

The commission provision takes away the right of exchanges to adjudicate rule violations in the case of the Farmers' National alone. No other member of the exchanges, not even other coöperatives, are granted such protection.

Federal Inquiry Ordered In Missouri Farm Rioting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today ordered an investigation of disorders at Plattsburg, Mo., in which farmers forcibly prevented a United States marshal from conducting a foreclosure sale.

The order was issued after Randall Wilson, first assistant United States district attorney in Kansas City, informed the attorney general the marshal and his three deputies were beaten Thursday while trying to conduct the sale.

Judge Defies Threats.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Defying threats that he may be manhandled when he makes a speech tomorrow at an old settlers' picnic at Hopkins, Mo., Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis prepared tonight for his trip to Hopkins, his boyhood home.

"I'll be there," the judge declared after Henry L. Dillingham, United States marshal here, informed Judge Otis a mob had attacked him and his three aids Thursday at Plattsburg, Mo., when he sought to sell a 360 acre farm under order of Judge Otis.

Dillingham and his aids, E. E. Fisher and Robert Pulliam, deputies, and George Colbern, federal court bailif, were bruised by members of the mob of 500 northern Missouri farmers. Judge Otis ordered a special session of the federal grand jury called for Aug. 26 to investigate the assaults.

Invited As Special Guest.

Judge Otis today said he would arrive at Hopkins just before the time scheduled for his talk. He previously had been invited to attend the picnic and outing as a special guest.

It was reported here today that agents of the federal bureau of investigation may be on hand to protect the judge.

The Plattsburg disorder was followed by another yesterday at Maysville, Mo., where the mob virtually took over the town. Farmers, swinging canes, chased newspaper men out of town, stopped business, and beat up two members of a St. Joseph firm that sought to hold a forced sale of C. Allen Schottel's farm.

RANDOLPH LEIGH TO SEEK POST OF SENATOR GLASS

Richmond, Va., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Randolph Leigh of Fairfax, Va., today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination in 1936 for the senate seat now held by Senator Glass [Dem., Va.].

"If Roosevelt is to carry Virginia in the general election," Leigh said, "Glass must be defeated in the primaries. No one consistently can support both Glass and Roosevelt."

Leigh has been a director of the national oratorical contest for 10 years.

Beeson of Purdue university, president of the association.

FINDS NEW DEAL CAN'T TELL FARM IF IT SEES ONE

Traveling in a rickety Model T Ford with a barrel of gasoline and a camping outfit in the back seat, H. W. Kendall, owner of a chicken hatchery in Kearney, Neb., passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to Washington to tell Home Owners' Loan corporation officials what he thinks of them.

For eighteen months, Kendall has been trying to obtain an HOLC loan of $3,500 on his $9,000 property—a six acre tract with a residence, an orchard and some chicken houses. There is a mortgage on the property and the mortgagee has been lenient in allowing Kendall time to obtain a federal loan. But the refusal of loans by governmental agencies has finally caused foreclosure. Kendall said the HOLC refused him a loan on his chicken farm because he "derived his entire income therefrom," and the Reconstruction Finance corporation denied his application because his property was "a residence without income producing features."

ITALY REPORTS MANY SLAIN IN ETHIOPIAN RAID

Claims French Colony Attacked by Tribesmen.

ROME, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Italian sources reported today that 100 persons were killed and wounded when Ethiopians raided tribesmen in French Somaliland and fought a pitched battle.

A dispatch to the Stefani [Italian] news agency said 20 French subjects were among the victims when the Issa tribe of Ethiopia swept down on the Assaimara tribe at Adagalle, French Somaliland. In huge head lines Rome newspapers called attention to an alleged reign of anarchy along the Ethiopian border.

(Maps available in Chicago show a town named Adda Galla, which is located well within the Ethiopian border line of the railway between Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, and Djibouti, French Somaliland.)

Italians "Explain" Discrepancy.

Although confusion concerning the alleged raid was apparent in official circles when it was suggested that modern maps show Adagalle well inside Ethiopian territory, a government spokesman said that is was likely there was a smaller town of the same name in French Somaliland.

The report was regarded by government circles as extremely important, coming at a moment when the tripower conference in Paris is discussing the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

They said it demonstrates that France's subjects face menaces from Ethiopia, as do Italian subjects, and Paris therefore should support Italy in its intention of disarming Ethiopia.

The governor-regent of French Somaliland was reported to be en route to the scene of the battle to conduct an investigation.

It's News to France.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—[U.P.]—The ministry of colonies said today it had no information about a reported battle at Adagalle in East Africa. The ministry said Adagalle is 150 miles within Ethiopian territory.

The Djibouti railway administration, the Ethiopian legation and delegates to the tri-power conference on the Ethiopian dispute all said they had no information about any such clash.

Duce Aims at Fascist Empire.

ISERNIA, Italy, Aug. 17.—[U.P.]—Premier Mussolini proclaimed in a speech today his ambition to create a Fascist empire. Addressing 12,000 Black Shirts who are sailing for East Africa tomorrow and Monday, he said:

"We are going forward until we achieve a Fascist empire. I know you will do your duty with iron discipline and will not hesitate to make sacrifices until all our goals have been accomplished.

The troops were in heavy marching order, with colonial helmets, light colonial uniforms, and high boots. Mussolini was heartily cheered by the soldiers as he left for Cancalupo to inspect other units.

He came from Rome in his own automobile, which he drove at times at 80 miles an hour. En route he inspected other units at Sulmona, Longano, and Pettoranello.

Refers To "Italy's Destinies."

"Your firm and enthusiastic spirit is well known to me," Mussolini told his troops here. "I know that you are more determined than ever to overcome any opposing obstacle. You do not need to be incited, because I am sure you will accomplish it to the end, regardless of obstacles.

"Italy's destinies will ultimately be fulfilled. A guaranty for attainment of the goals we have fixed for ourselves has been given by the fighting powers of the Black Shirts, formed mostly by storm squads in the early stages of the Fascist revolution. Your past record constitutes a certainty of victory which cannot fail."

In response to the premier's speech, the Black Shirts waved their rifles and daggers, shouting in unison:

"Yes, duce, we are ready for work."

Ethiopia Prays for Peace.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Ethiopians throughout the empire will pray tomorrow for peace.

Religious ceremonies and dances, dating back to the time of King David, will be staged before Emperor Haile Selassie and the empress in St. George cathedral. All churches in the country will use their historically valuable instruments and utensils in the elaborate services.

A slackening of the rainy season today led to speculation as to whether the expected Italian offensive might not get under way sooner than expected. Normally the rainy season ends in mid-September, but there are indications it will come to a close sooner this year.

Assurances came today that 1,000 Egyptians are willing to join as soldiers against Italy. Officials filed the application away, but did not indicate whether they would accept it.

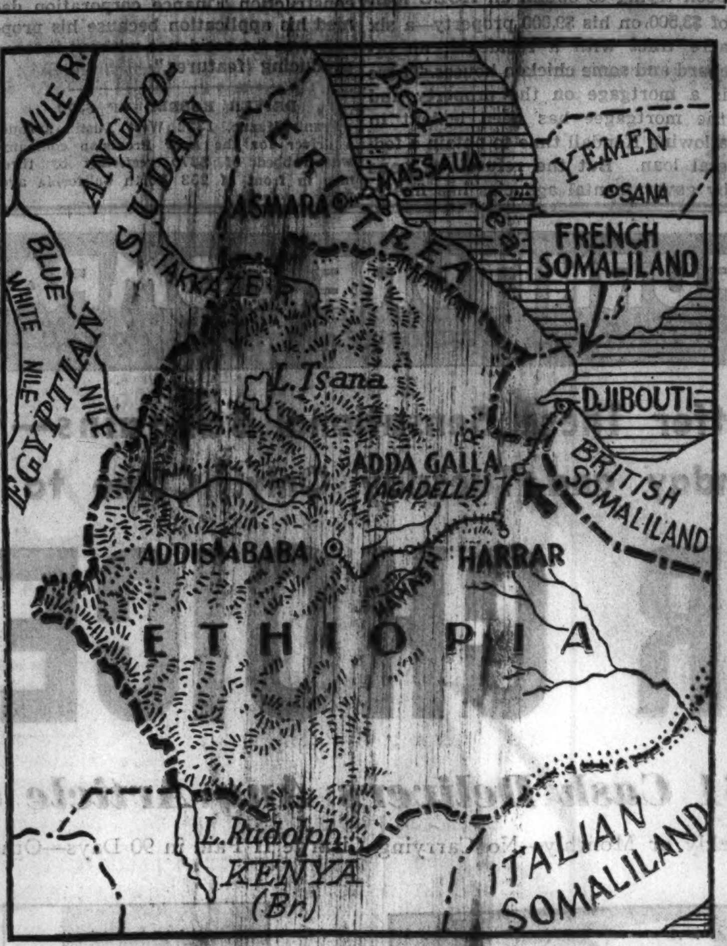
Speed War Preparations.

Reports from Harrar, ancient walled city and the second most important one in Ethiopia, said defensive military preparations are under way at top speed, with natives flocking in for training under foreign military experts. The experts are said to be pleased by the readiness with which the fierce-visaged fighters are learning modern war tactics.

Results of recent speeches by women urging their sex to rally to the aid of the ancient kingdom were seen on the streets here. A number of women walked through the city carrying side arms in a holster in "wild west" fashion. The Amazons make a strange picture, dressed in the medieval garb of a flowing cape and white dress and carrying a modern revolver.

The evacuation of foreigners from Addis Ababa continued today. Among those who left was William Perry George, retiring American chargé d'affaires. He was given a farewell at the station by members of the Ethiopian foreign office and the diplomatic corps. The wife of the Belgian minister departed for what she said was a health trip.

SCENE OF NEW ETHIOPIAN TROUBLE



Arrow indicates Adda Galla, believed to be the town meant by Italian dispatches which told of a raid by Ethiopian tribesmen upon Adagalle in which 100 persons were said to have been killed or wounded. The Italian reports alleged that the attack took place in the French colony of Somaliland. Maps show Adda Galla well within the Ethiopian border.

ITALIANS BORN IN U. S. TRY TO QUIT COUNTRY TO DODGE WAR SERVICE

ROME, Aug. 17.—(AP)—American consulates in northern Italy have sent to Washington in the last few months hundreds of applications from Italians born in America for American passports permitting them to return to the United States.

Consular officials reported today that most of these applications were made by men of military age in the hope of avoiding being sent to East Africa in the event of an Italo-Ethiopian war.

While in many cases the applications have been granted, the Italian government has not honored the passports, holding the bearers to be Italian subjects and therefore liable for army service. Under American laws any one born in the United States is an American citizen but the Italian government considers them subjects of this country.

ETHIOPIAN PEACE PARLEY HALTED; FACES BREAKUP

Charges and Denials Fly; British May Bolt.

press conference, as far as could be learned, was to deny the accounts given in the French and British press last night that Capt. Eden and Premier Laval had done all the talking and Aloisi all the dodging. On the contrary, the Italian spokesman said, it was Aloisi who did most of the talking and it was the responses of Laval and Eden that were evasive.

Gives Interpretation of Treaty.

The Fascist press agent was vague about the subject of his chief's discourse, pleading diplomatic discretion, but he revealed that Aloisi had expounded at length on the Italian interpretation of the three power treaty of 1906, which he said was the core of the present negotiations.

The spokesman said the treaty only guarantees the territorial status quo in Ethiopia and not the independence of the country. By implication he also made it clear that Italy considers the 1906 treaty as fixing the way in which Ethiopia should be carved up, and intends to apply it in this sense.

GETS SPEEDY SENTENCE.

Davenport, Ia., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Forty minutes after Roy Curlin, 25, formerly of Des Moines, was arrested by Davenport police on a statutory charge, he was sentenced to serve ten years in the state penitentiary by Judge W. R. Maines in Scott county District court.

WORLD CHURCH MEET CONDEMNS ETHIOPIAN WAR AS BIG CALAMITY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MONTREUX, Switzerland, Aug. 17.—The world alliance for international friendship through churches, meeting near here, adopted a resolution on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute today which asserted:

"The outbreak of hostilities between two nations, Christian by profession, fellow members of the league of nations and fellow signatories of the Kellogg anti-war pact, would be an unspeakable calamity menacing the peace of the entire world, endangering the existence of agencies of international justice which have been patiently built up since the close of the great war, and weakening the very basis of common morality.

"Our conviction is that any nation which breaks its plighted word not to use other than pacific means for settling international disputes will stand condemned not only by the moral judgment of human society, but by the teaching and spirit of Jesus Christ."

Hold 4 in Cells After Raid on Painters' Union

Four men were held in cells at the Stockyards station yesterday following their arrest Friday night at the headquarters of the painters' local, No. 191, at 5444 Wentworth avenue, when police found a machine gun and an automatic pistol in their car parked outside the place. Capt. Hugh McCarthy of the Stockyards station expressed the belief that the men were bodyguards of James Dugan, a business agent of the painters' union. They are William Schaaf, 3607 West 62d place; William Kenefick, 714 West 48th street; Thomas Harchartick, 2630 North Leavitt street, and Ted Johnson, 3618 North Leavitt street.

JAPAN TO STEER CLEAR OF BRITISH NAVAL PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—The Nichi Nichi declared today that reliable information from naval circles indicates that Japan will refuse to participate in the naval conversations proposed for October by Great Britain. The paper said:

"It may be inferred from a recent address of Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, that Britain will propose the adoption of a formula for announcing construction plans at the proposed conference. Moreover, it is conceivable that Britain, which has abandoned hope for a general disarmament agreement, desires separate agreements with various countries.

"Clearly this indicates a desperate effort by Britain to maintain a superior naval strength and to run counter to Japan's policy. If it is found that Britain intends to push through her proposals on the agenda against Japan's demands, Japan must definitly reject the invitation to a conference."

SIX POLICE RAIDS IN ANTI-GAMBLING DRIVE; 15 SEIZED

Fifteen men were arrested in six raids on alleged gambling houses in the loop and on the west side yesterday as detectives from the Central station and the office of Commissioner James P. Allman continued their anti-gambling drive.

Five men were arrested at 162 North Wabash avenue, at 3222 North West Roosevelt road three men were booked as keepers and one as a solicitor, two men were arrested as keepers at 948 West Madison street, two more at 940 West Madison street, and single arrests were made at 201 North Clark street and 806 West Van Buren street.

All will be arraigned in the South State street court tomorrow.

FORT SHERIDAN ARTILLERY UNIT IN DAWN ATTACK

Battalion Stages Battle at Camp McCoy, Wis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp McCoy, Wis., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—As a climax to a summer of intensive field training, the 2d battalion, 3d field artillery, U. S. A., commanded by Maj. Alfred Goldman went into action early today in a battle maneuver. The problem was a replacement in the line of a battalion assumed to have been withdrawn and an attack at dawn on an enemy position.

The two units of the battalion, D battery, commanded by Lieut. Douglas V. Johnson and E battery, commanded by Lieut. Stewart Yeo, were ordered by Maj. Goldman to move up to the front three miles forward at 7 o'clock, Friday evening. The battery commanders, accompanied by mounted wiring and instrument details, preceded their batteries into the hills at a gallop. Their purpose was to establish gun positions and firing reference points before sundown.

Guns, Equipment Follow.

Following at an accelerated pace came the horse-drawn guns, caissons and auxiliary equipment. A field artillery battery has four 75 mm. guns.

After a grueling pull through sand trails and over steep hills, the batteries wheeled into their respective positions in the line, about a mile apart. Throughout the forced march no lights were shown and the movement of horses, guns, and troops was made with as little noise as possible. This was to avoid attracting the attention of "enemy" airplane observers.

For the same reason each gun in position was thoroughly camouflaged with small, leafy trees, cut for the purpose.

Ready at Midnight.

By midnight the batteries were in readiness. The battalion command post, or field headquarters, had been established between the two battery positions, about a half mile from each. Under the direction of Capt. Calvin S. Richards, battalion communications officer, the field telephone lines and the field radio system to the batteries had been set up and tested. Meanwhile, Capt. Albert Brill, battalion operations officer, was busy coördinating the reports from the batteries as to positions and preliminary observations.

At 3 a. m. the battalion and battery commanders took up their positions in observation posts. At 3:30 a. m., D battery opened up with a high burst ranging fire. This was for the purpose of adjusting fire. The system was first used by the Germans in the world war and in recent years has been highly developed by United States army artillery.

Use Regulation Shells.

Following completion of this fire by both batteries, the battalion stood by, ready for the command to open up with the concentrated fire of the attack. Regulation shrapnel shell was fired.

The 3d field artillery, permanently quartered at Fort Sheridan, will conclude the summer training period here in two weeks and the battalion will march back to the army post.

Directs Maneuvers

MAJ. GEN. DENNIS E. NOLAN.

Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—An old Indian fighter sat at his desk at first army headquarters in an old mill house today and directed the movement of the greatest body of troops ever assembled by a peace time American army.

Col. J. R. R. Hannay, quartermaster of the first army, expressed himself as "more than satisfied" with the movement that today brought 6,000 National Guardsmen here for the first army war games and started 15,000 more on their way.

During the day Col. Hannay inaugurated a system for the movement of troops in convoy by radio controled taxicabs.

While this radio controled convoy was bringing 750 men the 250 miles across western New York in 12 hours, troop trains and motor convoys from other sections of the east were disgorging thousands of guardsmen into the hottest day Pine Camp has had this summer.

Troops arrived from Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont and New York. New Jersey's troops were on the march and bivouacked for the night at New York cities. Other troops will arrive by train Sunday.

Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan will direct the maneuvers.

STRIKE TIES UP TROLLEY SERVICE IN SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A strike of Northern Indiana Railway, Inc., employés stopped city street car lines and interurban buses here today.

R. R. Smith, receiver for the railway company, said only fifty employés joined the strike, but all service was halted to prevent possible violence. The company normally employs 250 men.

Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, started L. J. Smith, a labor department conciliator, from Washington to seek a settlement of the strike. He is expected here Monday.

Frank L. Feeler, vice president of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés, attributed the strike to discrimination against an employé who held membership in the union. R. R. Smith denied any discrimination, declaring the employé was discharged for inefficiency.

Seek Terre Haute Truce.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 17.—[U.P.]—Early settlement of a strike at the Terre Haute malleable and manufacturing plant was sought today by R. Clyde White, federal mediator, while a state of martial law minimized possibilities of violence.

JAP ARMY PUTS CHINA ON SPOT IN POLITICAL CRISIS

NankingChiefsMeet;Must Aid or Fight Tokio.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—Practically all political leaders affiliated with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, virtual Chinese dictator, met secretly at Kuling, Kiangsi province mountain resort, today to try to reach a decision on the reorganization of the government. A crisis was caused by the resignation of Premier Wang Ching-wei a week ago.

Chiang Kai-shek arrived at the conference from his military base at Chengtu, Szechwan. He joined, among other leaders, H. H. Kung, minister of finance; T. V. Soong, chief of the national economic council and governor of the Bank of China; Gen. Chiang Tso-pin, ambassador to Japan, and Chang Hsueh-liang, former Manchurian war lord, now Chiang's representative at central China headquarters in Hankow.

Wang's Reinstatement the Issue.

Japanese military pressure is designed to force the reinstatement of Wang with increased power, which would greatly restrict Chiang's dictatorial control over the military question. The question of Wang's reinstatement thus epitomizes the whole issue of Chinese policy toward Japan.

It is generally realized that Chiang is at a crucial point of his political career. It is believed here that Chiang's refusal to reinstate Wang will further antagonize the Japanese Kwantung army and probably precipitate the formation of another Chinese "puppet régime" at Peiping similar to Manchukuo. This would result in the loss to Japan of the five provinces of Hopei, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar, and Suiyuan.

It is also rumored that Wang might join a northern coalition with Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, chairman of the Shansi province government. Wang entered a similar alliance at Peiping in 1930 which included the Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang. This union collapsed when Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria sent troops south of the great wall and saved Chiang Kai-shek, but paved the way for the Japanese seizure of Manchuria in the following year.

Wang Accused of Aiding Japan.

Wang, since then a violent enemy of Chang Hsueh-liang, recently was accused of using Japanese influence to undermine the positions of both Chang and Chiang Kai-shek. This accusation was countered with allegations that Wang's policy of "nonresistance" amounts to handing the country over to the Japanese army.

Feng Yu-hsiang, who is living in a Confucian temple on the sacred Mount Taishan in Shantung province, is the uncertain element in the situation, since his chief subordinate, Gen. Han Fu-chu, controls Shantung with 50,000 troops. He has not indicated his intentions, but he recently declared Chiang Kai-shek would shortly be forced to fight the Japanese or relinquish his position as head of the Chinese army and air force.

Seeks American Advice.

Some quarters think Han Fu-chu secretly is in an alliance with Canton on an anti-Japanese program. The Japanese yesterday charged that Han Fu-chu's soldiers mistreated two Japanese civilians in Tsinan, the capital of Shantung province.

Dr. H. H. Kung, finance minister, acting premier and brother-in-law of Chiang, recently urged President Roosevelt to send a financial adviser here. In some quarters it is feared that the British action in sending Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, chief economic adviser to the British government, is likely to result in renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance unless offset by the presence of an American.

Seven Killed in Train Robbery.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A Tientsin dispatch quoted a Japanese officer as saying tonight "new demands upon China likely are necessary" as a result of the looting of an express train in north China Thursday, allegedly by "Chinese bandits."

Two more Coreans wounded in the holdup died today, the Tientsin dispatch said, and another is expected to die. This brought the number of those killed in resisting the robbers of the Peiping-Mukden express to seven.

Protest on Writer's Murder.

PEIPING, China, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A British embassy spokesman said strong representations were made today to the Chinese government over the recent murder by bandits of Gareth Jones, British newspaper correspondent and former secretary to David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister. The Englishman, who was found shot to death four days ago near Poachang, in Chahar province, had been investigating conditions in northern China.

BREASTEDS SAIL FOR ITALY TO GO TO CONVENTION

Dr. James Henry Breasted, director of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago, sailed with Mrs. Breasted from New York yesterday on the Conte di Savoia for Genoa to attend the international congress of orientalists as the representative of the National Academy of Sciences.

After the congress, which will be held in Rome from Sept. 23 to 29, the Breasteds will motor in Italy. Later they will visit expeditions of the oriental institute.

The travelers plan also to inspect the new Palestine museum, for which John D. Rockefeller Jr. provided the funds. They will return to Chicago early in December.

Autoist Who Hit Cyclist Gets 20 Days and $100

Stanley Borkowski, 30 years old, 2954 Wisner avenue, an ice man, was sentenced to 20 days in the Bridewell and fined $100 yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden in the South State street court for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Borkowski admitted having had several drinks Friday before his machine struck Albert Stefan, 25 years old, 3905 Schubert avenue, a cyclist, at Hamlin and Barry avenues. Stefan is in a serious condition at the Belmont hospital.

Moscow Streets to Have Fruit, Not Shade, Trees

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Apple and other fruit trees will be planted in Moscow streets instead of the usual shade variety. The state farms today were ordered to cultivate 140,000 fruit trees to be planted here beginning in 1938.

Parade Through City

Mandel Brothers' 46 new streamlined delivery trucks, christened the "Safety Fleet," went into service for the department store yesterday after a parade through the city and suburbs. The new tan and silver trucks represent an investment of approximately $50,000 and replace half of the old fleet.

Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, representing Mayor Kelly, headed a group of city officials and leaders at the formal dedication ceremonies during the mornig at the company's garage and shops at 48th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Among others who attended were Leon Mandel, general manager of Mandel Brothers; George Fleming, secretary of the mayor's Keep Chicago Safe committee, and George Traver, manager of the Chicago safety council. The band of the Board of Trade post of the American Legion, led by Armin Hand, furnished music.

Efforts to Rescue Wife Prove Fatal to Husband

Lawrence Collingnon, 30 years old, 6606 Onargo avenue, died yesterday of pneumonia which developed as a result of his efforts in helping to rescue his wife, Theodosia, when she appeared to be drowning last Sunday while swimming in McCullon lake in Lake county. Not until several minutes after friends had rescued Mrs. Collingnon was it discovered that her husband, who had started to swim to her help, had gone down. He was rescued and revived after an hour's work but was so weakened that he was unable to fight off pneumonia.

OSCAR, SEA LION, FACES TROUBLES; HUNT ORGANIZED

Fired with civic pride, a group of Michigan City officials and business men yesterday planned an expedition to capture Oscar, the sea lion that has been sunning itself along the shores of Lake Michigan for the last month.

Oscar has deserted the South Chicago shore and for several days has been around the government pier off Michigan City's Washington park. Efforts to catch Oscar on Friday failed. T. C. McMullen, president of the Washington park board, is one of the backers of the new movement to capture him.

R. C. Ludwig, president of the Ludwig Fish company, contributed the S. S. Dad Ludwig, sturdy fishing tug, for use as the expedition boat.

Herbert Hirschmann, restaurant owner; R. W. Waterson, manager of a Michigan City theater, and Earl Jennings, automobile dealer, offered their services to Ralph H. Dean, president of the zoo board, head of the expedition. Roosevelt C. Childers, a city detective, who on Friday succeeded in patting the bewhiskered head of Oscar, and Policeman Arthur Sullivan were detailed to take part in the hunt.

"Glider Balloon" Makes First Test Flight in Russia

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The first experimental flight of a "glider balloon" was carried out successfully near Moscow today with a balloon of 2,200 meters capacity. The bag, with a glider fastened to the gondola, rose to a height of 7,000 feet, where the glider was detached. It landed safely. A similar flight to the stratosphere is planned.

EX-MRS. C. J. RYAN STORMS AT GOLD DIGGING CHARGE

Countess Avers She Went Back to Vienna Penniless.

VIENNA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The 19 year old former wife of Clendenin J. Ryan Jr. of New York, whose marriage went speedily upon the rocks, angrily denounced today a judge's description of the union as "international gold digging."

"It's so easy to throw mud at a woman who has no chance to defend herself," she said. "I returned from America without a penny in my pocket, so you see what a skilful 'money hunter' I am!"

Plans to Wed Count.

The blonde former Countess Marie-Anne von Wurmbrand-Stuppach, whose marriage to Ryan was annulled in New York last month, said she would wed Count Paul Palffy as soon as she gets a Vatican decree of annulment.

"After a lull in the headlines as the misjudged wife of an American millionaire, I'll appreciate being a quiet little countess," she asserted.

"Loveliest Woman on Earth."

The count interrupted talk of his castles, restaurants and factories to bring out a batch of clippings on the Ryan case and say:

"Look here! The whole world is out to crush this young girl because she preferred to leave that dollar prince without taking a penny from him rather than stay with him just to become a rich woman.

"Having held the countess on my lap when she was a little baby and having known her ever since, I am convinced I am about to marry the finest, loveliest woman on earth. This lady deserves a husband who understands her."

The count is in his forties.

GALLI-CURCI DOES HIGH C; MAY GO HOME TOMORROW

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, opera singer, who was operated on a week ago yesterday at the Henrotin hospital for the removal of a goiter, was reported to be doing "exceptionally well" yesterday by Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, her physician. Dr. Kegel said that the opera singer might be allowed to leave the hospital tomorrow. He declared that as an indication that the operation has had no ill effects on her voice, Mme. Galli-Curci sang high C yesterday with the same power and quality as before.

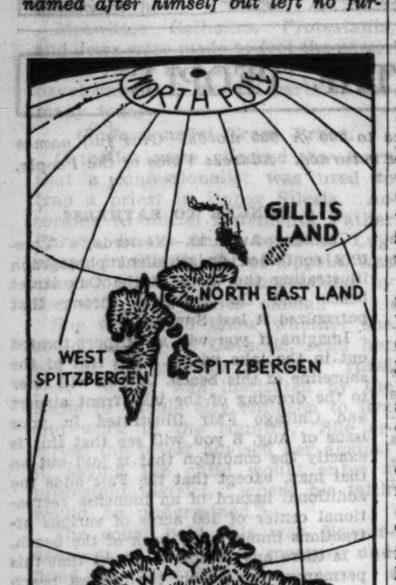
RUSSIA EXPLORES 'MYSTERY WAVES' AT TOP OF WORLD

Unknown Force Deflects Ships Off Course.

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—News of what was declared to be the first exploration of a mysterious region near the top of the world where some unknown force is said to turn vessels off their course was received in radio messages today from the Russian exploration ship Sadko.

It is in this zone that the legendary Gillis [or Gillds] land is said to exist. The messages asserted that the Sadko expedition had sighted on the horizon what it was thought might be this land.

[An English captain named Gillis, sailing northeast from Spitzbergen in 1707, sighted an island which he named after himself but left no further records concerning it. It was reported sighted at various other times, but of recent years geographers have considered that the island was White Island, one of the Spitzbergen group . This island was visited by a Norwegian explorer in August, 1898.]



Ships Steered Off Course.

The mysterious region of unknown forces lies north of the 81st parallel of latitude, northeast of Northeastland, second largest island of the Spitzbergen group.

Soviet scientists have reported that all vessels which previously tried to penetrate the region were turned mysteriously from their course before they could enter it.

The case of the Norwegian submarine Nautilus was cited as an example. The Nautilus, records here indicate, swerved unaccountably westward as it approached the zone in 1931, and although it had been steering northeast it returned to Spitzbergen from the west.

The Soviet icebreaker Krassin, which reached a point near 81 degrees 30 minutes north latitude, likewise experienced an unaccountable change in the direction, being turned to the southward.

Area Surrounded by Mist.

Soviet records show that still another vessel, the steamer Knipovich, reported a similar experience.

George Ushakoff, head of the Sadko expedition, said in a radio message:

"We crossed the southern border of the blank spot and approached the edge of the ice. We were surrounded by a heavy mist and the visibility was so poor that we could not send out our planes for observation.

"However, for a few minutes the mist lifted and we saw on the horizon what looked like land. We are remaining here in an effort to ascertain whether land really exists."

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall at Des Moines with Father

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's grandchildren, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, arrived here today with their father, Curtis M. Dall. Dall and his children came to Des Moines for a three day visit with Adjt. Gen. and Mrs. Charles H. Grahl and Gov. and Mrs. Clyde L. Herring.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In an account of the services commemorating the 123d anniversary of the Fort Dearborn massacre it was incorrectly stated that a wreath was placed on the plaque at the Michigan avenue bridge by a child from St. Vincent's orphanage. The wreath was placed by Virginia Mae Helm, great great granddaughter of Lieut. Helm, one of the survivors of the massacre.

A story in today's south side metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE states that the 31st annual orphans' automobile day outing will be held in Lincoln park on Friday. The outing will be held Wednesday.

MRS. JAMES W. ALSDORF.

James W. Alsdorf, 22 years old, and Miss Barbara Brach, 19 years old, both from socially prominent north shore families, were secretly married last night in a "midnight ceremony" before Justice of the Peace Henry F. Wallenwein of Waukegan.

Although their engagement had been announced last June 2 the sudden marriage came as a surprise, since a formal wedding had been planned for early in October.

Miss Brach, who graduated from Roycemore this June, is the daughter of Mrs. Bernhard M. Kirstein, 124 Greenleaf street, Evanston, with whom she lives, and Edwin J. Brach, 595 Sheridan road, Winnetka, head of the Brach Candy company.

The bridegroom is the son of Anthony J. Alsdorf, 650 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka, president of the A. J. Alsdorf corporation, importers. The young man is a director and secretary of the concern. He is a graduate of the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Brach's mother and step-father left for Europe yesterday and neither they, Mr. Brach, nor the Alsdorfs were aware of the elopement. The young people secured a license from Lew Hendee, county clerk of Lake county, and were married shortly before 12 o'clock.

Archibald Roosevelt Sails to Visit Son in Alaska

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Archibald Roosevelt and Dr. James Lippitt Clark, big game hunter, stowed their gun cases aboard ship and started for Alaska today. The long time friends will separate at Fairbanks, Roosevelt to visit his son, Archie Jr., who is digging fossils for the American Museum of Natural History, and Dr. Clark to hunt big game. Roosevelt also will do some hunting.

FALL VICTIM, 97, DIES.

ZENGE COUNSEL TO ASK PRIVATE MENTAL TESTS

Deny Insanity Defense Has Been Decided On.

There were indications yesterday that Mandeville W. Zenge, Missouri carpenter, may plead insanity in the mutilation murder of Prof. Walter J. Bauer, for which he is under indictment.

Zenge's attorneys, Joseph E. Green and Joseph R. Roach, served notice on Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan that they would appear tomorrow before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court with a petition seeking permission to have Zenge subjected to a thorough mental and physical examination by a private alienist.

The attorneys said they had chosen Dr. Harold S. Hulbert to examine their client. Dr. Hulbert was one of the alienists in the famous Loeb-Leopold murder case.

Denies Defense Is Revealed.

"This proposed examination," Attorney Green said, "is just for the purpose of getting all the facts at hand and does not necessarily imply that an insanity defense will be used. Our present defense is a plea of not guilty."

Though Assistant State's Attorney Coghlan declined to comment on whether he considered this move a direct indication that the defense planned to plead insanity, he did say that "they apparently intend to take advantage of every legal technicality." Coghlan said he would not oppose the petition tomorrow.

The prosecutor pointed out that shortly after Zenge's arrest he was subjected to a thorough examination by Dr. Harry Hoffman of the Cook county behavior clinic. Dr. Hoffman said at that time he considered Zenge sane.

Coroner's Jury Concurs.

At a fourth and final hearing of the inquest into Prof. Bauer's death on July 31 a coroner's jury sitting at the Grand Crossing police station yesterday returned a verdict of concurrence with the grand jury's decision in indicting Zenge.

Neither Zenge nor Mrs. Louise Bauer, widow of the slain chemistry professor, was at the brief hearing. Zenge is held at the county jail, and Mrs. Bauer is in "voluntary custody" at a place Prosecutor Coghlan refused to reveal. Mrs. Bauer is a former fiancée of Zenge. She was a head nurse in a hospital at Kirksville, Mo., where Bauer taught in the College of Osteopathy.

THOMPSON GOES TO JOLIET DEATH CELL WITH JEST

Slayer Wonders Who Will Get His Car.

Gerald Thompson, 26 years old, the Peoria machinist convicted of raping and slaying Mildred Hallmark, late yesterday entered the gates of the old state prison at Joliet where—unless an appeal to the Supreme court results in a new trial—he must die in the electric chair on Oct. 15.

Escorted by Sherif Marcus Olson from Peoria, Thompson was met at the diagnostic clinic, across the street from the prison proper, by Warden Frank Whipp. After a brief physical examination he was given khaki pants and a blue denim shirt, both several sizes too large for him, and taken to the death cell on the second floor of the solitary confinement building.

Tries to Jest with Guards.

Fighting to retain the composure that has marked all his actions since his arrest and through his trial before Judge Joseph E. Daily in the Peoria county Circuit court, Thompson half heartedly jested with his guards as he entered the prison.

"I wonder who will get my car," he said. "I've had some swell times in it."

The car he referred to was the one he used last June when he drove Miss Hallmark, 19 year old Peoria cafeteria hostess, into wooded Springdale cemetery and there ravished her. Thompson was arrested a week after the girl's stripped body was found in a culvert where he threw her after the attack.

Cell Is Near Death Chair.

Behind the grim prison walls, where he drops his identity and becomes "No. 1768," Thompson will be the only inmate awaiting execution. A guard will be on duty 24 hours a day near his cell, which is a scant 50 feet from the death chamber.

The sentence which a jury voted on July 31 was formally entered against Thompson Friday after Judge Daily overruled motions for a new trial. The tall, curly headed youth's counsel, Attorney Ren Thurman, has said that he will carry his appeal to the Supreme court. The appeal will be based on the grounds that at least one of the jurors was prejudiced against him. Thurman will also seek to have the conviction and sentence reversed on the grounds that Thompson is insane.

COMES THE REVOLUTION—AND HOW.

IV.—THE KERENSKY-ROOSEVELT HOUSE.

Remembering that the governmental corporation can act when the governmental department cannot, let us see how and to what extent American government has shifted its base, how and to what extent the corporation had supplanted the department, the freer agent taking the place of the restricted one.

Remember also that these corporations are in reality a mobilization of powers and national resources which have not as yet been put into full operation. They have not taken the field in force, but they are no longer emergency expedients. We are not trying to bridge a crisis with them. It is proposed that if necessary the constitution shall be changed to make way for the planned society which has as its basic principle Mr. Tugwell's control of capital by governmental allocations. With all its great enterprises the corporation state has only established contact.

Let it also be recognized that the New Deal did not invent the thing. The germ was in the Panama railroad, a seven million dollar corporation, the stock of which was purchased by the United States, its owner and operator. The directors of the Panama railroad are a bit freer to do as they please than are the directors of the New York Central, the North Western, or any other. The Panama railroad protects itself from truck and passenger car competition by preventing the building of a highway across the isthmus. Mr. Hoover did considerable with the germ in the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other creations of his administration, although he now professes amazement at what has happened.

The Roosevelt revolution picked up the idea and really went to town. The collectivist state as it has gathered its materials thus far consists in its major parts of 13 corporations or corporate authorities, 9 administrations, 7 banking organizations, and 8 bodies which are called variously systems, commissions, associations, councils, or boards. Some of the corporations are chartered under the laws of Delaware to obtain the freedom from restrictions which private corporations have been accused of seeking and the remainder are created by acts of congress. The corporation form permits an escape from the limitations and checks of departmental government.

Through these banking organizations, corporations, administrations, and authorities created outside of the old government system the planned society proceeds toward collectivism. It is not easy to separate the financial transactions of the new agencies of government. The loans and advances outstanding of the Reconstruction Finance corporation are over 3 billion 500 million dollars, which represent governmental interest and influence in banks, railroads, municipalities, and industries. In the mortgage business the collectivized government holds the plaster on nearly a million homes and the amount is 2½ billion dollars.

The Farm Credit administration, covering a system of banks, credit corporations, mortgage corporations, and loan associations, has farmers' notes for over 3 billion dollars. The AAA last year gave 4½ million rental and benefit checks to farmers, and as a taxing body took a half billion dollars from the consumers of farm products.

Since its establishment in May, 1933, it has taken from the shirt, the loaf of bread, and the table meat more than 800 million dollars, enough to run the ordinary government of the United States as it was in 1913. Incidentally, congress proposes to make available a billion dollars for farmers' homes. Emergency relief has taken well over 2 billion dollars and is just beginning to tap a fund of nearly 5 billion. One of the corporations has lent nearly 600 millions on farm commodities and has 300 millions outstanding.

As a firm of building contractors, engineers, and constructors the collectivist democracy has spent or supervised the spending of 2½ billions on 19,000 projects. One corporation is establishing fruit and vegetable canneries, flour mills, and handicraft enterprises. Another is undertaking house renovations, and a third is conducting homestead colonization schemes.

These are some of the materials that are already on the ground and being joined for the building of the Kerensky-Roosevelt house. More material is being ordered from congress and from day to day delivered.

The biggest business the world ever knew is the Kerensky-Roosevelt business. It cans peas, sells curling irons, milks cows, runs banks, railroads and electric power companies, deals in mortgages and corn, corrupts congress, subsidizes voters, bosses legislatures, has governors for office boys, shingles the roof, cuts the lawn, waters the flowers, feeds the family, shifts the population from this place to that, taxes the poor man's table, is after the rich man's estate, aims to destroy going concerns, extends destructive competition to its taxpayers, and says it stands at Runnymede for a new charter of human liberties.

The corporations of the New Deal not only create public debts, spend money and give it away, they not only compete in business on unfair terms and with unfair practices against the citizens forced to pay their governmental competitors' costs, they exercise powers which only a sovereignty can. The Supreme court has put its foot down on this, but it still goes on. They have passed laws and sent citizens to jail. They have spread taxes.

These are some of the tenons and mortises. They fit and reveal the plan of the house.

CLERGYMEN IN POLITICS.

A controversy arising among the Protestant laymen has reopened the question of clerical activity in politics. The Methodist Episcopal Laymen's Conference of the Central West has gone on record to express the belief that when a clergyman pleads in a civic or political cause he is doing so properly as a citizen but he is not representing the church. The Methodist laymen were obliged to defend their position when it was challenged by a Congregational layman who posed this question: "How does it come that business men so often presume to have such surpassing information as to the will of God concerning political, economic, industrial and social issues affecting the lives of all people?"

The question contains virtually the whole issue. When a clergyman speaks on a political question, as a person trained and ordained to interpret the word of God, he speaks as one who is not to be answered. The authority he would thus be presumed to bring into argument could not be opposed. There might be a difference of opinion between two clergymen as to interpretation, but the layman could not set himself up as having the clearer view or the proper sanction for his decisions.

The irresistible logic of such a political concession would drive the state directly into the control of the church. The only surviving political question would be whether all the churches could agree or which church would prevail. The secular spokesman could be accorded no authority. The church within its domain speaks with certainty on its articles of faith, which its communicants voluntarily accept. That authority cannot be transfered into the political field. The consequences are too apparent to require elaboration.

The clergy constitute a fine element of citizenship. The Methodist laymen who would divorce the ecclesiastical from the political grant that it may be regarded as a duty for the clergy as citizens to take an active interest in everything that concerns a good government and social order. In doing so, however, the clergyman's opinions have only the weight of good citizenship. He is not the voice of the church. On such occasions he joins the laity. This distinction is the essential one. It restrains the church from attempting to impose what it believes as a church upon the political government. This is the separation of church and state.

It is well known that when church and state are joined one will dominate the other. In their separate domains each is safe. When they meld neither is.

HYPHENATED AMERICANS.

The United States has two kinds of hyphenated societies. The activities of a small minority of them have attached to the term hyphenated American a meaning grossly unfair to the majority of our citizens of foreign birth. The test which separates the two is easily applied. In which direction does the society exert its power, toward Europe or toward America?

Americans rightly object to the hyphenated American organization which seeks to bind its members spiritually and politically to the old world while they enjoy the material benefits of the new. They have particular ground for resentment against organizations which seek to transplant from Europe prejudices which have no place in the new world.

But the society which looks upon hyphenation as a stepping stone from foreign to American citizenship deserves every support. Through such organizations American citizens of foreign birth extend aid and advice to more recently arrived fellow countrymen, assisting them in the task, always difficult, of adapting themselves to life in a new country.

Fortunately the majority of our hyphenated societies fall in this class. An outstanding example is the American-Hellenic Educational Progressive association, more familiarly known as Ahepa, which is to hold its annual convention in Chicago this week. Its dedicatory pledge, "to promote and encourage loyalty to the United States of America, obedience to its laws, and reverence for its history and traditions," is a hallmark of its value to its members and to the nation.

Editorial of the Day

AUTOS ON MACKINAC.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

Whether autos shall be permitted on Mackinac Island is mainly a question whether "quaintness" in a summer resort is more attractive—and therefore more profitable—than modern transportation facilities. Certainly horse drawn cabs seem more appropriate to the spirit induced by contemplation of an island so rich in historical associations, as headquarters of the far flung fur trade, as site of an important frontier fort, and as the center of much Indian lore.

Sentiment, however, will not cause the auto ban to be retained if the tourist trade cannot be revived by other means. The problem of making the island less expensive to visit could be solved, perhaps, by directing the straits ferry on each or every other run to stop at Mackinac. It is only a few minutes off the direct route and would provide cheaper transportation to the island than is furnished by the privately operated boats. Furthermore, the state might set aside parking space on the island, or at St. Ignace and Mackinaw City, where cars of visitors could be stored until the owners were ready to leave. The Mackinac state park commission is reported to be considering the latter proposal.

If the island were made more readily accessible the time honored prohibition against cars probably would not present an obstacle to tourist trade. However, the reputation Mackinac has gained as a gambling resort may have discouraged the class of visitors the commission desires to attract. Amid efforts to popularize the island this possibility deserves attention.

THE ISSUE

Extracts from an address by Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa at Starved Rock, Ill., Aug. 8, 1935.

If there was one idea which the framers of the constitution intended should be left on the other side of the Atlantic and permanently barred from American soil it was the doctrin of immunity for the executive power. The very essence of the new federal government which was to be erected lay in the limitations to be placed upon its authority. Each of its acts or the acts of its agents were to be always subject to judicial review. The whole concept of an independent judiciary appointed for life and headed by the Supreme court was designed to insure enforcement of these limitations.

Only thus could protection be provided against aggrandizement of authority by either the legislative or administrative branches of the government—each jealously regarding itself as the true agent of the popular will. Indeed, so well has this system worked during 138 years, it should be noted, that but forty-eight laws passed by congress have been declared invalid. Four of these decisions have been handed down during the present administration; all relate to improper delegations of power to the executive.

What is "personal" government? The Supreme court has defined it as blanket grants of authority without the laying down by congress of specific rules within which that authority is to be exercised. It was held, in other words, that under no circumstances can the legislative power itself be transferred to the executive so that orders issued by the President shall have the effect of statutory law. The President can only interpret or define a rule of law previously made by congress.

He can assign to each individual farmer his proportion of nearly twenty staple crops which are now placed under federal control. These include everything from cotton, wheat, corn, and tobacco to potatoes, fruits, and nuts, but excluding apples, and vegetables such as asparagus, which are suitable for canning. He can then assign purchase and marketing quotas to each handler of such produce, inspect the books and records of all foodstuff manufacturers, and by "orders" virtually control such businesses. He can declare a surplus to exist for these designated crops; he can use government moneys in the purchase of excess supplies and arrange for their disposal.

These are but a few of the plenary powers conferred upon the secretary of agriculture. Yet however able and omniscient he may be, I deny that any single individual can be reasonably expected to perform such a multitude of functions. It is repugnant to our system of government to permit any official to decree such sentences of economic life or death. What really happens of course is that this authority is delegated in turn to minor bureau chiefs who prepare orders for the secretary's signature. Thus some obscure individual, of whom the public has never heard and who in most instances is a political appointee approved by Patronage Distributor Farley, is placed in control of the destinies of forty million farmers to guess against rain and sun and the purposes of the Almighty! And the result of this thinly veiled autocracy is called a Planned Economy! To me it is unbelievable that American farmers will accept this status of robots blindly goose stepping to directions from commissars enthroned at Washington.

Let me give you one further example of this type of "personal" government on which we are hazarding our whole future as a nation and which recently brought down the wrath of the Supreme court. Under the late NRA a Texas business man was cited and convicted for violating one of Gen. Johnson's famous ukases. It was simply one of many thousand "executive orders" issued for the regimentation of American industry, of which it happened he had never heard. When the case was appealed the Supreme court asked for a copy of the order on which the complaint was based. A hasty search disclosed that by some strange accident this particular order had never been officially published. Yet here was a citizen about to be haled off to jail for breaking a rule the existence of which was known only to NRA's "cracker-downers"!

The administration airily dismisses these cases, which I can cite by the score, as mere "incidents." Yet they seem to me to differ little from those grievances of which the colonists complained. They are the excesses which always must accompany the use of arbitrary authority. The history of democratic government has been one of continuous struggle to restrain its own burocrats.

Is it any wonder, ladies and gentlemen, that everywhere there is grave concern or that a sense of peril pervades the country? Such acts raise issues far more vital to the nation's future than those which spring from the depression. Is it not now understandable why Gov. Lowden has issued a call to arms for defense of the constitution?

You have done me the signal honor of asking me to define the issues of the next national campaign. In reply let me state that in my judgment there is but one issue. Gravely and reluctantly do I say it: Today, tomorrow, and next year that issue is Franklin Delano Roosevelt! With all deference to the high office he holds President Roosevelt should be subjected to the following charges:

He has repudiated the platform pledges made by his party and upon which he was elected to office.

He has committed the country to unsound monetary experiments condemned by nearly all recognized economists and in consequence has disrupted American foreign trade with serious and permanent injury to agriculture and industry.

He has delayed economic recovery by forcing upon the country dubious measures of reform which, by penalizing thrift, strike at the national economy, and by political subsidy under the guise of "relief" break down the morale and self-reliance of great numbers of our citizens.

He has held out false and illusionary hopes both to the unfortunate and to workers by advocacy and passage of laws which are not only impossible of administration but which are known to be almost certainly unconstitutional.

He has debauched the civil service by the employment and preferment in federal emergency agencies of a vast army of political spoilsmen without knowledge or training for the posts they hold.

He has remained indifferent to his promises of balancing the budget or reducing national expenditures and has encouraged extravagances and the wasting of public funds which have placed the American people under a burden of debt that now threatens the solvency of the government itself.

He has, in public utterances, been disrespectful to the Supreme court of the United States and has sought by deliberate attempt to alibi the failure of the New Deal by placing the blame falsely on the courts.

Because these acts have been performed smilingly and with an engaging good nature we must not be misled as to their ultimate consequences for the nation. So that public vigilance may be aroused it is of the highest importance that the people thoroughly understand the inward purpose of this program which Mr. Roosevelt sponsors.

TEA AND COFFEE: STIMULANTS OR POISONS?

MOST of the nations of the world use tea and coffee for the caffeine effect—and real connoisseurs do not dilute these stimulating beverages with sugar or cream or otherwise alter their taste. Of course, when we add sugar or cream we add food value. Otherwise the principal effects are to make the individual keener and more alert and to dissipate drowsiness. Careful tests have shown that among the properties of caffeine [if an overdose is not taken] we may list an increased response of the functions of the mind; ideas become clearer and thoughts bubble up without effort. A German investigator has reported that soldiers who were given tea and coffee could endure more prolonged and more severe fatigue than those who did not receive either of these extracts. Even without food, soldiers could be kept going for many hours on tea or coffee alone.

Other responses of the body to caffeine are a more powerful heart action, a slight increase in respiration, added secretion of the kidneys, and a slight rise in blood pressure.

Too much caffeine may show itself in nervous irritability, mental confusion, wakefulness, and even delirium. Coffee headaches are not uncommon, and when too much is used the patient may have sensations of vertigo and nausea. Not infrequently muscular tremors and stiffness, cardiac palpitations, and other circulatory symptoms become manifest. There are tea and coffee topers—plenty of them—individuals who take entirely too much caffeine. In these persons there is frequently observed a general lowering of physical resistance and, in order to maintain mental alertness, larger and larger quantities are required. If excess consumption continues serious nervous or circulatory symptoms may ensue. Loss of appetite and constipation are quite common, and palpitation of the heart may become troublesome.

Housekeepers differ in the quantity of beverage made from a pound of ground coffee. Some will secure but 25 to 30 cups; others, 75 or more. The way in which coffee is made will prove a factor in determining the amount of caffeine that it contains. Boiling extracts the least, while percolating [the drip method] —the modern way of making coffee—extracts the most. As a rule each cup of coffee will contain about two grains of caffeine; of tea, one-half to one and one-half grains. The average person need not be considered overdosed when taking from six to ten grains of caffeine in each 24 hours. Naturally, this will differ with the temperament and the physique of the individual. One who is nervous, thin, and high strung may react as powerfully to two grains of caffeine [one cup of coffee] as a phlegmatic, stolid, muscular person will to ten grains.

We are inclined to forget, in prescribing diets, that those who have been taking six to eight grains of caffeine per day as a routine procedure, and who have been doing it for years, will miss the stimulant if coffee or tea is withheld. In a given case it may not be wise to allow either of these beverages, but their abrupt withdrawal must be considered in evaluating the symptoms of the patient.

It would seem obvious that 15 to 25 grains of caffeine per day are not required by anybody. Ten grains, or five cups of coffee, would appear to be the maximum, as the effect on the nervous system and the circulation after a time cannot but be felt through continuous overdosing.

A pleasant sensation of well being is attached to a normal consumption of tea and coffee, but this may be overdone just as may be the use of food. Many of us have observed individuals accustomed to large quantities of tea and coffee become depressed and exhibit other unfavorable signs when deprived for even a few hours of their accustomed stimulant.

There is no valid defense for the all too prevalent custom of giving growing children either of these beverages.

VITAMIN D MILK.

A mother writes: How is vitamin D milk prepared?

Is there danger in its use?

REPLY.

There are three generally recognised methods: [1] by adding to the milk an oil concentrate of vitamin D; [2] by irradiating the milk directly; [3] by feeding irradiated yeast to milch cows. There have been some reports to the effect that the direct irradiation of milk is preferable, but positive proof is lacking.

There seems to be no possible danger of feeding an excess of vitamin D through the use of irradiated milk, or milk produced by cows fed with irradiated yeast, although there may be an objection if too much oil concentrate is added. It is such a simple matter, however, to regulate the amount by means of proper tests that this objection need not hold. It is assumed, of course, that the oil concentrate is sterile, and that contamination of the milk will not occur during the mixing process.

Every child must receive enough vitamin D from some source to prevent rickets.

LIME WATER.

S. G. writes: Of what value is lime water in the preparation of the baby's food?

REPLY.

Alkalies have been used extensively in modifying milk. Among these are lime water, sodium citrate, sodium bicarbonate, and milk of magnesia. Some years ago it was thought that these substances were needed to "sweeten" the baby's stomach, or to overcome the acidity of cow's milk. Later certain writers stated that lime water would insure a powdery curd to the milk and hence assist digestion. The amount recommended was approximately 5 per cent of each feeding. At the present time the use of lime water has been generally discarded, as it has been found to have no particular value. The baby can obtain the needed calcium from milk, and the alkaline character of lime water is of no value to digestion. If you should happen to be out of lime water in preparing modified milk, the chances are that the baby will be fully as well off.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

LONDON.—A new tank has been introduced into the British army of a kind which it is claimed exists in none other. The function of this weapon is primarily, though not solely, to accompany infantry during a bayonet attack. A careful study of Japanese methods in Manchuria appears to have convinced the war department that devastating machine gun fire on advancing infantry will be a powerful feature of another European war.

To meet the exigencies of this situation the Rolls-Royce company has turned out a heavily armored tank whose "nose," four feet in width, is plated with armor plating from gunturrets of obsolete ships. At its extreme width the tank is but five feet. It is, therefore, claimed that it offers in an attack over rough country a small mark to field guns.

The length of the tank is 18 feet. Its crew is composed of three persons, one driver and two gunners. By a simple spring device the driver can release at a range of 50 yards a hail of small gas bombs. These are thrown from a catapult, which is automatically fed by a ribbon feeder, like a machine gun.

The interior of the tank is "gas masked." The driver looks through a port hole of strong glass.

There are two machine guns. One is vertical and is intended to beat off a swooping airplane that may endeavor from a low altitude to put the tank out of action. This gun is in the rear of the tank and is mounted on a turntable which gives it a sweep of the heavens at all four points of the compass.

Experiments are now being tried with mounting these tanks with the new anti-aircraft "pom-poms," which have proved a success in the navy. There is some doubt in expert anti-aircraft gunnery circles as to whether this will ever become practical. The lumbering of the tank over rough ground would immediately deflect the missile, it is claimed. If it were firing at an objective at a high altitude a mole hill would be sufficient, it is said, to make the projectile miss its target by a mile. But there are supporters of the idea that the "pom-pom" should be mounted on motor tractors with duplicate motion, i. e., wheels and caterpillars. Experiments are now proceeding along this line.

INTERNATIONAL MARRIAGE.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man on a visit in Sweden met a girl there and persuaded her to come to the United States with him. Landing in New York, they were married. This was in 1922. The man was 62 years old, the girl 22. The man was an American citizen, the girl Swedish. After living together for six months they separated. In 1925 the girl married another man. She had lost all track of her first husband and [1] she was told that if she was away from him over two years the marriage was "off." She is now happily married and has children. She has been told her first husband is dead. 2. Is the girl now an American citizen? 3. Can she be held for bigamy? 4. Is the marriage to her second husband legal? 5. If she is not an American citizen can she get the papers? Both husbands were American citizens. D. H.

1. There is no such rule.
2. No.
3. Technically, yes, but such prosecution does not seem probable.
4. No.
5. Take the matter up with the naturalization office in the new Postoffice building.

OUTER DRIVE LANDSCAPE.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—Why not utilize the steel fence that obstructs our view on the east and place it on the west side of the drive, thus shutting out the view of a long train of freight cars and the Illinois Central trains? In time it might be covered with vines and thus beautify our south side outer drive. S. A. H.

During the period of A Century of Progress this fence was, of course, absolutely necessary. Also, until the conclusion of the wrecking of the structures, it is deemed desirable to have this fence in position to keep people out of the grounds during the demolition program. Actually, the fence does not belong to the commissioners, but is the property of A Century of Progress or the wrecking contractor.

From a park standpoint I believe that we can treat the railroad tracks much better with planting than we could with a fence. This is particularly true where we have sufficient ground for plantation, such as you will find south of Oakwood boulevard. However, we are very pleased to know that you are interested in one of our problems and it might be possible for us to secure portions of the fence for areas where the plantation treatment cannot be used to advantage. GEORGE T. DONOGHUE,
General Superintendent Chicago Park District.

SCHOOL PORTABLES.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—I want to buy a few school portables. I heard that the board of education was selling them. Can you give me information where to go to see about buying portables from the schools? W. M.

You are advised that the school board within the last year disposed of close to 400 portable school buildings through sale. I regret to state, however, that at the present time there are none for sale. I have placed your name on the available list and shall be glad to advise you when and if the superintendent of schools releases additional portables that may be disposed of by sale.
JOHN C. CHRISTENSEN,
Architect, Board of Education.

TITLE TRANSFERRED.

Ipava, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I owned two 160 acre farms. It was understood between us that one was mine and the other his, but both were in his name. Mine had a mortgage on it and when foreclosure was threatened my husband deeded it to me. 1. Do you think this deed will stand? 2. The banker threatens to have the deed set aside and collect for my husband's debts. Can he do this? My money was given me by my people and if I lose this I lose all. The deed has been in my name three and one-half years. M. S.

1. Yes, but of course you take the title subject to existing mortgages.

2. This implies that additional facts are involved which you have not stated to us. We advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

OPEN LETTER TO MR. GARNER.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 10.—I have just written as follows to Vice President Garner:

"On June 21 the Women's Committee of Louisiana, standing upon its constitutional right of petition, asked for a redress of grievances, stating that the grievances had been committed by the senate itself. You selected Senator Walter George—the very man accused by us of whitewashing our charges—as judge of the petition and he denounced it through the press as 'scurrilous.'

"On July 2 I wrote Senator George, pointing out that the question had nothing to do with so-called scurrility, the one question being: Are our charges true? I stressed the fact that the senate owes it to the nation either to clear its name or to discredit the maker of those charges. I urged Senator George to insist that I be cited for contempt, tried in public hearings, and, if the statements be false, punished. I have received no reply to that letter.

"I call to your attention as president of the senate that our petition meets every possible requirement and that we stand ready with counsel to prove our sworn charges before any senate committee that has the courage to investigate the vicious fraud by which Huey Long secured a seat in the senate for John H. Overton.

"What sort of a senate have we? Are Americans to understand that the United States senate winks at corruption if committed by senators? Above all, will this Democratic controled senate kill the constitutional right of petition?

"The right of petition was sacred to our forefathers and to the framers of the constitution. Indeed the colonists, throwing off the yoke of tyranny, listed in the Declaration of Independence the following intolerable grievance: 'Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury.'

"Louisiana women are in the position of those colonists; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. The senate has rebuffed us steadily and has protected Huey Long.

"Again I state that the senate should either clear its name or discredit me. I now urge you, Mr. Garner, to insist that I be cited for contempt, tried in public hearings, and, if the statements be false, punished.

"Once more I fling down the glove. Will you take it up?"

HILDA PHELPS HAMMOND,
Chairman, the Women's Committee of Louisiana.

ABOUT TRUCKS.

Chicago, Aug. 8. — Your editorial in today's TRIBUNE, "Deliver All Packages in Rear," had reference to freight trucks monopolizing the highways. Eventually the interstate trucking business will have to be segregated. Each year this business becomes a greater menace to passenger trafic.

There are two alternatives as I see it. Let the government finance the purchase of all interstate trucking companies for the railroads, and also out of the four billion dollar work fund let the government finance the building of concrete roads on the railroads' rights of way. Then outlaw trucks on the highways, except for making deliveries in the towns and cities. The government could be reimbursed by a percentage of the receipts.

The other alternative is for the government to build separate roads for bus and truck trafic, which would not be as satisfactory either from a segregative or a remunerative point of view.

EASY ON THE EYES.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The announcement in Monday's paper of your improvement in size of type was welcome news to those with sensitive eyes. Others who may not now appreciate it may later learn it has deferred the day when they are forced to see an oculist.

GEORGE R. JARVIS.

A DANGER TO BATHERS?

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Yesterday's TRIBUNE contained an excellent photograph illustrating the value of the Oak street beach and the immense throng that patronized it last Sunday.

Imagine if you will an airport located out in the lake within 1,600 feet of the shoreline of this beach. If you will refer to the drawing of the lake front airport and Chicago Fair illustrated in your issue of Aug. 8 you will see that this is exactly the condition that is laid out on that map, except that the Fair adds the additional hazard of an immense recreational center of 180 acres of various attractions immediately back of the beach.

Is there any reason to expect that this permanent fair beach, the nearest beach south of the loop, will be any less attractive to the people of Chicago as a bathing facility than the Oak street beach, the nearest beach north of the loop and more distant from it?

Imagine again an airplane having to make a forced landing at this spot like the one that landed in a New York parking lot Sunday. EUGENE A. RUMMLER.

SURPRISING.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The complaint of Mr. Joseph Novak which appeared in this column a few days ago was quite surprising to the undersigned, who, for the last ten years in their capacity of officers of an association of over 300 taxpayers in the 23d ward, are more than ordinarily interested.

The purpose of this letter is to refute the statement of Mr. Novak, that the condition of this ward is "positively disgusting." This statement is entirely without foundation. The real fact is that we have always been proud of having the best kept streets and alleys in the city. Our garbage collection has been and is regular, except sometimes during a period of heavy snow.

If the service appears inadequate, as Mr. Novak states, it is probably because his garbage receptacle is too small for the needs in his particular case. The remedy then is obvious.

FRANK W. MRKVICKA,
President.

Secretary, the Central Improvement Association of the 23d Ward.

AMATEURS IN A PROFESSIONAL SPORT.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—In today's Voice we read the definition of democracy: "A system of government in which you grab everything you can get your hands on." Could it be possible that even in local government these tactics have become a necessary qualification in seeking a political position?

Both my husband and I have been Democratic precinct captains for almost fifteen years; neither of us has ever held a political job nor ever accepted a cent. Apparently such indiscreet behavior warants no consideration, and, if anything, is probably looked upon as a very unfavorable qualification by the Democratic managing committee. Nevertheless, it is a comfortable, a very comfortable, feeling to be able to walk erect without the interference of ants in a certain spot. No, not in the vest pocket.

GRASSHOPPER.

CORRECTING MR. HENNING.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Would you be kind enough to let me point out an error in Mr. Henning's article upon the Republican presidential possibilities of 1936? He writes: "Prior to 1928 it was commonly held that neither major party would go west of the Mississippi for a candidate. Then the Republicans went to California for Mr. Hoover."

These sentences should read: "Prior to 1928 it was commonly held that neither major party would go outside of these United States for a candidate. Then the Republicans went to England for Mr. Hoover." A HOOVER VICTIM.

HITLER AND BRAIN TRUST MAP NEW GERMAN POLICIES

Confessional Used to Trap Priest; End Freemasonry.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler held an extraordinary conference in Nuremberg today in which outstanding men of the extremist wing of the Nazi party predominated.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda; Julius Streicher, leading anti-Jewish agitator; Walter Darre, minister of agriculture; Frank Rosenberg, commissar of justice, and Adolf Wagner, Bavarian home minister, were among the men summoned to Hitler's side to decide on the policy he will outline at the party caucus next month.

Meantime Catholics, Protestants, and Jews were made to feel the power of the Nazis in a series of revealing developments in several parts of Germany today.

Confessionalist Traps Priest.

Catholics were shocked to learn that a confessionalist was used to trap a priest in Upper Silesia. According to official statements, Father Chroba, in the small town of Lugniemn, in the district of Oppeln, was asked for advice in a confessional by the wife of a police official.

She wanted to know whether she could, as a good Catholic, send her son to the country for the "rural year" which was instituted by the Nazis to enable city children to live and work in the country. She asserted the priest advised her against it, saying the child would enter a protestant district, "where his faith would be undermined."

The court held this was discouragement of the Hitler measure and fined the priest $200.

Catholic Youth Club Banned.

In Duesseldorf the Young Men's Catholic association was dissolved because its members indulged in brawls with Hitler youths, who charged that the Catholic youths waylaid them. The association members had also gone on a bicycle excursion in a closed formation, displaying the confessional flag, despite the decree forbidding such excursions.

The Catholics, authorities found, "showed a lack of respect for laws and were endangering public security and order."

Protestants incurred Nazi displeasure in Breslau where the synod of the Silesian confessional movement was dissolved.

Wilhelm Frick, home minister, issued a "death sentence" decree on Freemasonry. The decree called for immediate dissolution of all existing lodges throughout the country.

Yells of "death to the Jews" resounded from trucks filled with Storm Troopers who drove through Berlin tonight. The trucks were decorated with Nazi and anti-Jewish slogans such as "blood and life belong to the fuehrer," or "Jews, look out. The Storm Troopers are watching you."

Streicher Gets Action.

Similar demonstrations were organized throughout Germany, indicating that Streicher's recent Jew baiting addresses are bearing fruit. The smashed window panes of a number of Jewish shops were further evidence.

Goebbels, to stress his allegiance to the king of Nazi Jew baiters, promised him "collaboration in the uncompromising fight for purification of German blood and for the final strengthening of the feeling of race in the racially conscious German state."

The pledge was published only in Streicher's Nuremberg paper.

Economic difficulties of the reich are hinted at in the Deutsche Volkswirt, an economic magazine, which frankly speaks of the "unavoidable necessity of introducing new taxes."

Pave Way for New Taxes.

The Frankfurter Zeitung believes that public works, which are mostly responsible for the reëmployment of Germany's jobless, could and should be financed with the help of new loans or taxes.

Thus the German public is being prepared for new financial burdens.

Secrecy has prevailed about the sums actually paid to the state and its affiliations by German business. The curtain was lifted slightly when the periodical Der Ring revealed that in 1934 the Rhenish Steel works of Essen paid an additional 32.43 per cent of its pay roll for social and welfare insurance and expenditures, not to speak of its income and other taxes.

Other firms, the Der Ring asserts, spend even greater sums to display their "allegiance to the social welfare principles of Naziism."

MEASURE LIGHT FROM SKY WITH TINY TELESCOPE

Same Instrument Used to Open World's Fair.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The same photo-electric instrument which relayed power radiated from the star Arcturus to open A Century of Progress exposition is now being used in the new McDonald observatory in the Davis mountains of Texas to carry out an important new program of study of the brightness of the night sky.

This was made known yesterday by Dr. Otto Struve, director of Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., who is also in charge of the McDonald observatory, which is expected to be opened with its 84 inch telescope in about a year. In the meantime work is being done with smaller instruments, the photoelectric box, for instance, being described as the smallest telescope in the world. McDonald observatory is under joint control of the University of Chicago and the University of Texas, but is staffed by the Yerkes group.

Measure Intensity of Light.

Dr. Struve, who has just returned from six weeks of lecturing at Harvard observatory, explained that the work of measuring the intensity of light in interstellar space, light that is supposed to be a diffusion from a dusty haze that makes up "empty space," is to be one of the major activities at both Yerkes and McDonald for the next year. Conditions at Davis mountain are reported to be ideal for this work, as there is no interference from earthly light.

The vast dynamic picture of the night sky presented by modern astrophysics may be compared with a color organ, which plays its notes in beams of light. As it streams into man's limited vision he may interpret this poetically as the music of the spheres or the light that never was on land or sea. Poets are often right.

To the astrophysicists, however, who seek to reconcile the radiation from the stars with the behavior of electrons in captured atoms below, it all becomes a matter of fact and figures, with each year seeing a narrowing of the unknown.

Aim at Point in Sky.

"This is a study of matter in interstellar space," he said. "The spectroscopic instrument has been designed at Yerkes by C. T. Elvey. It is probably the smallest telescope in the world, with practically no lens. It is a photo-electric cell directed at a point in the sky, registering the amount of light from an area twenty times larger than the moon. It is mounted on a vertical stand and is the instrument that was used for opening the World's Fair. It now registers in a curve on photographic paper the intensity of the measured light. The power is converted into a photograph.

"The interesting thing about it is that the light recorded is not essentially the light of the stars. It turns out that the light of the stars contributes less than one-third of the quantity measured. The rest comes from unknown sources.

"We must first eliminate the known sources of light. One of these is the zodiacal light, a cone of light that extends from the western sky. It is believed that this is caused by a ring of dust particles surrounding the sun, the last remains of a nebulous cloud. This is a disc of dust in the solar system. The conical, diffused reflection is seen after sunset.

Counter-Glow Opposite Sun.

"Other sources of sky light are known, such as the counter-glow or gegenschein, a spot of light, extra faint, which is always visible in the sky exactly opposite the sun. At midnight when the sun is deepest below the horizon, the counter-glow is at its highest. It is so faint that it has been observed by few persons.

"The sources of light that remain are what particularly interest us. The problem we are trying to solve is whether the light comes from reflection of starlight in the spaces between the stars. There is evidence that space is filled with dust particles. The light of stars is made red as it passes this space. This suggests a vast amount of dust in interstellar space. If this is so we should observe it by getting its reflection.

"At Yerkes we have started a related program. We are using the 40 inch telescope with a built in instrument which is called the Fabry photometer. We have invented a new purpose for this instrument.

Photographs Spots in Sky.

"It is attached to the eye end of the telescope and photographs small spots of the sky for brightness. In this we reduce the size of the area. We want to eliminate starlight. We make the spot extra small, about two minutes of arc in diameter, or one 250th of the area of the moon, in contrast with twenty times the area.

"What we are particularly interested in observing are the dark nebulae which the late Prof. Barnard discovered at Yerkes several years ago. The problem is to see whether there is any light from these areas which ordinary photographs do not show."

In a recent bulletin on the contents of interstellar space, C. G. Abbott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, writes:

"Space is no longer to be conceived of as completely empty in those regions not occupied by the individual stars and the bright nebulae. The whole intervening regions are populated by obscuring gases so very rare, it is true, as to be far beyond our best vacuums, but still probably containing about the same mixture of chemical elements that we find in the sun or the earth's crust. Besides these gases astronomers are now generally convinced that there is also in space a very rare dusty haze made up of material particles."

Prof. F. E. Ross of the Yerkes staf has completed the first part of his atlas of the Milky Way and is now making the second part, the southern part of the galaxy. It is hoped to send an expedition to the southern hemisphere for this work.

FORECASTS RUSH TO PAY TAX UNDER NEW WAIVER LAW

Gill Reports Many Seek to Avoid Penalties.

Tax collections will speed up this week, County Treasurer Gill predicted yesterday as he made public the latest collection figures on the levies for the years from 1928 to 1933. Collections now total from 89.08 per cent for 1928 to 60.73 per cent for 1933.

Gill's forecast was based on a new law which permits the treasurer to waive 50 per cent of the penalties on delinquent taxes of income bearing properties and to waive all penalties on property used exclusively for homes. Thousands of applications have been sent to taxpayers who wish to take advantage of the new law and Gill expects them to be returned this week in large numbers.

Must Pay 1933 in Full.

Penalties can be waived for the years from 1928 to 1932, inclusive. The current 1933 taxes must be paid in full, however, before the taxpayers can take advantage of the waivers.

Property Owners Await Decision.

Collections for the last few months have been retarded by doubt as to whether the waiver law of the Saltiel seven installment collection bill would be placed in effect. Operation of the waiver law will clarify the situation and speed payments, Gill believes.

6000 cu. FEET OF CONDITIONED AIR

THOUSANDS of people visit the Lain Chapel every month—because more services are held in the Lain Chapel than in any other in Chicago. And their comfort is assured; their health protected, even on the hottest days.

FIRST IN CHICAGO

Lain's is the first Chapel to have a modern Air-Conditioned System. Every minute 6000 cubic feet of air is washed, refrigerated and circulated throughout entire building. Humidity is also controlled.

So when there is a service at Lain's—do not hesitate to attend. There is an abundance of purified air at the right temperature for season or attendance.

AT LAIN'S CHAPEL

more services are held in one month than the average Chapel has in a year. This greatly reduces the Lain cost per funeral—makes possible lower prices—although it is one of the most up-to-date Chapels in the country.

All Chapel services, regardless of price, include the exclusive services of the

MAYOR IN JAIL FOR 3 MONTHS FREED ON WRIT

Indiana High Court Acts in Utility Row.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Mayor C. W. H. Bangs, of Huntington, obtained from the Indiana Supreme court today a writ of supersedeas to enable him to leave the Huntington county jail, where he has been confined since May 8.

He had refused to file a bond or satisfy a judgment of approximately $1,500 won by the Northern Indiana Power company as damages for violation of a temporary restraining order issued by Special Judge David E. Smith in Huntington Circuit court.

$2,000 Bond Posted.

Claude Cline, city attorney of Huntington, presented the petition for the writ following the city's defeat by Judge Smith on Friday in its resistance to a suit for a permanent injunction against extension of Huntington's street lighting plant into the commercial field. Bond of $2,000 was posted and Supreme Court Judge Walter E. Trainor granted the writ.

Bangs, who is publisher of a Huntington newspaper, began his fight against the Northern Indiana Power company immediately upon taking office Jan. 1. He contended residents have the right to take electricity from the city power lines, though that system originally was built for street lighting purposes only. The city plant service is cheaper than that of the private utility.

Cite Mayor, Five Citizens.

After the mayor and five citizens had been found guilty of contempt of court for violating the injunction restraining them from extending the city lines, Bangs signed the bonds of the five but refused to post bond for himself. He asserted he would "go to jail and stay there if necessary for the people of Huntington."

Tension was high in the town during the first few days of Bangs' incarceration. Mobs milled around the county jail and talked of forcibly freeing the mayor. It was believed one such plot was frustrated by the persuasive powers of the wife of Sherif Moses Johnson.

The city will appeal from the Friday ruling, but until the judgment of Judge Smith is set aside, both the city and all individuals are legally stopped from adding any more commercial users to the city lines.

Claims Official Capacity.

When the mayor went to jail he announced he would not give bond for payment of the judgment because he had acted in his official capacity as mayor of Huntington.

Judge Smith held, however, the damages done the power company were the result of acts of Bangs in his individual capacity. When Judge Smith granted the permanent injunction the only hope of the mayor to escape the personal contempt judgment lay in reversal of the injunction case by the Supreme court. No ruling can be expected there for many months.

Soviet City Built on Gold Field, Geologists Claim

The geologists discovered evidence of the gold deposit in excavations for sewerage repairs on one of the principal downtown thoroughfares. The government owns most of the buildings and grounds of the city.

FREE ICE PLEAS MAINTAIN PACE OF MIDSUMMER

Aged Couple's Plight Told in Typical Letter.

Summer may be waning, but appeals to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund still are coming at the high rate which prevailed during the midsummer heat.

The reason for this is simply that although milk spoils more quickly at 95 degrees, it still spoils steadily at 85 and will continue to spoil for several degrees on down—without ice.

Here are a few excerpts from letters received in yesterday's mail:

"My wife and I are old. We haven't had ice all summer and our food always spoils. My wife eats it—she has to eat something—and so is worse off now than ever before."

Other Letters Tell Problems.

"My three babies all are sick. The oldest is 5. The youngest is 7 months. I can't keep their milk fresh without ice."

"Tommy got home from the hospital yesterday after having his tonsils removed. I hate to ask for anything that smacks of charity, but he really needs ice for an ice pack, and I can't buy any."

All of these appeals will be answered if readers of THE TRIBUNE make it possible.

Current contributions to the ice fund are:

Memory of Sarah Fare	$ 5.00

Flossmoor Children Give Play.

The children of the Flossmoor Vacation Play school gave a play, "The Magic Ring," on Tuesday. Its gate receipts, $6, were sent in to the Camp Algonquin fund yesterday, bringing the fund total to $2,799.

"It gives them great pleasure," wrote Mrs. C. G. Mead, director of the school, "to share in sending a mother or child to the country."

Camp Algonquin, summer camp operated on the shores of the Fox river by the United Charities of Chicago, is supported by voluntary contributions of readers of THE TRIBUNE. Nine dollars will provide a two weeks' outing for a needy mother or child.

Contributions for either fund should be sent to the Cashier, Tribune Tower. All donations will be acknowledged in the columns of this paper.

POLICE RIP POISON GAS PLANT FROM EVANSTON HOME

The Evanston police were called to the home of Joseph Hathaway at 2326 Grey avenue yesterday to remove a small chemical laboratory and a poison gas generating apparatus found in the basement of the home. Hathaway, a public accountant at 19 South La Salle street, was arrested several days ago and held in bonds of $25,000 when he confessed that he planned to slay and bury Miss Ann Fergus, 44 years old, of the Parkway hotel. Several detective magazines, thumb marked at stories of poison murders, were also found. The police were called by Hathaway's wife, Lucille, who said that she feared for the safety of herself and her three children.

THEY FIND THE JOY OF LIVING CAREFREE WINTER DAYS AND NIGHTS WELL WORTH THE SMALL EXTRA COST

In Chicago and vicinity, for 35,045 users, gas heat has eliminated old-time heating worries - has been responsible for a greatly increased standard of living. Eighty per cent of all gas heat installations are in residential and apartment buildings.

Gone forever from these homes are the old coal shovel, the barrels of ashes, the furnace worries and grimy tasks of old-fashioned coal heat. Homes today, equipped with modern gas heat, are a joy to live in. For 125,000 people in this area, gas heat has become one of the most cherished home possessions.

To the men, gas heat means increased leisure in a new found freedom from furnace cares. No more shoveling coal, hauling ashes for them. Less work for women, too, no constant cleaning of draperies, walls and furniture. Gas heat is clean and entirely automatic. There's nothing to do but set a thermostat conveniently placed on the living room wall.

Gas heat, according to this army of satisfied users, is well worth investigation by every home. They report that gas heat has been more than an ideal fuel. It has bettered their standards of living - increased their joy of life - in a way that nothing else could. Investigate gas heat now. For full particulars call your nearest gas company office.

WHITE SOX SPLIT; CUBS DEFEAT DODGERS, 7-1

ALL-STARS FLASH SKILL IN FIRST TEST FOR BEARS

BALL CARRIERS BREAK LOOSE FOR LONG RUNS

Impress Spectators 6th Day Together.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Only one touchdown was scored in the All-Americans' intra-squad football game yesterday morning at Dyche stadium and that was the result of a bad pass from center which was recovered behind the goal line. Bill Bevan of Minnesota, with Cotton Warburton holding the ball, kicked the extra point.

Those who saw the one hour of scrimmage, and the number included the members of Northwestern's coaching school, agreed that in ten more days the All-Stars will comprise a mighty fine team.

While the touchdown was scored by the blue team, coaches decided victory could not be awarded that squad because many of the All-Stars were used interchangeably.

Show Flashes of Skill.

The players of the white and blue teams showed frequent flashes of unified skill which were remarkable considering that yesterday was only the sixth day of practice. Inaccurate blocking or mistakes in blocking assignments would pile up the offense for three or four plays. Then, on the next attempt, the line would clean up and the backs would tear through for gains of 10 to 40 yards. These couldn't be linked together, however, for sustained marches.

Bill Shepherd, George Melinkovich, Al Nichelini, Pug Lund, Jim Carter, Stan Kostka, and Buzz Wetzel were among the gainers. Shepherd and Nichelini, starting half backs on the blue team, had the most success, although Kostka's smashes inside of tackle on spinner plays carried for long gains with the same power that he demonstrated last fall for Minnesota. Kostka injured his shoulder when tackled in the third period after a gain of 20 yards, but examination proved it was only a bruise.

Passers Fail to Click.

In forward passing, supposedly their forte, the all-Americans were weakest. Several passes were dropped that were perfectly executed except for reception, and many others were incomplete because of inaccurate throwing as well as the defensive work of the secondary.

Progress of the team really has been remarkable, although there remains a tremendous amount of work. This progress, coupled with the serious preparations of the Chicago Bears in their Delafield, Wis., camp, has increased the ticket sales steadily for the battle on the night of Aug. 29 at Soldiers' field. In brief, the spectators are assured of an honest to goodness game. Just how it will turn out, and the score, is an impossible guess, but at least both sides are working without letup.

The capacity of Soldiers' field has been increased to 92,000 seats for the game by the addition of bleachers which extend from the top of the wall to the ground.

80,000 Present Last Year.

Last year 80,000 saw the first All-American game against the Bears and it is considered probable at this time that more than that will be at Soldiers' field Aug. 29.

Approximately 45,000 of the $1.65 and $1.10 seats still are available. While these are not between the goal lines they do command a good unobstructed view and right now you can get better seats than you will on the day of the game. Tickets are on sale until 10 o'clock every night at THE TRIBUNE Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in the lobby of Tribune Tower. Mail orders still are being accepted in the office of the ticket manager, Room 530, Tribune Tower.

A. A. Stagg, coach of the College of the Pacific, was among the interested spectators at yesterday's game. The referee was Chuck Bernard, 1933 All-American center from the University

Only 11 Days Left

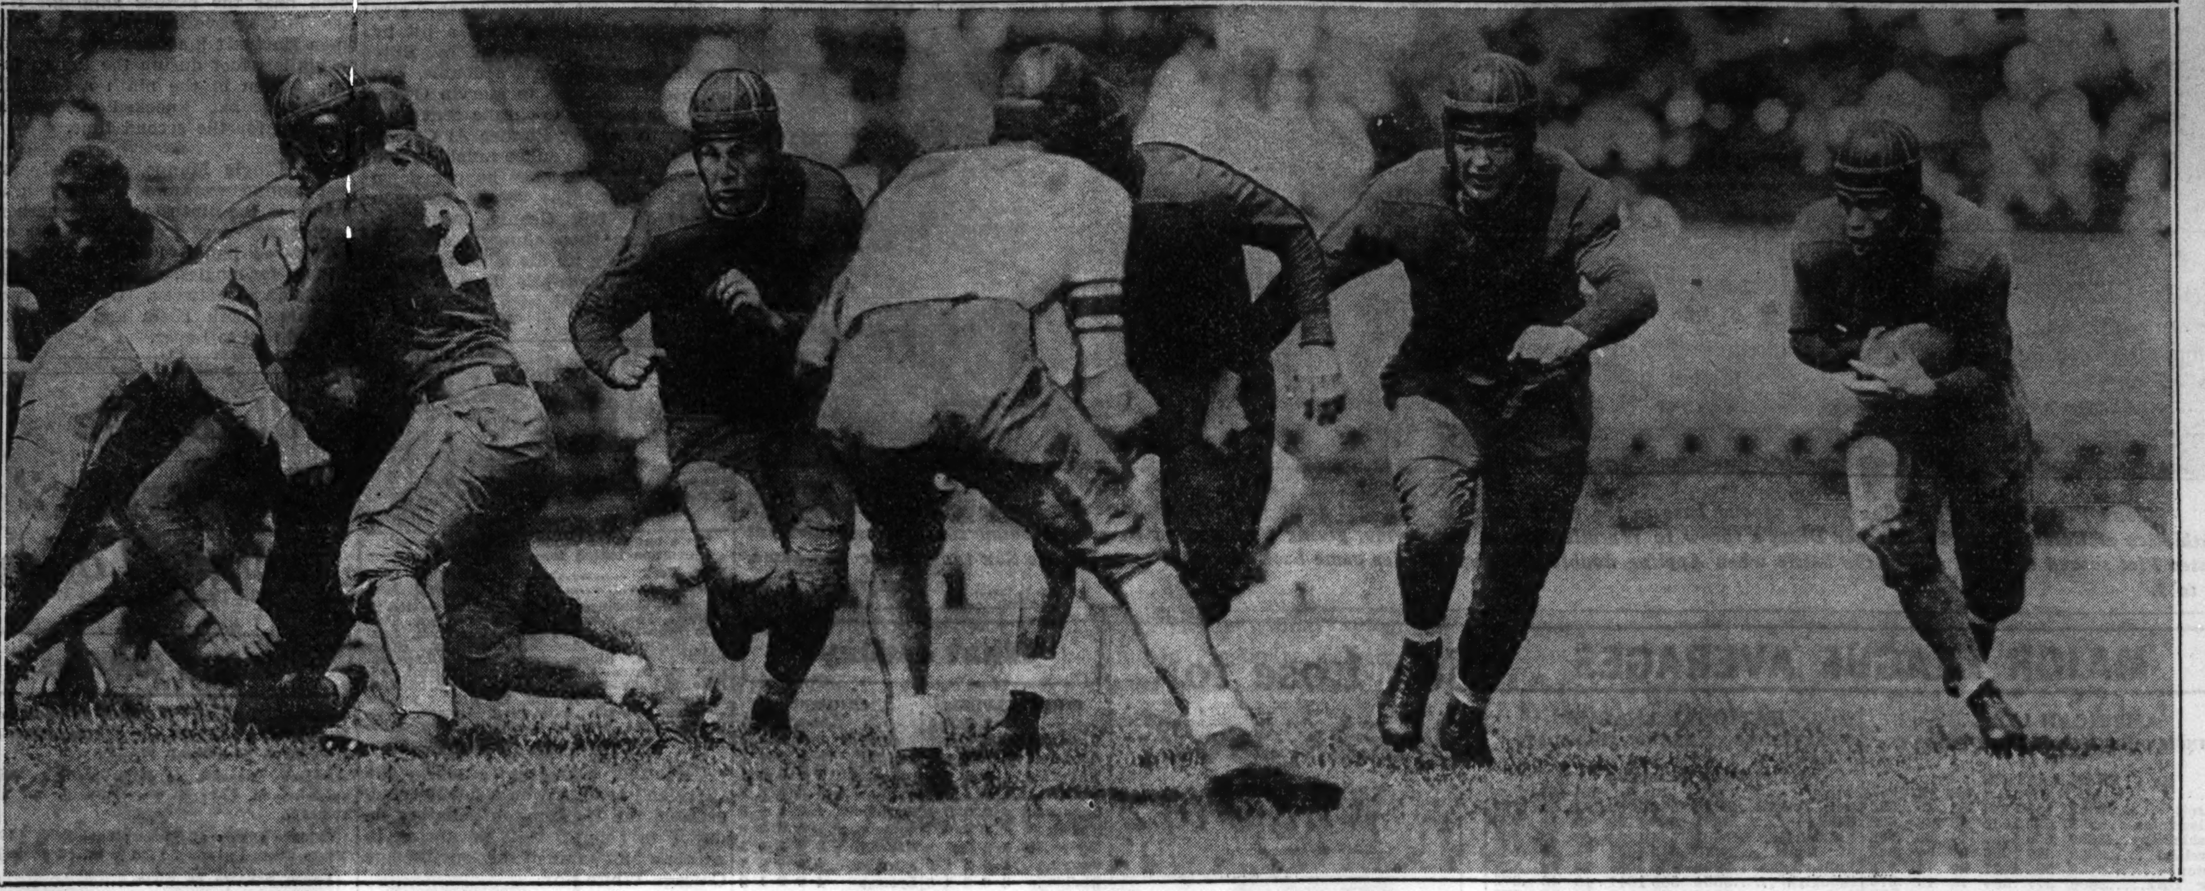
Half of the month of August is gone. That means you had better start hurrying if you want to see the College All-Stars play the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field.

The game will be played on Aug. 29 and that's not so far away. Eleven more days, to be exact!

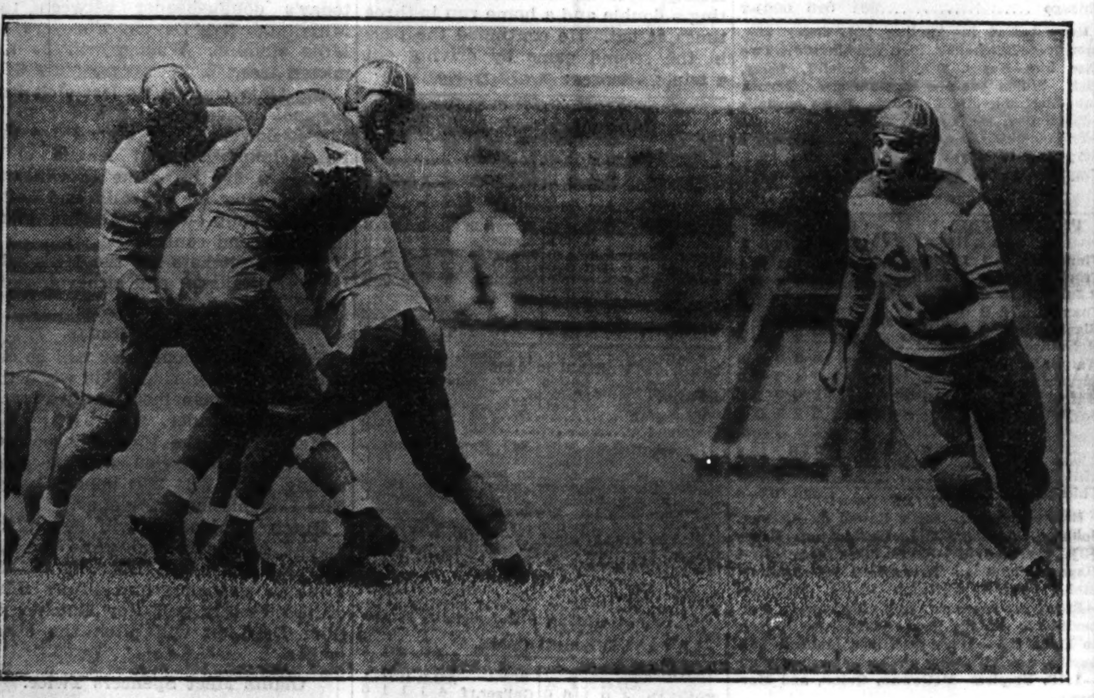
There will be room for 90,000, but to make sure that you have a good seat don't delay. Drop into the Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street or visit the lobby of Tribune Tower and make your reservation. Tickets are on sale up to 10 o'clock in the evening at $1.65 and $1.10.

You also may send check or money order to Football Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

CIVIL WAR BREAKS OUT IN CAMP OF ALL-STARS



On the sixth day of practice the college All-Americans, who will play the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field on Aug. 29, engage in a regulation game at Dyche stadium. Al Nichelini of St. Mary's, California, is carrying the ball as the whites and the blues fight it out. Many of the All-Stars were used interchangeably, so the coaches decided not to award victory to either squad, although the blues made a touchdown.



John Regeczi of Michigan tries an end run in the intrasquad game at Dyche stadium. He was one of the backs who made long runs during the practice that impressed spectators. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Bears Forget Scrimmage as List of Injuries Grows

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 17.—The strenuous work to which the Bears have been subjected since their arrival at St. John's Military academy Monday to prepare for the All-Star game at Chicago on Aug. 29, began taking its toll today when Coach George Halas was forced to cancel the scheduled scrimmage because of injuries.

Bronko Nagurski, football's greatest full back, was sent to Chicago at noon to consult the club physician, Dr. John Davis, and have X-ray pictures made of a hip injury. Jules Carlson, regular left guard who was expected to return to practice this afternoon, was put to bed with an attack of la grippe. Gene Ronzani, right half, injured early in the week, again missed practice as academy physicians were called in to treat his leg.

Tackles Are Bruised.

In addition to these regulars, all the candidates for the left tackle berth, left vacant by the retirement of Link Lyman, are bruised and battered. Art Buss, a substitute last year, Milt Trost of Marquette, Milford Miller of Chadron, Neb., State Normal; and Fred Crawford of Duke, a member of last year's All-Star team, who have been waging a four cornered fight for the position, came out of Thursday's scrimmage with bumps which at first were considered inconsequential, but which since have become sufficiently aggravated to prevent their participation in scrimmage.

Left tackle is the major problem confronting the coaches. Bernie Masterson, a substitute last year, who played with the All-Stars in the scoreless tie at Chicago, has taken command of the quarter back position formerly manned by Carl Brumbaugh. He is getting good support from Robert Dunlap and John Turley, two freshmen. But at left tackle no candidates have shown sufficient ability to date to cause a let up in the search for Lyman's successor.

Richards Gets Chance.

Ray Richards, 234 pound guard who has been with the Bears two seasons, was shifted to tackle today. Richards, a professional wrestler and opponent of Jim Londos six times, has all the qualifications for the position, but he has never played anything but guard in the pro league. Three years of National league experience, one with Philadelphia, and two with the Bears, however, gives him an advantage over the other candidates.

The fight for the position remained a four cornered affair after Richards' switch from guard, when Crawford was told to work out with the ends. The former Duke All-American is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 198 pounds. He is one of the fastest men on the squad and also one of the outstanding pass receivers. This gives Halas three right ends, Bill Karr, to whom the position belongs, Wayland Becker, recalled from Brooklyn this year, and Crawford.

1,000 Fans Turn Out.

Cancelation of scrimmage disappointed more than 1,000 spectators who had motored in from nearby towns and surrounded the practice field long before the Bears appeared. They were treated to some of the other aspects of the game, though, when Halas held a long man against man blocking drill for all the line-

3d Place Battle Peps Up Race in American League

The Detroit Tigers, by beating the New York Yankees again yesterday, increased their first place lead to seven games, with attendant loss of interest in the pennant race itself.

The fans, however, had a chance to focus attention on the swell battle for the third and fourth money positions. The Red Sox, by dropping two games to the ornery St. Louis Browns, allowed the fourth place White Sox to gain a game and spend the night a game out of third place.

Based on the third and fourth place splits of the 1934 world series the Red Sox, White Sox, and the Indians [who may be completely reversed tonight, for all will be engaged in double-headers this afternoon] are battling for the following monetary prizes:

Players' share, third place team, $16,397.53.

Each player's share for third place, $603.61.

Players' share, fourth place team, $8,198.76.

Each player's share, fourth place, $282.72.

Fifth place gets no money.

MYRTLEWOOD 1ST AS TURF RECORD HOLDERS HOOK UP

BY FRENCH LANE.

Two world record holders—Myrtlewood and Clang—fought it out for the big money in the seventh running of the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday afternoon.

When they thundered past the winning post and their skirmish had ended Myrtlewood was a length and a half in front of Clang. Tearout, the Latonia Derby winner, raced up from nowhere to be third and Banish Fear was fourth.

Thirteen fought it out over the mile route for the Peabody prize which had a gross value of $6,490 and Myrtlewood slipped to the front so early in the battle and maintained her terrific speed with so little effort that much of the thrill for the 16,000 fans was lost.

She Steps Right Out.

The daughter of Blue Larkspur—Frizeur, owned by Brownell Combs of Lexington, Ky., flew into the lead when Starter Hamilton gave them the word to go. Just to show that her world's record for 6 furlongs made at Arlington Park was no fluke she reeled off the first six furlongs of this contest in 1:10 1-5, which bettered the Lincoln Fields track record for the distance by three-fifths of a second.

That kind of running took the heart out of all those behind her except Clang and Tearout. The former, which holds the world's record for seven furlongs, could not be dazzled by such an array of speed. He, too, was accustomed to all sorts of it.

He was in third place until the field began to wheel into the stretch. Fleetfooted Top Dog had been running second, but at that stage he gave up the struggle and Clang moved past him.

Tearout Starts Late.

Clang's drive made up some ground, but Myrtlewood did not falter at any time and the job of catching her was too much of an undertaking for the New Orleans colt. He was an easy second, however, for Tearout had started his drive too late. His race was the most spectacular of the day, for he ran next to last all the way down the back stretch and did not improve his position until he hit the home stretch.

Tearout was so far back he perhaps didn't know how fast Myrtlewood had been running so he ran past eight tired horses as he drove toward the leaders in the stretch. The challenge carried him to within a length and a half of the leaders and that's where he finished. Banish Fear also had to move lively to be up in time to be fourth.

Just Misses Record.

Myrtlewood rounded out the mile in 1:36 3-5. She missed the track record by four-fifths of a second, but it was the fastest mile run this year at Lincoln Fields. She carried 111 pounds and was ridden by the veteran Jocky, J. McCoy.

Myrtlewood had narrowly missed winning the Crete handicap a week earlier. Bad racing luck cost her that victory, and the crowd knew it. She was installed as the favorite when the wagering started yesterday, but a plunge on Ted Clark near post time sent her to the post as the second choice.

In the betting Myrtlewood paid

U. S. Defeats England for Wightman Cup

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—America's women tennis stars rallied to sweep the last three singles matches of the Wightman cup tennis series with Great Britain today and keep possession of the international trophy for the fifth straight year.

The heroine of America's uphill fight to victory on the turf courts of the west side stadium was Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, who conquered Katherine Stammers in the deciding match.

Mrs. Arnold Wins.

Beaten soundly the day before by Dorothy Round, the English No. 1, and conceded little chance of upsetting her brilliant young rival today, Mrs. Arnold gave a superb exhibition of fighting spirit and shot making skill to score a 6-2, 1-6, 6-3 victory.

Mrs. Arnold has not been ranked nationally since 1930 when she was No. 6 on the United States list and she has been out of competition almost entirely for the last two years. Her victory was the climax of a remarkable rally by the home forces. The British entered the final half of the series leading 2-1, the result of two singles victories yesterday, only to have the cup defenders settle the issued with three consecutive victories.

Series Ends, 4 to 3.

It was well for this country's supremacy in women's tennis that Mrs. Arnold came through. The pressure was off thereafter but the British doubles team of Evelyn Dearman and Nancy Lyle beat Carolin Babcock and Dorothy Andrus, American pair, in the seventh and final match, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The final score was 4 to 3 as the United States emerged triumphant for the ninth time in thirteen years of competition for the Wightman cup.

Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston and Helen Jacobs, American singles champion, paved the way for Mrs. Arnold's decisive conquest. Together they scored America's first point by winning the doubles yesterday after Miss Jacobs had yielded to Miss Stammers in a singles upset. Today Mrs. Fabyan returned to the courts to trounce Phyllis Mudford King, 6-0, 6-3, and square the count, after which Miss Jacobs put the United States in front with a 6-3, 6-2 triumph over Miss Round.

Mrs. Arnold Springs Surprise.

The crowd of 5,000 tennis fans confidently expected Miss Stammers to even the count again, sending the series into the final doubles match for decision. So did every one else, with the exception of Mrs. Arnold. The Californian lifted her game to superlative heights, with the cup at stake, and thoroughly justified the confidence placed in her by the United States selection committee, which named her to take Mrs. Fabyan's place as No. 2 singles player.

Mrs. Arnold's steadiness off her unorthodox and seemingly awkward backhand was the decisive factor as she outplayed her young English rival in the first set and came back brilliantly in the third after having her advantage wiped out. Miss Stammers turned the tide with blistering drives in the second set, playing with the same dash that carried her to triumph over Miss Jacobs yesterday, but she failed to sustain the pace.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO MACKS, 3-2; WIN SECOND, 8-2

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox scored more runs in the five inning second game of yesterday's double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics than they have scored in weeks in contests of nine innings and longer. Before darkness ended this encounter the Sox had counted 8 runs to 2 for the visitors and it was so recorded as a legal ball game. The bobtailed victory served as something of a help for the Sox, who lost the first game, a tough one which ended 3 to 2, partly because of the helplessness of Vernon Washington and Al Simmons, jocularly known as the powerhouse twins.

The first game was chalked up against the record of Ted Lyons. All three Philadelphia runs were driven in by a former White Sox, Charley Berry, the first on a single and the other two on a double.

Appling Has Big Day.

In this game Luke Appling made a double and four singles in five times at bat. He drove in both Sox runs, as a sort of warmup, perhaps, for further heroics in the second game, when with the Sox trailing, 2 to 0, he cleared the loaded bases with a triple to center, and later scored on the rarest thing at Comiskey park, a hit by Washington.

In the first game, Washington furnished the third out with runners on third and first in the first inning; in the third inning he supplied the third out with a runner on second; in the fifth inning he furnished the third out with a runner on first; in the eighth inning he sacrificed, and in the ninth he supplied the third out with the bases full, the tying run on third and the winning run on second.

Simmons, the other powerhouse boy, led off the second inning with a tap to the pitcher, he fanned to start the fourth, tapped to the pitcher again to start the sixth and tapped to the shortstop with the tying run on second in the eighth inning.

Moses Out for Season.

Ted Lyons is strong of heart and strong of arm and back, but a couple of loads like Vernon and Al in the middle of the batting order was asking just a little too much on a hot, muggy day.

Though they won the first game the A's lost their spectacular young rookie outfielder, Wally Moses, who broke his left arm trying to catch Rip Radcliff's double in the fifth inning. Wally will be out for the season.

The second game was noteworthy for several reasons aside from the fact that it enabled the Sox to remain in the first division by a half game margin. The Sox converted a 2 to 0 Philadelphia advantage into a 5 to 2 count in favor of the Sox with a big attack on Johnny Marcum in the third inning. It gave Jones his fifth victory of the season. Marcum, the leading Athletic pitcher, was after his fifteenth victory of the year. Whatever happened thereafter was not so gratifying for Connie Mack yanked Marcum to save him for another start in the remaining five games of the series. A semi-pro named Turbeville toiled earnestly the rest of the way.

FIRST GAME

LEE YIELDS FIVE HITS; BROOKLYN ERRS FIVE TIMES

Bruins Gain Game on Giants.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The daffy Dodgers, who are addicted to good clean fun on the ball field, were in rare form today. Probably because of a desire to celebrate the capture of three of the first four games of the series, they put on an extensive exhibition of ribtickling plays, the upshot of which was an easy triumph for the Cubs in the final of the set. The score was 7 to 1, a result that brought the third place Chicagoans one game closer to the leading Giants, but no closer to the irrepressible Cardinals.

The comical doings of the local performers, while distressing for 3,261 paying customers, were especially pleasing for General Bill Lee, who hadn't gone the route since July 24. The Dodgers flattened him in less than an inning in the opener of the series, but he bounced back today with a brilliant performance in which he wasn't scored on until after the errors of the home boys, mixed with Cub hits, had provided him with a seven run lead. It was Lee's 12th victory against 5 defeats, and his fifth of the year over the Dodgers.

Count 'Em—Three Errors!

The Dodgers gave the Cubs their first lift in the third inning. This was such a choice demonstration of sandlot ball that three errors were perpetrated. One was an infield fumble. One was an outfield fumble. The third was a blunder on a throw at first base. Under the circumstances the Cubs scored two runs on one hit. The next outbreak came in the sixth when Johnny Babich, the starting pitcher, was retired. This time the funny guys in home uniforms dropped one fly ball, made one wild throw to the plate, and Emil Leonard, rescuer of Babich, cut in with a wild pitch. All this enabled the Cubs to score five runs on four hits.

It is necessary to report that not much was contributed to the final outcome by either Chuck Klein or Gabby Hartnett, supposedly the Cub attack. Klein, up four times with mates on, singled once and the lone single helped in the hilarious sixth. Hartnett, up five times with one or more on bases, popped out three times, fanned once and on one occasion hit a fly ball. That was the one the Dodgers dropped, and as it happened in the sixth it proved profitable. Gabby has produced only one hit in his last 16 times at bat.

Cubs Start in Third.

There was limited action in the first two innings, but in the third the Dodgers got around to exhibiting their strange habits, so the Cubs helped themselves to two runs. The daffiness began with Stripp fumbling Jurges' grounder. Lee fanned in attempting to bunt. Galan singled to left and Bucher fumbled, Jurges going to third and Galan to second. Herman walked, loading the bags. Klein bounced to Leslie, whose throw to Frey forced Herman at second. Frey heaved back to first for a double play, but Babich, who was covering the bag, let the ball get away, and Galan followed Jurges across the plate. Hartnett then popped out.

The Dodgers were able to conduct themselves in big league fashion during the fourth and fifth, but that was the limit of their endurance. The Cubs' five run splurge in the sixth got under way with a double past third by Herman. Klein singled to right, but for some unknown reason Herman went only as far as third. Hartnett lifted a high fly to left center and Bucher, apparently disturbed because Bordagaray was hovering

CARDINALS WHIP GIANTS, 7-3; ONLY TWO GAMES BACK

J. Dean Relieves Heusser in Last Two Innings.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals pounded their way to a 7 to 3 victory over the Giants in the deciding game of the five set series today and left town for Boston tonight only two games behind the National league leaders.

Ed Heusser checked the Giants for the first six innings, but when he showed signs of weakening in the seventh Manager Frankie Frisch called on Dizzy Dean for relief duty.

Dean turned back the first three Giants to face him with seven pitched balls, but threw a slight scare into the Cardinal camp in the ninth when he let Mark Koenig, a pinch hitter, collect a double with two out and then yielded a single to Harry Danning. However, he braced and cut short the New York rally by fanning Joe Moore for the third out.

The Cardinals scored six of their runs by steadily pecking away at the combined offerings of three Giant pitchers, young Al Smith, Allyn Stout and Frank Gabler. The seventh was presented them in the third by a couple of bad throws by Gus Mancuso and Hank Leiber. Score:

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Fine pitching by Fred Lucas and Ralph Birkofer gave the Pirates a double victory over the Phillies today. Pittsburgh won the first game 2 to 0 when Lucas allowed only five hits while Birkofer limited the Phillies to seven hits in the second for a 5 to 1 triumph.

Dan Hafey and Vaughan hit homers for the Pirates.

Whitehead and Phelps to Pitch for Sox Today

This afternoon is to be celebrated as "Pork Chops day" at Comiskey park. John Whitehead is going to start the first game and Babe Phelps the second. The Athletics probably will employ Mehaffey and Dietrich.

The season series between the A's and the Sox now stands at six victories for the Sox and five for the Athletics.

Inquiry was made by an observer yesterday as to how it happened that the White Sox never have had Buzz Arlett on the team. In the last nine years they have had Jolley, Eckhardt, Boone and other behemoths who could slay minor league pitching but were helpless before major league stuff or so pitiful in the outfield that they couldn't stay up. It is said that Vernon Washington is suffering from a bad shoulder.

STOLEN BASE LEADS TO FIRST SOX RUN

Tony Piet of the White Sox steals second base in the third inning of the first game of yesterday's double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics at Comiskey park. Catcher Berry's throw to Warstler was a trifle wide, giving Piet second base with room to spare. A moment later Piet scored the first run of the battle when Appling doubled. The Athletics came back to win, 3 to 2, but the Sox took the second game, 8 to 2.

Sox Lose to Macks, 3 to 2; Win, 8 to 2

knocked successive singles to center, but the Athletics' threat ended when Foxx hit into a double play, launched by Appling. With two out in the Chicago half, Dykes walked and went to third on Appling's single to center. This brought up Washington, who ended the inning with a tap to Foxx.

The Sox also got in scoring position in the second inning. After Simmons had tapped to Blaeholder, Hayes doubled to left, but Sewell and Lyons were retired before Hayes could progress further.

In the third the Sox hurried and got a run home before Washington could get to bat. Piet singled to left with one down, paused while Dykes lined to Cramer, then stole second. He scored on Appling's double to right center. Then Washington came up and ended the inning with a tap to Higgins.

Simmons Robs Foxx.

Simmons may not be much of a hitter any more, but he certainly turned his great fielding skill to good account in the fourth inning. Finney beat out a bunt along the third base line. Then Foxx loosed one of his famous long range socks, but Simmons speared it off the wall in front of the center field bleachers. It was a 420 foot putout. Higgins and McNair supplied easy outs.

The A's tied the score in the fifth. Warstler singled to center. Warstler's base stealing intent was anticipated by the Sox battery and Lyons pitched out. Warstler, however, got credit for a stolen base when Appling failed to hold Sewell's good throw. Berry then came through with a single to center which sent Warstler home. Blaeholder, Moses and Cramer supplied infield outs.

Moses Breaks Arm.

The A's not only saw the Sox resume the lead in the fifth, but lost the services for the season of Moses, their star rookie. Radcliff doubled to the right field wall. Moses fell and slid into the concrete barrier. It appeared that Wally had butted his head against the wall, but when athletes reached him it was found that his left arm and not his head had been injured. Later examination in the clubhouse revealed that his left arm had been fractured three or four inches above the wrist. When play was resumed, Piet sacrificed and Radcliff held third while Dykes was thrown out by Higgins. Appling then delivered a single which scored Radcliff.

The A's leaped to the fore in a hurry in the seventh. McNair opened the session with his second single and Warstler walked, after which Berry doubled to right center, scoring McNair and Warstler. Berry was trapped between second and third on Blaeholder's bunt, Blaeholder was forced by Johnson, and Cramer flied to Radcliff.

Simmons Fails Again.

Appling led off the eighth with his fourth straight hit, a swift carom off Higgins. At this point Washington found something he could do with a bat. He laid down a nice sacrifice, but this brought up Simmons. Al came through with his longest tap of the game, a grounder to McNair well past the infield grass. Appling held second while McNair was tossing out Simmons.

The Sox got the bases full in the ninth, but for the fourth time Washington supplied the third out with runners in scoring position. With one down Radcliff produced his second single and was forced by Piet. Dykes walked. Then Appling beat out a high bouncer to Blaeholder, filling the bases. Washington grounded to Warstler to end the game.

SECOND GAME

Radcliff opened the Sox offensive in the second game with a single to right. Simmons, who had been moved up in the batting order after two games of infield tapping in the No. 6 spot, showed improvement by getting a fly out to Finney. Piet singled to left, Radcliff stopping at second. The Sox .300 hitters advanced while Appling was supplying his first putout of the day on a grounder to Foxx. Washington, the inevitable third out, grounded to Warstler.

Successive singles by Marcum, Finney, Cramer, and Johnson netted the Athletics two runs after one was out in the third inning. Then Foxx was called out on three pitches and Higgins grounded out to Appling.

Turn on the Power.

The Sox unleashed more power in their half of the third than they previously had generated in the month of August. Jones led off with a line single to left and Radcliff walked. Simmons sacrificed ably, and the bases were full when Piet rammed a single against Higgins' shins. Appling tripled to center, scoring Jones, Radcliff, and Piet. Up to that point the Sox had scored five runs during the afternoon, and Luke had driven in all of 'em.

Washington got into the spirit of the inning and singled to right, his first hit in twenty-one times at bat, scoring Appling. Washington stole second and, after Dykes had flied to Cramer, scored on Hayes' double to center. Shea lined to Higgins.

Simmons Smacks Double.

Simmons doubled with two out in the fourth, his first hit in 12 times at bat, but the inning when Piet flied to Cramer.

With rain threatening and reports of downpours reaching the park from the loop and elsewhere, there was much anxiety about getting in the required number of innings when Rookie Turbeville led off the fifth with a single. Finney and Cramer lined to Radcliff. Then Johnson knocked a single to left. Though Turbeville stopped at second Johnson, running with head down, tried to stretch his smack to a double. When Turbeville saw Johnson on the bag with him he took over Johnson's boner and tried to run to third. He was tagged by Appling, who had received the ball from Radcliff.

Rain Holds Off.

With the rain still holding off, the Sox made three runs in their half of the fifth before Simmons finally ended it by hitting into a double play with the bases full. Appling and Washington walked and advanced on Dykes' out. Hayes singled, scoring Appling and Washington, and took second on the throw in. Shea, Jones, and Radcliff walked, filling the bases. Then Simmons tapped into a double play and the umpires called the game on account of darkness.

What a Day!

TIGERS DEFEAT YANKEES, 3 TO 2, IN TEN INNINGS

Saltzgaver's Slow Throw Lets Rogell Score.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A boner by Jack Saltzgaver, who got back into the Yankees' lineup a few days ago because Manager Joe McCarthy was afraid of Blondy Ryan's uncertain fielding, enabled the Tigers to turn back the Yankees, 3 to 2, in a ten inning struggle today and increase their American league lead to seven games.

With one out in the tenth Lefty Gomez filled the bases on a hit by Goose Goslin, a forceout by Billy Rogell, Ray Hayworth's double, and an intentional pass to Marvin Owen. Manager Mickey Cochrane sent himself in to bat for Pitcher Al Crowder and with the Yankee infield drawn in close, sent an easy hopper down to Saltzgaver. The second baseman fielded the ball cleanly, looked toward home, then clung to the ball before making up his mind to throw to first. Meanwhile Rogell easily scored from third with the winning run.

French, Henshaw Pitch for Cubs at Philadelphia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The Cubs dashed from the park immediately after the game to catch a train for Philadelphia, where they must dispose of a double-header tomorrow. The Phillies have won seven out of 13 from the Cubs this season, so the latter aren't contemplating soft pickings for the next four days.

Vice President Grimm's two southpaws will be put to work in the bargain bill tomorrow. Larry French in the first game and Roy Henshaw in the second will be the program unless the boss changes his mind.

Umpire Beans Reardon had a tough afternoon behind the plate today. In the first inning a foul ball knocked the mask off his face and Beans could hear the birdies singing. He was just recovering from the jolt when Hartnett inadvertently stepped on his left foot during the fourth inning. Then in the ninth a foul off Hartnett's bat knocked Reardon's mask off for the second time.

Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodgers' best mound workman, was given a chance in the ninth to prove whether he has recovered from the effects of an injured hand. Lee and Herman hit him for singles, with three strikes for Galan in between. With the two on bases, both Klein and Hartnett popped foul to Lopez.

Mills Battle Shroyers in 2 Games Today

Today's Games

Chicago Firemen vs. Duffy Florals, at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].

Dayton Shroyers at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick and Lake street, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].

Chicago Giants at Spencer Coal field, 4200 North Central avenue, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].

Logan Squares at Elgin.

Three thousand employés of the International Harvester company will be among the fans who will attend today's double-header between the Mills and the Dayton Shroyers at Mills stadium. Women will be admitted free.

The Ohio club on its last visit lost a double-header, 3 to 2 and 1 to 0. Clyde Bowers, later signed by the Philadelphia National league club, pitched a five hit game to win the 3 to 2 contest for the Mills and Lefty Sullivan shut out the Dayton team in the second contest.

Today's pitchers for the Mills will be Lefty Sullivan and either Gordon McNaghton or Lefty Beazy.

Firemen Meet Duffys.

Edward A. Maloney day will be celebrated at Shewbridge field when the Chicago Firemen meet Duffy Florals in a double-header.

Members of the Firemen's post of the American Legion will be chief among those who will honor Deputy Fire Commissioner Maloney.

Dutch Kohlenberg will be on the mound in the second game for the Florals with Mack Burrows of the Firemen opposing him. Tony Sims of the Florals and Roy Gutcher or Slim De Lion will pitch the other game.

Giants Meet Spencers Twice.

The Chicago Giants will be the attraction at Spencer Coals field in two games. Henry Clay will shoot his lefthanded pitches at the Spencer batters in the second game. Jake Sommerfield, Spencers' leading hurler, probably will oppose Clay while Mike Yarros, Marvin Carlson or Ivy Cohen will pitch the other game against John Donaldson, colored speedball hurler.

At Elgin the Logan Squares will be the opposition. Jim Vaughn will be on the pitching mound for the Squares while Les Bartholomew or Howie Berg will start for the Elgin team.

around him, dropped the ball. Herman scored on the play.

Fun Keeps Up.

The gay doings continued with a single to center by Demaree. [illegible] scored on the hit, Gabby took third, and Demaree went to second on the throw in. Cavarretta got a single that Leslie should have grabbed, Hartnett scoring. Boyle picked up the Cavarretta hit and threw it in the general direction of the plate, but it didn't occur to any of the local troupe that somebody should get the throw. The ball rolled into the Cub dugout, Demaree scoring on the error and Cavarretta being awarded third base.

In hopes that he could restore order by a change, Casey Stengel, who directs the local circus, shooed Babich out of the picture and sent Leonard into the ring. The understudy managed to get the next three batters, but before doing that contributed his own little bit of clowning. He cut loose with a wild pitch on which Cavarretta counted the fifth run of the inning.

Few Dodgers Reach Base.

Lee's conduct was so classy in the first five innings that only two of the Dodgers reached base. One of them was Cuccinello, who beat out a hit to Jurges with one out in the second. A double play followed. Starting the third Boyle beat out a bunt to Cavarretta. This was adjusted with another double play. Then in the sixth Lee tumbled into what appeared to be a difficult spot. Boyle walked and Lopez singled with none out. The next three men, including Dan Taylor, who sacrificed for Leonard, accomplished nothing.

The Dodgers got out of the shutout class in the seventh by pairing hits for the first time. Bucher opened with a single to right and scored when Leslie followed with a triple into the right center field corner. Leslie, however, couldn't get home. He stayed on third while Jurges was throwing out Cuccinello. Stripp fanned. Boyle walked, after which Jurges tossed out Lopez. All the Dodgers could get in the last two innings was a lone pass.

OPEN QUALIFYING ROUNDS TUESDAY IN U. S. AMATEUR

Golfers from 26 Centers Seek Places.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Qualifying rounds for the thirty-ninth amateur championship of the United States Golf association will be held over the 36-hole route Tuesday in 26 centers, ranging from Boston to Honolulu and from Minneapolis to New Orleans. The preliminary tests for the big show already have been held at Denver, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Two hundred players throughout the country are to be eligible for the first round of the championship proper, which will be held at the Country club of Cleveland, O., from Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive.

The Chicago district trials, which annually attract one of the larger entries in the country, will be decided Tuesday at the Beverly Country club. Last year the trials were held at Oak Park with sixteen places being awarded. Winners of these included Winfield Day of Elmhurst and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, who were co-medalists with scores of 150; Jack Westland, George Dawson, Steve Williams, Charles Becka, Russell Martin, Richard Ashley, John Lehman, Pick Wagner, John Ames, Don Armstrong, Gus Fetz, A. L. Miller, Don Hamilton, and Lyn Lardner.

Former Winners Exempt.

All former holders of the amateur crown and the current British amateur titleholder will be exempt from the necessity of qualifying sectionally. This, of course, includes Lawson Little, the husky young San Franciscan, who won both the American and British crowns of last year, and then repeated overseas this spring. Little undoubtedly will be the standout choice of the field of 200 who will start play at Cleveland on Sept. 9.

The U. S. G. A. will award a medal to the player who returns the low 36-hole score in his home district.

144 to Meet in First Round.

Last year was the first in which the U. S. G. A. adopted the British amateur plan of match play for the entire tournament, with no medal play qualifying rounds in the tournament proper. This year the scope of the event has been broadened so that 144 of the starting field of 200 will meet in the first round, assuring 72 18-hole matches. The remaining 56 in the field will enter the second automatically through the bye route. This will reduce the field for the second round to 128 players. Double rounds will be played on the Wednesday and Thursday of the tournament, trimming the field to four players, who will meet in 36-hole semi-final matches on Sept. 13. The championship battle on the 14th also will be at 36 holes.

The Chicago district field of seekers for places in the big show to be held at Cleveland from Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive, includes 110 local players and 14 transfers from other districts. These latter include Fred Haas Jr. of New Orleans, who won the western junior for the second time on Friday. The local section has been allotted 20 places in the tournament proper.

SIX MOTOR BOAT RECORDS FALL IN RED BANK RACES

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 17.—[U. P.]—Six world's motor boat records were shattered today in the national sweepstakes regatta on the Shrewsbury river. Melvin Crook, Princeton collegian from upper Montclair, N. J., won the opening heat in defense of the sweepstakes trophy for unlimited single engined craft and created a new race record of 57.636 miles an hour for the 15 mile contest.

Andy Crawford of Washington, D. C., won the 225 cubic inch hydroplane event, increasing the class speed mark to 49.396 miles per hour. Crawford's Enanady was less than two boat lengths ahead of Dr. Cecil H. Bagley's Wilmer III. from Baltimore, which nosed out Hopatcong Baby, driven by J. N. Steneck of Mount Arlington, N. J., for second honors.

Two new marks were contributed in the outboard competition by Gar Wood Jr., son of the international speedboat king of Algonac, Mich., who broke both the class A and class C amateur records. In class A young Wood hit 41.666 miles per hour and in the class C engagement, which he also won, he was clocked at 50.847 miles an hour.

Phillip Gore of Towson, Md., drove his Dixie Kid at a speed of 42.452 to set up a new professional mark in the class A outboard. The other new record established in the day's competition was a sweepstakes lap of 61.813 miles per hour, made by Betty V. on her fourth lap.

SCHICKLER BEATS KRUTILLA; WINS COUNTY AMATEUR

15 Foot Putt Ends Match on 37th Green.

Fred Schickler of Aurora was forced to go 37 holes, the last five holes in a steady downpour of rain, before he defeated John Krutilla of Hickory Hills, 1 up, in the finals for the Cook county amateur championship at Garfield park yesterday.

The match was one of the closest ever witnessed on the short nine hole course. They finished the first nine all square, and when the eighteen holes were concluded, Schickler led, 1 up. Schickler toured the first 18 in 29—31—60, while Krutilla turned in a 29—32—61.

In the afternoon session Krutilla sank a 30 foot putt on the 22d green to square the match. They halved the next five holes, Krutilla scoring a 31 on the nine, and Schickler a 32.

Schickler Takes Lead.

Schickler went out in front on the 29th hole, only to have Krutilla score a par 3 on the following hole and again square things.

Krutilla then took the lead for the first time in the match, capturing two holes in succession with a par 3 and birdie 3. A steady rainfall halted play for a few minutes until the caddies brought large umbrellas to shield the players. Schickler again evened the match by winning two holes. He had a chance to take the crown on the final hole but dubbed his approach and halved the hole with a 4. The afternoon medal cards were a bit higher, Schickler carding a 32—33—65 and Krutilla a 31—33—64.

Wins with a 15 Foot Putt.

On the extra hole both players were short on their drives, reaching the green in two. Schickler sank a 15 foot putt for a birdie 3, while Krutilla was down in 4.

In the first flight finals Dick Mundt, 17 year old Midwest star, scored a birdie on the 36th hole to defeat John Ortyl of Westgate, 2 up. The first flight contestants played championship golf. Mundt led at the end of 18 holes, 1 up, scoring a 31—31—62, while Ortyl came in with a 31—32—63.

Mundt had a 3 up advantage at the end of 27 holes, but lost the following two holes to have his lead cut down. Ortyl squared the match on the 33d when he scored a par 4. A par 3 on the 35th hole by Mundt dormied the match and he birdied the last hole to finish, 2 up.

OFFICIALS SORRY HELEN MOODY IS OUT OF TOURNEY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Tennis officials, players, and fans expressed keen disappointment today after learning the decision of Helen Wills Moody not to compete in the American title meet starting here the end of this month.

The defending champion, Helen Jacobs, was among the first to express her regret.

"I am sorry to hear that," she said. "I had looked forward to the possibility of a return match with Mrs. Moody in the national. But, of course, we shall probably get together some time."

Mrs. Moody's conquest of Miss Jacobs at Wimbledon had aroused interest in a possible return engagement this year. It was on the Forest Hills turf in 1933 that they met in a memorable championship final in which Mrs. Moody defaulted in the third set.

Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association did not conceal their disappointment. Mrs. Moody's withdrawal was construed as a blow at the gate.

GOLD FOAM, 12-1, TAKES $19,765 TRAVERS STAKE

St. Bernard Trails Colt Claimed for $5,000.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]- Gold Foam, a 12 to 1 shot which was acquired for $5,000 in a claiming race on the first day of the present meeting, today captured the $19,675 Travers before 25,000. The colt, entered as a forlorn hope, ran through the stretch like a Man o'War with the favorite beaten off behind him. Gold Foam was sent to the post when the event became a wide open affair with the Champion Omaha withdrawn.

The Travers goes back to 1864, and is the oldest race now renewed in this country. Gold Foam takes his place in its long history with Jim Dandy and other surprise winners which have jumped up to upset calculations, only to sink once again into comparative obscurity.

Coucci Brings Him Home.

The son of Golde Broom and Assembly carried the Starmount stable colors and earned $14,675 to make him the most profitable claim in many years. He finished the mile and a quarter route in 2:04 3-5 under 112 pounds and was ridden by Silvio Coucci. The track was fast. The finish completed a double for Coucci, who had ridden Mrs. Charles S. Bromley's Brannon to victory in the first race.

Two lengths back of Gold Foam at the end was E. D. Shaffer's St. Bernard, 3 to 2 favorite and the winner of the Kenner stakes. He never could match the pace of the winner, nor could he come on in the stretch to make any impression on his lead. A length farther back Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Arthur was third. The order of the finish after that was Good Gamble, Skip It, Firethorn, Young Native and Direct Hit.

Forever Yours Wins Easily.

In the 44th running of the Spinaway stakes Milky Way farm's Forever Yours was an easy winner by four lengths after sky rocketing in the betting to 8 to 1. She defeated Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Parade Girl, which got the place by two lengths over C. V. Whitney's Tony's Wife.

In the third stake, the North American Steeplechase handicap, Gladys Whitney, wife of C. V. Whitney saw her Rhadamanthus win easily after being made a strong favorite at 7 to 10. This was the only favorite to score, as a 40 to 1 shot, High Pool, came down in front in the sixth and Bill Farnsworth, a 100 to 1 chance, in third place.

There was a seven and a half minute post delay in the Travers, largely due to the behavior of Good Gamble. But Gold Foam and Direct Hit also misbehaved. Good Gamble at last was taken to the outside of the stall gate and broke well from there. Gold Foam at once raced off into the lead with Lester Balaski endeavoring to overtake him with St. Bernard.

Gold Foam Pulls Away.

Turning into the back stretch, Gold Foam sped away to a two length lead with St. Bernard second and Good Gamble moving to contention. She was weighted with the top impost of 120 pounds and her bid ended midway of the stretch. But before that point was reached St. Bernard challenged Gold Foam and was beaten off. Straightened away for home, Coucci had something left with Gold Foam.

Good Gamble could do no more at this point and was passed by Count Arthur, which made up a lot of ground in the last half mile. Gold Foam won easily and was greeted warmly by his trainer, J. M. Milburn when Coucci brought him back to the judge's stand.

SPARTA WINS

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Hal Price Headley's Sparta took the measure of a good group of 2 year olds, including the well-liked White Cockade when she won the Shawomet stakes, 6 furlongs, for juveniles, with $5,000 added, at Narragansett this afternoon. The filly, under the skillful guidance of Glenn Haines, won by a nose from Robert Robertson's Bright and Early.

Another Headley horse, Hollyrood, was third, and White Cockade, winner of the Juvenile stakes at Belmont early in the season, finished sixth. White Cockade was the favorite, coupled with Teufel.

The victory was a notable one for Sparta, which has run chiefly in allowance and claiming stakes in the past. She finished third to Mrs. Ed Haughton's Black Highbrow and Bright and Early on this track last Tuesday.

The time was 1:11 3-5.

AMERICAN GIANTS DEFEAT MEMPHIS RED SOX, 10 TO 9

The Chicago American Giants defeated the Memphis Red Sox, champions of the Southern Negro association, 10 to 9, in the opener of their four game series at Cole's park yesterday. A double-header will be played today.

Spotting their rivals four runs in the first inning, the Giants came back with three in their half and later overcame an 8 to 3 disadvantage with three in the fourth and four in the sixth to triumph. Score:

Myrtlewood Beats Clang in Peabody Stake

$9.00 to win, $5.60 to place, and $4.40 to show. Clang's price to place was $7.80, and to show he was at $5.40. Tearout, grouped in the field for the wagering, paid $4.80 to show.

Is One of Best.

While she has enjoyed an easy campaign both this year and last, Myrtlewood, as a result of her victory, takes her place among the great 3 year old fillies of the year. She has never been out of the money in the eight starts she has made this year and last.

The racing program had been decided under ideal weather and track conditions until the field paraded to the post for the Peabody. A sprinkle of rain was falling while Myrtlewood scored her triumph, but track conditions were not changed. Shortly after the handicap was run in a downpour, pushed along by a strong wind, drove the crowd to cover and made the track sloppy.

Thatagal Wins by Head.

A stirring battle came out of the Longwood drive purse at 5½ furlongs. It engaged the best 2 year olds here. Thatagal, from Dixiana stable, was the winner by a head from Joseph E. Widener's Rushaway. The Southland stable's Ceiling finished third.

Jocky Landolt, on Rushaway, lodged a claim of foul which was disallowed. Thatagal was coupled as the Dixiana stable entry with Miss Prudence, and in the betting paid $3.20 to win, $2.20 to place, and $2.20 to show. Miss Prudence had made the early pace. When she weakened, Thatagal came from far back to save the day for Dixiana. She ran the distance in 1:06.

VASSEUR TO RACE GAR WOOD FOR SPEEDBOAT TITLE

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—(AP)—J. Lee Barrett, secretary of the gold cup committee, said today he had been notified that Maurice Vasseur of France would challenge next year for the Harmsworth speedboat trophy now held by Gar Wood.

E. R. Frederick, engineer of the Andre Citroen automobile firm, wrote Barrett from Paris in behalf of Vasseur. Frederick until recently was Citroen's representative here.

"Vasseur told me he had definitly decided to compete in the Harmsworth next year," he wrote. "In this venture he will have his friend and partner, M. Piquerez, as associate. He plans a two-motor, single propellor boat of very light construction, similar [I think], to the Izmona V, with which he has been winning everything over here. It will have 2,500 horsepower."

Frederick said both men were widely known in France, and that Vasseur now holds the distance speedboat record of the world.

Edward S. Evans of Detroit said recently his two sons had constructed a craft of unique design with which they plan to challenge Wood's right to defend the trophy on behalf of the United States.

The most recent Harmsworth race was run in the St. Clair river in 1933 when Hubert Scott-Paine made an unsuccessful attempt to lift the trophy.

DISCOVERY WILL PACK 139 POUNDS IN $25,000 RACE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, owner of Discovery, announced here today that he would accept the impost of 139 pounds assigned his colt for the $25,000 Narragansett special. Discovery successfully carried 139 pounds here in the Merchant's and Citizen's handicap. The Narragansett special will be run on Wednesday at the Rhode Island course and is at a mile and three-sixteenths. This also is the distance of the Merchant's and Citizen's and is the distance at which Discovery holds the world's record. He set the mark last year at Narragansett Park.

Perry Beats Sutter, 6-4, 7-5, in Toronto Exhibition

TORONTO, Aug. 17. — (AP) — Fred Perry, England's Davis cup ace and the world's No. 1 ranking tennis player, turned back Clifford Sutter of New Orleans in straight sets in an exhibition match today. Turning on just enough pressure at critical points, Perry won, 6-4, 7-5. Thrown in for an unscheduled one set match against Gilbert Nunns of Toronto, Perry lost, 6-4. He then paired with Nunns and took a straight set beating from Walter Martin, Toronto, and Sutter, in doubles, 6-4, 6-0.

LADY MONTROSE, hustled into command and on inside after first five-sixteenths, sustained fine speed throughout, but was forced to a drive to hold DORAN safe. Latter, slightly forced back as winner came over on far turn, was under strong riding the final quarter and held on gamely in a fine effort. †Dixiana entry. Time, :23 2-5, :46 3-5, :59 3-5, 1:06. Weather cloudy. Two dollar mutuels paid: Thatagal, $3.20 straight, $2.20 place, $2.20 show; Rushaway, $4.00 place, $2.80 show; Ceiling, $2.40 show. Winner trained by C. Van Dusen. Went to post at 3:53. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

THATAGAL, taken under light restraint for the early racing, responded stoutly when called upon and but for bearing over repeatedly the final three-sixteenths, might have won by a greater margin. RUSHAWAY, lucky, came through on inside with a rush entering stretch and held on well, but could not hold the winner. CEILING was under strong riding the final quarter and weakened in late stages, but outstayed EDDIE'S BROTHER.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by A. Pelleteri. Went to post at 4:26. At post 4½ minutes. Start good for all but Countess Ann from gate. Won driving; place same.

BE SHY, away fast and having fine speed from start, lost ground while forcing the early pace under light restraint, bore out when going to front entering stretch and, continuing with good speed and courage when straight, stalled off SINGING HEART. Latter, also forced to lose ground, particularly on far turn where he dropped back slightly, stood a hard drive gamely but could not overtake winner. COTTON CLUB raced wide throughout and slow to respond, came with a rush in last eighth.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $5,000 added. Net value to winner, $4,740; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250.

At post 4½ minutes. Start good. Won handily; place driving.

MYRTLEWOOD, away fast and making a fast pace without need of strong urging, came away slightly when shaken up entering stretch and was under vigorous hand riding the final eighth. CLANG, under light restraint for five-eighths during which he saved ground, made a game bid after coming out in stretch and though he did not seriously threaten the winner, held on well. TEAROUT, badly outrun for three-quarters and forced to middle of track for room in stretch, closed boldly.

JAY VEE, going in his best form and under strong restraint for three-quarters, took command quickly as MANAGER BILL went wide and held HUEU safe to win with something left. Latter, saving ground most of the race, responded to strong pressure the last five-sixteenths but did not menace the winner. BIBBIE'S CHOICE was under vigorous riding the final half-mile and weakened slightly after reaching the last three-sixteenths, but outstayed MANAGER BILL.

King's Yacht Put Up for Winter; May Not Race Again

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The king's famous racing yacht, Britannia, is being laid up for the winter and never may race again. The old cutter is 42 years old now and entirely outclassed by the modern yachts against which it has been competing. Racing against such rivals at T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour and the Boston sloop Yankee, the king's boat failed to win even once during the season just concluded.

Budge Beats Shields; Wins Newport Title

Newport, R. I, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Don Budge of Oakland, Cal., Davis cup player, today outlasted Frank Shields of New York, for a 6-3, 5-7, 3-6, 8-6, 6-1 victory in the 19th Newport Casino invitation singles tennis final.

Shields then teamed with Frankie Parker of Milwaukee and defeated Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., and Henry Culley of Santa Barbara, Cal., for the Casino doubles title, 3-6, 9-11, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5. Unlike the singles play, the close of the doubles competition was crammed with spotty tennis.

Shields Gains Control.

After dropping the first set, Shields, who was top-seeded, got his service and smashes under control and battered down the accurate Budge for the next two sets. Shields was a bit wobbly when they returned to the court after the 10 minute rest period and Budge reeled off the first two games. Shields, however, captured the next two to even the set and although forced to run at break-neck speed by his sharp shooting opponent, remained the aggressor until his legs started to tire along about the 10th game.

Double Fault Costs Set.

Weakening rapidly and realizing that he would not be able to follow the speedy Budge through a fifth set, Shields took a desperate gamble in the 14th game and lost. With the score at set point for Budge, Shields tried to deuce the game with a service ace but double faulted. The deciding set was a walkaway for Budge.

AUSTRIAN DECREE SEEN AS MOVE TO SHUN OLYMPIC

VIENNA, Aug. 17.—[U.P.]—Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, in a decree believed to foreshadow Austria's withdrawal from the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin, today forbade Austrian athletes to compete in any games with Germans.

Governmental permission had been granted for athletes to compete with Germans in events this summer. The decree was due to an article in the German newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter attacking the Austrian government.

Demand U. S. Withdrawal.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Withdrawal of the American Olympic team from the games scheduled at Berlin next year was demanded by the Pennsylvania American Legion in a resolution adopted at the final session of the 17th department convention today. Nazi anti-Jewish policies were given as the reason.

VALKYRIE WINS CLASS A RACE IN RECORD REGATTA

25,000 See 150 Craft Sail Off Navy Pier.

Another buoy marker in the course of Chicagoland yachting history was passed yesterday as 150 boats took part in the ninth annual Daily News regatta, sanctioned by the Lake Michigan Yachting association. It was the greatest number of sail and power boats ever to race in one day's competition on Lake Michigan. It was estimated that more than 25,000 spectators viewed the regatta from Navy pier and the shoreline.

Valkyrie, Robert Benedict's cutter from the Jackson Park Yacht club, was the major winner, taking the A class event for the largest cruising craft.

Worthman Rights Boat.

The sailing canoe race, with 12 boats, was won by Commodore Hank Worthman of the Columbia Canoe club, whose boat capsized during the race. Worthman unstepped the mast and sails, and righted the boat. While still swimming alongside, he managed to empty the boat of water, climbed in, set the sails, and continued the race. Worthman's time for the three mile course was 42 minutes.

Four races for speedboats brought out the largest fleet seen in Chicago waters in many years, according to Commodore David Zimmerman, in charge of the racing. The first race was won by EEEE, piloted by Albert Stein; the second by Pook, John J. Russell, driver, and third by William Drown Jr., stepson of R. G. Dunham, president of the park board.

NEW ROBY TRACK OPENS TODAY; 5 RACES ON CARD

20,000 Expected to See Leading U. S. Drivers.

A field of nearly 40 of the best driving pilots in the United States will face the starter this afternoon at the new Roby speedway in a program of five events that mark the return of major league standard automobile racing in the Chicago area. The gate will be opened at 10 o'clock this morning. A crowd of 20,000 is expected to be present when the first time trials open at noon.

The new speedway, recently leased by Carl Stockholm and Emmett T. Howard, has been completely rebuilt, including repairs to the grandstand, the erection of a section of more than 6,000 bleacher seats, the entire 700 acres of the property enclosed by an eight foot fence, the mile track resurfaced and treated with more than 10,000 gallons of oil and rebuilt to provide a maximum of speed and safety for the pilots.

$2,000 in Prize Money Offered.

The opening program will send the drivers away in quest of $2,000 in prize money offered for the meet in addition to a gold trophy the promoters will award any driver who can lower the track record of 43.2 seconds created three years ago by Billy Arnold. Three qualifying events of ten miles each are carded with the four fastest cars in each to qualify for the 50 mile main event. The other race will be a ten mile event as a consolation for drivers failing to qualify for the main event.

The track is in perfect condition, according to Wilbur Shaw and other noted drivers who took their first workout at the track Friday afternoon. Shaw, who finished second in the Memorial day race at Indianapolis this year, predicted that at least a second would be trimmed from the track record and asserted it was entirely possible that the mark may be lowered to 41 seconds with the class of driving that will prevail.

In addition to Wilbur Shaw, there will be Wild Bill Cummings, winner of the Indianapolis race last year. Chet Gardner and Babe Stapp, both veterans of the last ten Indianapolis races, will also start.

Bill Devore Entered.

Aligned against these veterans will be a field of youngsters whose ambition is aimed at Indianapolis. Among them will be found Bill Devore, son of Earl Devore, long a leading driver.

Promoters have arranged for ample parking space for automobiles. Several thousand cars may be parked on the infield, but must be inside the enclosure before the trials begin at noon to avoid possible accident. There is space for additional thousands behind the grandstands.

Qualifying races will begin at noon. The main event is expected to start at 2:30 o'clock.

A partial list of drivers includes:

C. Y. O. Teams Close Sectional Games Today

Sectional competition in the Catholic Youth Organization Baseball league will end this afternoon with nine games. Next Sunday the opening games in the title playoffs will be held. The first and second place teams in each of the six sections forming the C. Y. O. Baseball league will compete for the 1935 archdiocesan honors.

St. Hyacinth's [Polish] nine, defending title holder, which finished the sectional race with eight victories and one loss, will rest today while St. Adrian's, runner-up last year, meets the strong St. Blase team for first place in the sectional standing. Both St. Adrian's and St. Blase have won nine games and lost one each.

A tri-cornered tie for first place is expected to be broken today when St. Gabriel meets St. Michael's [83d street] in one game and St. Michael's [48th street] in the second game of a double-header scheduled for Fuller park.

Today's games:

1 p. m.—Epiphany vs. St. Stanislaus at Fullerton and Long streets.
1 p. m.—St. Pius vs. Good Shepherd at Normal park, 61st and Racine.
1:30 p. m.—St. Gabriel's vs. St. Michael's [48th] at Fuller park, 45th and Princeton avenue.
2:30 p. m.—St. Genevieve vs. St. Mary Celle at 14th and Euclid, Berwyn.
3:30 p. m.—St. Adrian vs. St. Blase at Normal park, 61st and Racine.
3:30 p. m.—St. Gabriel's vs. St. Michael's [83d] at Fuller park, 45th and Princeton avenue.
3:30 p. m.—St. Martin's vs. Sacred Heart at 44th and Lincoln.
3:30 p. m.—St. Michael's [48th] vs. St. Basil's at 51st and Lincoln.

OPEN MIDGET AUTO RACES AT DE PAUL TODAY

More than twenty of the country's leading speedway and midget drivers will assist Barney Oldfield to inaugurate midget auto racing this afternoon at De Paul field, Webster and Sheffield avenues, starting at 3 o'clock.

Oldfield will be official starter for the midget races in addition to driving his roadster in an exhibition lap.

Eight events will be offered at the new north side oval featuring a 25 lap final event with the time trials starting at 1 p. m.

Some of the star pilots who will battle for pole position in the qualifying heats are Windy Jennings, Ernie [illegible], Doc Shanebrook, Ray Campbell, Shorty Swenson, George Kaiser, Wally Zale, Ray Rybecki and others.

THEY'LL HELP OPEN ROBY TRACK TODAY

Wild Bill Cummings (right), star of major auto race tracks and winner of the Indianapolis 500 mile classic in 1934, and Dr. Earl Universaw, mechanic, will compete at the new Roby speedway today with eyes on a share of the $2,000 offered in purses. Today's five event program opens the remodeled Roby track.

On Wednesday night the champions of eight divisions will start a playoff at Mills stadium to determine the city's representatives in the national amateur world's championship tournament to be held at Lincoln park next month under the auspices of the Amateur Softball Association of America. Championship men's and women's teams from 30 to 40 states will take part.

Tomorrow night's schedule:

GRAND AMERICAN TRAPSHOOT WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Vandalia, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Stars of the trapshooting world converged upon this hamlet today, intent upon getting in a few practice shots before the Grand American program, classic of the clay target sport, opens Monday.

Marksmen from more than a score of states, the Canal Zone and Canada gave the annual fixture an international aspect. Preliminary events for the early arrivals were held yesterday and today. The Vandalia open will be held tomorrow, but the real firing starts Monday as the five day program ending Friday with the Grand American handicap is launched.

The chief thrill of the Grand American is that no man has been able to win it twice since its start in 1900. Walter Beaver of Berwyn, Pa., the 1933 winner, came close last year when he finished one target behind L. G. Dana of Derrick City, Pa., the champion, and H. F. Pace of Mansfield, O., who tied with Dana but lost in the shoot-off.

Little Traveled Wisconsin Roads Offer Fishing

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the average motoring vacationist stays close to the paved main highways when he goes into Wisconsin, often he will find good camping and fishing spots by taking the secondary routes into the northland.

For example, one of the most attractive pieces of Wisconsin north and south highway, from a scenic, fishing, and camping standpoint, is route No. 32, starting at Green Bay. This road [most of which is hard surfaced] takes you into the Oconto river valley and the Nicolet forest. When we drove through this country a few weeks ago we noticed how few campers and fishermen there were, although the opportunities for these sports are there. After getting a number of glimpses of the Oconto it will be hard for you to resist the temptation of rigging up a rod and going after a few trout.

Here are a few of the things to look out for on highway 32: First, watch for the little camp site on the bank of the Oconto where the Waupee river flows into it. Here is a delightful combination of water and timber right close to the road. The rapids in the stream are most inviting.

At the town of Mountain you may want to make a short detour from highway 32 to drive on county trunk A east in order to fish some of the lakes close to the highway or try your luck at the High Falls reservoir. This is the body of water with the small mouth bass fishing for the anglers who use fly rods. Boats are available.

There is quite a group of lakes around the town of Lakewood on highway 32 when you return to this road and continue north. The route will take you into the town of Laona. Here we suggest you turn west on the paved road. Several good camp sites are on the fourteen miles between Laona and Crandon.

When you get to Crandon we suggest a day on Metonga lake, where we had luck with wall-eyes. This is a lake about three miles long, with sandy bottom, and is well stocked with fish. By fishing deep one can catch both wall-eyes and bass. Boats can be rented at the north end of the lake—right at the edge of the town. There is a bar just about three-quarters of a mile or less from the boat dock where you ought to have good luck.

HELLENIC TEAMS MEET TODAY FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Two picked teams selected from players throughout the United States will meet at Wrigley field this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the first national amateur baseball championship contest of the Hellenic Youth organization.

The game will open in the twelfth national convention of the Order of Ahepa, which sponsors athletic activities of Greek-American youth. Proceeds of the game will be devoted to the purchase of baseball equipment for junior members of the Order.

Alex Kampouris, who is making good at second base with the Cincinnati Reds, has accepted the appointment as honorary coach of the winning team.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the A. A. U., will present a silver trophy to the winning team.

Preceding the game Hellenic Unit No. 343, of the Legion auxiliary will be presented a new flag. Hellenic Post 343 will be present for presentation of the colors by the Order of Ahepa to the American Legion.

Doctors See Improvement in Humphries' Condition

Capt. Mura, who will play the No. 3 key position, has named Lieut. Don Rice for the No. 2 berth. Capt. Leo B. Callahan and Lieut. Russ Whitney will alternate at No. 1, while Capt. Leslie Ireland and Lieut. Lou Levine will do likewise at back.

124TH MEETS FORT

The 124th Field Artillery polo team will meet a four representing Fort Sheridan in a return game this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the north field at Fort Sheridan.

Last Sunday the 124th artillery, with the aid of a 3 goal handicap, defeated Fort Sheridan, 6 to 4. The 124th is retaining its team intact. Fort Sheridan has made one change, Lieut. Col. Harry D. Chamberlin replaces Lieut. Larry Ladue, who is at present attending the army maneuvers with Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy at Pine Camp, New York.

Preceding the game a platoon of Troop A, 14th cavalry, will give an exhibition "monkey drill." Between the halves Troop A will also put on a demonstration of mounted athletics. The lineups:

STEEL AND CHATT WIN IN ILLINOIS CASTING TOURNEY

High scores were the rule yesterday in the first day's competition of the Illinois state casting tournament, in spite of rain which interruped one game and brisk winds which hampered the flycasters. Frank Steel and Howard Chatt, both of Chicago, captured the two events which were completed, but both had to win playoffs from Judge E. E. Cavanaugh, Ft. Dodge, Ia.

The tournament, to be completed today, is being held by the Lincoln Park Casting club at their pool at the foot of Fullerton avenue.

Judge Cavanaugh tied Chatt with a 96 in the dry fly, but in the 10 deciding casts for the title Chatt scored a 90 to beat Judge Kavanaugh by one point.

In the wet fly event Judge Kavanaugh and Steel both had scores of 99, but in the playoff Steel scored a perfect 100 while his opponent took another 99. Tony Arado, Chicago, was third in this event with 98, and A. I. McCall, Chicago, was fourth with 97.

Ed Braddon, Cleveland, was third in the dry fly with a score of 94, while Steel was fourth with a 92.

The distance fly event was in progress when the rain stopped the competition. It will be held this morning. The women's event and all of the bait casting competition will be held today.

GOTHAM PLANS MOVE TO TONE DOWN AUTO HORN

Losing Patience with Unnecessary Noise.

BY HAL FOUST.

New York, N. Y., Aug. 13.— [By Mail.]—Through the windows of a hotel room where this is written come the toots, blasts, and squawks of automobile horns in the trafic of Manhattan's crowded streets thirty-two floors below. There seems to be no escape in altitude from this din that continues through the day and diminishes but little during the night.

New York is losing patience with this unnecessary noise as has Chicago. However, both cities are lagging far behind Europe in the control of these nuisances that wreck nerves through the ears.

Mayor La Guardia will inaugurate an educational campaign on Oct. 1, to abate these nuisances. He has appointed Major Henry Curran to head this activity under the unofficial title of noise abatement commissioner and the major is now in Europe studying methods used abroad, especially in England, to enforce a curfew on motor horns.

Formal Warnings.

During October, motorists who sound their horns unnecessarily or excessively between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m. will receive formal warnings from the police. Later, the mayor plans that an ordinance shall be passed so that these disturbers of the peace can be prosecuted.

The impatience of Chicago with the unnecessary noises of motor transportation were written into the new Illinois trafic code passed by the recent general assembly. The code prohibits the use of automobile warning devices that emit unusual or excessively loud sounds. The new statute also requires adequate engine mufflers to be in constant operation.

"In taking this step," Mayor La Guardia was quoted in the New York Times, "I am asking the coöperation from everybody. Every person is entitled to have a certain amount of peace and quiet. There is no reason for instance, for people to toot automobile horns in order to get friends to come to an apartment window.

Thoughtless Tooting.

"Frequent sources of complaint are at garages and other places which stay open all night. A driver bringing his car to a garage in the early hours of the morning should realize that there may be people sleeping in the vicinity at that hour and refrain from tooting his horn to attract the garage man's attention."

The decision to embark upon the educational campaign to be followed by anti-noise ordinances followed a survey of conditions here and in other cities which consumed a year and a half, Mayor La Guardia said.

This survey, he added, showed that in other cities loud, racous auto horns had been proved unnecessary as warning signals, that they were not a protection against accidents, and that milder types of horns serve the purpose. The use of horns, the survey showed, is merely force of habit in most cases; good drivers restrict their use to actual emergencies.

To aid in eliminating truck noises, he added, an ordinance will soon be introduced designed to ban the use of solid tires on trucks in the city.

Even the Police and Fire Department vehicles will be curbed in the anti-noise campaign.

"Our fire engines and police radio cars," said the mayor, "will use their sirens only when going to a call and not when returning."

Indispensable to care-free driving, the 1935 Chicagoland Road Map is now on sale at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Price, 25c; by mail, 30c.

ALLISON GETS TO BROOKLINE 2 DAYS TOO SOON

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 17—(AP)—Wilmer Allison, United States Davis cup tennis star, rushed today from Harrison, Me., where he had been visiting, to the Longwood Cricket club here, anxious to be on time for the start of the national doubles tournament.

A scene of inactivity greeted him. No tournament matches were being played, the grandstand was empty, and only a few informal contests broke the quiet.

The tournament committee had neglected to notify Allison that the tournament had been postponed until Monday because of competing play at Newport and elsewhere.

He and John Van Ryn are seeded at the top of the 32 pairs entered.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

VOICE OF TRAFIC

JUDGE DEFENDS TOMAHAWK, WIS.

Tomahawk, Wis., July 25.—Upon my return home after an extended absence my attention was called to the complaint of W. Eigenbrad of Des Plaines, printed in Voice of Trafic, that he had been victimized in a 15 mile an hour speed trap in Tomahawk. I would like, in the interest of justice and accuracy, to present the true situation.

I have been the Municipal judge here for more than five years, with exclusive jurisdiction over all trafic cases in the city. In that time seven trafic cases have come before me. Six involved local people and the seventh a Milwaukeean, who was assessed the costs of the action.

The number of arrests is not indicative of the total violations. U. S. route 51 passes our public schools, and because it is wide and well paved it was being used as a speedway to the hazard of our children and other pedestrians.

Abuses of our courtesy to motorists became so flagrant that the city council last spring voted to employ a trafic policeman. He has not made one arrest. His duties are confined to regulation, accomplished by courteous admonition and warning.

The charge that Tomahawk maintains a speed trap is so inconsistent with the facts that it amounts to a libel on this community. ELLSWORTH C. SMITH.

ONE WAY DRIVES.

Chicago, July 31.—The opening of West End avenue, 5200 to 5400 west, will give a two way drive from Garfield park to Harlem avenue; four mile drive east on Washington boulevard, west drive on West End avenue. This would be of great benefit to the traveling public at a small expense to west side residents. Why not push the completion of this improvement to benefit the unemployed and for the benefit of motorists?

HENRY S. MERRILL.

HAY FEVER IN WISCONSIN.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 9.—Yesterday I drove to Madison from an upstate city. On the way there and back and in great numbers on the streets of our state capital I saw automobiles with every imaginable license—those from Illinois, Ohio, and Indiana were predominant—but there were many from North and South Dakota—the southern, eastern, and western lates. A large number were evidently headed for our northern woods as tourists or summer cottagers.

How many of these cars, I wondered, held sufferers from the dreaded hay fever and its attendant ills—lured to northern Wisconsin by the fable, spoken and written, that there is relief in our northern woods?

I am starting north myself in a few days, hoping against hope to find a place of relief. Yet I know I shall find every highway edged with a broad band of rag weed that stretches from Eau Claire to Lake Superior. I shall find patches of the same weed in localities whose only hope of financial gain is through the tourists—many of them hay fever sufferers.

It is my sincere belief that there should not and need not be rag weed north of Eau Claire. There are men on relief by the legion to cut and burn it in every northern county of our state. The state should be made "rag weed conscious" and by the eradication of that weed make northern Wisconsin again a real haven for sufferers throughout the United States.

HAY FEVER SUFFERER.

PARKING SIGNS IGNORED.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—If you are in any way interested in clearing the streets so a person can drive, I'll give you something to work on. The south end of Jackson park at the Jeffery avenue entrance has a bunch of no parking at any time signs along the curb and you can hardly see them for the cars.

THOMAS J. BARRETT.

U. S. ATHLETES SWEEP AUSTRIAN TRACK CARNIVAL

VIENNA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—American track and field athletes made a clean sweep of seven events against Austrian opposition today as Al Moreau, Marksville, La., equaled the listed world's record for the 110 meter high hurdles.

Moreau, undefeated in his campaign abroad, was clocked in 14.2 seconds as he defeated Leitner by 6-10 of a second.

Foy Draper, Los Angeles sprinter, ran away with the 100 and 200 meter dashes. He defeated Berger by 4-10 of a second in the shorter sprint in 10.7 seconds and won the 200 by 1 2-10 seconds in 21.6 seconds with Berger again runner-up.

Gene Venzke, University of Pennsylvania, defeated Friebe in the 1,500 meter run in 3:57.8, but was too weary after that to compete in the 800 meter as planned.

Bill Sefton of Los Angeles outclassed Troske in the pole vault, clearing 13 feet 5½ inches. The Austrian barely cleared ten feet.

Ed O'Brien of Syracuse university easily won the 400 meters in 48.8 seconds and Kenneth Carpenter of Los Angeles won the discus throw with a toss of 164 feet 10 inches, beating Janausch of Austria by nearly 20 feet.

LEADING MIDGET CAR DRIVERS TO RACE AT FAIR

Leading drivers of the Midwest Auto Racing association will compete at the Cook county fair grounds this afternoon when midget auto drivers make their Chicago debut on a half mile race track.

Jimmy Snyder, Tony Willman, Tudy Marchese, Red Woodworth, Art Foley, Marshall Lewis, Harry MacQuinn, and several other stars of the association will compete.

Snyder at present is leading point driver in the Midwest circuit, closely pursued in order by Marchese, Lewis, Willman, MacQuinn, Foley, and Pat Warren. For the last two months the pilots have been racing on association tracks in other cities and return to Chicago in a body for the first time since the championship meet at Soldiers' field on May 19.

Eight events are scheduled on today's card. The fair grounds track, at North avenue and River road, can accommodate 6,000. Racing starts at 2 o'clock.

CHICAGOANS SEE ADVANTAGE OF ELEVATED ROADS

Sold on Idea by Tour of New York.

BY HAL FOUST.

New York, Aug. 13.—[By Mail.] While here three days to investigate Gotham's right turn on the red light, Chicago trafic experts also inspected Manhattan's elevated highway and the vehicular trestle between Jersey City and Newark.

The turning movement on the surface streets was approved with reservation and modifications for adoption in Chicago. The elevated highways were endorsed without reservations for Chicago's emulation.

The experts found that the turn on the red light would be adaptable for approximately half of Chicago's 700 signal controlled intersections providing that a preliminary stop would be required and that these intersections be marked with a flickering red arrow to direct such a movement.

Continuous Grade Separations.

"Surface streets will always be required for local trafic even after Chicago has a system of elevated highways, a certain eventuality for through trafic," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. "The right turn after stopping for the red will facilitate this local trafic without endangering pedestrians at hundreds of intersections."

"But you will never have safe and expeditious express motor trafic," added Stephen L. Witmanski, Chicago park district commissioner, "until Chicago has a system of pavements with continuous grade separations. On the lake front outer drives can separate through travel from cross trafic and from pedestrians. But for most of Chicago's area, including the expansive west side, we'll have to come to elevated highways sooner or later."

"Park avenue's ramps through the New York Central building, around the Grand Central station, and over the streets abutting the station, demonstrate that elevated highways need not be an eyesore," Leslie Sorenson, trafic engineer for the city of Chicago, commented. "In addition to the two major structures—the Manhattan elevated and the Jersey skyway—the construction on the Long Island parkway and at the heads of the George Washington bridge offer conclusive proofs of the value of carrying cross trafic at different levels.

Wide Streets Killers.

"This proof, incontrovertible, should deter Chicago from any future major street widening at grade. Our widened thoroughfares are killers. Elevated highways are savers of human life.

"A surface street widening that eliminates grade crossing by closing streets is not the answer. Chicago has spent millions to open streets for continuous travel form one section to another."

The Illinois highway department's suggestion for developing Congress street would close many of the north and south streets.

The three Chicagoans engaged in this conversation while touring New York today in a rented automobile. The chauffeur struggled over the surface streets, blasting at pedestrians, halting periodically for lights, dodging parkers leaving the curb, and otherwise suffering the annoyances, delays, and risks characteristic of travel on busy urban pavements.

At the northern end of the three and a half miles of pavement supported by pillars on the Hudson river water front there was a jam of cars in Riverside drive crawling toward the ramp leading to the express highway. Naked red steel uprights and beams marked construction on an extension northward of the elevated.

Through the Tube.

This mass of machines, stalled and almost rubbing fenders on the surface boulevard, mounted the ramp and proceded south at 35 and 40 miles an hour with ease, comfort and dispatch. At the present southern end of the elevated laborers were sinking caissons for the projected extension of the express route to the Battery at the tip of the island.

The Chicagoans were driven through the enameled tube of the Holland tunnel under the Hudson river, thence on a submerged pavement through Jersey City and thence over 3.8 miles of viaduct, the $18,000,000 Pulaski skyway. Trafic moved at 45 miles an hour, passing over the heads of trucks and passenger cars in intersectional snarls on surface streets below. The trip ended at the Newark airport, where two transport ships were taking off.

"Unless the airplane supercedes the motor car," said Mr. Sorenson, inspired by the sight and by the ride, "future express automobile trafic must all be on such pavements with continuous grade separation. Such facilities are essential to further development of automobile transportation, and they are essential to abate the toll of lives lost on horse and buggy streets."

SUSPEND SUSS IN NEW JERSEY FOR POOR FIGHT

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The New Jersey athletic commission today suspended Artie Suss, New York heavyweight boxer, indefinitly for his "poor exhibition" against Buddy Baer, brother of Max, in a recent bout at Long Branch.

Referee Jimmy Manley called the bout "no contest" after Suss, obviously no match for Buddy, had gone down twice in the first few seconds of the opening round.

George Sheppard, Suss' manager, also was set down "for failure to produce his boxer at a hearing before the commission."

NEWS AND VIEWS

The curbing of irresponsible drivers is the most urgent trafic need of the day and the Keep Chicago Safe committee is performing yoeman service in that direction. So observed M. J. Lanahan, Michigan avenue Dodge-Plymouth dealer, and director of the Chicago Automobile Trade association.

"The Keep Chicago Safe committee is doing a great job along lines of public education and suggestions for improving trafic facilities," said Mr. Lanahan. "This is to be expected considering the group is composed of the best talent in Chicago, including judges, police officials, representatives of motor clubs, automobile associations, safety councils, and city and state trafic engineers.

"Irresponsible drivers must be checked in the campaign to save the lives of themselves and others. In the category of irresponsible drivers belong those who travel either too fast or too slow for safety. There are still too many who hog the middle of the road while driving at a snail's pace, but we now have a law against that, and the enforcement of that law will be a big step forward."

Chicago motorists are showing a marked degree of interest in safe driving, according to W. E. Butler, Hudson-Terraplane distributor. He told of the large number of motorists who have availed themselves of the opportunity to take a "safety ride" demonstration as a feature of Hudson's safety month program. The program will continue through August.

Six special white cars are engaged in a 25,000 mile test run being conducted by the Shell company. The fleet has been routed through every one of the 48 states, Canada, and Mexico. The fleet is engaged in making exhaustive tests of Shell products covering every conceivable driving condition encountered throughout the tour.

To combat the devastating, grinding wheel action that results from frequent stops and starts of vehicles in city delivery work, Goodyear has developed a new stop-start tire that will give long, slow, even treat wear.

As of July 27, more Chrysler cars had been reported delivered at retail this year than in the entire year of 1934, according to Joseph W. Frazer, vice president of the Chrysler sales division.

The Campbell-Ewald company, Detroit advertising agency, announces the appointment of Curtis C. Le Walt as manager of the Chicago office.

Trafic Violations Observed

This introduces a new feature in the automobile section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, to be continued as long as it is interesting and to be discontinued, it is hoped, before it becomes uninteresting.

Each week, a list of five or six violations noted in the city's trafic will be published, listing license numbers of the offenders with the names of the persons to whom the licenses were issued.

Aside from any disciplinary effect this publication may have on motorists, it is intended that the feature should be educational. It should call the attention of authorities to failures to enforce flagrantly violated regulations. It should call the attention of motorists to proper and improper conduct in automobile driving.

A sedan, with license 3428 and an "I Gotta Drag" star, at 9:15 o'clock on Friday morning, swung east in Foster avenue from a lane next to the west curb of Sheridan road marked by lights and by paint on the pavement as reserved for trafic continuing south. By means of this improper turn, the driver was able to forge ahead of motorists waiting in the two proper lanes for the turn. Morortists driving properly stepped on brakes to avoid a crash from the illegal maneuver.

License number 3248 was issued to Lawrence J. O'Connell, 1333 Pratt boulevard, security examiner in the Illinois department of labor. The "drag" star was inscribed "State of Illinois, chief securities examiner."

A Yellow cab with license 301-059 loitered at the east curb of State street between Washington and Randolph streets on Friday morning, crawling between four and five miles an hour. The Illinois trafic code provides that no one shall drive so slowly as to impede a reasonable use of public pavement.

In Western avenue near Harrison street on Friday, a city garbage train, consisting of a tractor and four hard tired trailers, rumbled and rattled over the pavement breaking at least one trafic law. The statute provides that no combination of trucks or tractors and trailers shall exceed forty feet in length and that no solid tired vehicle shall exceed ten miles an hour on a public street or highway.

A hard tired truck with license M-3-393 was parked in Congress street near Cicero avenue, facing west on the south side of the street and with the closest wheels about two and a half feet from the curb. The law provides that vehicles park in the direction trafic is moving and with both a front and a rear wheel within six inches of the curb. The truck bore the name of Busk Brothers.

While a reporter was noting the aforementioned violation, a truck of the bureau of streets, license M-4605, thundered north in Cicero avenue with little or no muffler. State and city law require all motor vehicles to have an adequate muffler in constant operation.

In Madison street last week, for two or three blocks east of Austin boulevard, curbs on both sides of the street were packed with private automobiles and taxicabs parked diagonally. There is no legal diagonal parking in Chicago. Police are issuing tickets at some places where this illegel and dangerous parking has been tolerated in the past.

THOSE BEARS AREN'T FORGETTING THAT AUG. 29 DATE!

EX-ALL-STARS FIND GREATEST KICK WITH BEARS

Four 1934 All-Americans Look Backward.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 17.—Four members of the Chicago Bears football squad who were on last year's All-Star team are glad they are Bears this year. Bernie Masterson, Beattie Feathers, Ted Rosequist, and Fred Crawford lolled in the shade on the St. Johns Military academy campus today and agreed there was a thrill in being an All-American, but that there was greater satisfaction in being affiliated with the world's greatest professional eleven.

They had just completed a week of drill in preparation for the All-Star game at Soldiers' field in Chicago on Aug. 29, a week of intensive conditioning which veteran Bears said was the hardest in the team's history. They had no illusions about the life of a professional. They had been held fast to a strict cadet schedule, practiced five hours a day and attended a lecture either in the morning or each night.

No Autograph Hunters.

There was no pulsating public dogging their footsteps for autographs, no idolizing fans following every practice. Headlines carried the names of their opponents and seemingly they had lost the identity which made them welcome guests everywhere in Chicago last year as long as they wore their All-American sweaters. But to a man they agreed they wouldn't change places with the All-Stars.

"I'd rather be back of them than in front of them," said Feathers as Joe Kopcha, Bill Hewitt, Ookie Miller, George Musso, and Bill Karr strolled by on their way to the cadet store for the customary pint of ice cream after practice.

"Whether I get as big a thrill out of this year's game as last depends on how we make out," continued the former Tennessee star who gained more than 1,000 yards as a freshman in the National league last season. "It was a great kick holding them scoreless last year, but it would be a greater kick if I helped them win this year."

Likes Bears' Attitude.

Rosequist, Ohio State's star tackle two years ago, and Masterson, University of Nebraska quarterback, who will direct the Bears' attack on Aug. 29, were more concerned over the friendliness and fellowship on the professional eleven.

"The All-Stars last year traveled in cliques," Masterson explained. "Some of the boys had a hard time forgetting that they were All-American. I liked all of them and we all got along fine, especially in the game, but there was a tension there that a fellow couldn't help but feel. I didn't relish it much. I like the attitude and spirit of the Bears much better."

"It is the natural thing to want to be on the best team," Rosequist broke in, "and we learned last year after playing with the Bears all season that they are the best team, no matter what happened at Soldiers' field. I believe this team right now is better than it was when we joined it after the All-Star game last year. There is no denying the men are in better condition.

"I thought most of the All-Stars last year regarded the game more as a vacation. We didn't train as diligently as the Bears are doing this year and we were always willing to listen to the temptations that our All-American sweaters provided in plenty of passports to theaters, ball games, and places where we certainly would not have been welcome without the admission fee if we hadn't been All-Americans.

Looking Back on 1934.

"You've got to remember that we are looking back after having tasted the fruits on both sides of the fence" Rosequist continued. "Many of the All-Stars this year may have these same impressions next fall. But while you are a member of the All-American squad it is tops."

"Yes," Crawford, former Duke university All-American tackle agreed. "It was the big thrill of my life up to that time. The ceremony of introducing the players, the tremendous crowd and all the formalities were the most impressive thing I ever saw. A fellow couldn't but go right out on that field and look for some one to tear apart.

"I believe the game is a good thing for football and has a definite value to the college men who are selected to play in it. The publicity you get out of it often aids a fellow in locating himself later. The experience is more than anything college football will bring a fellow. But if I had my choice of a place on the Bears starting lineup Aug. 29 and a place on the All-Star team, I would take the Bears. Of course, I have been on the All-Star team once. If I hadn't been, I am not sure which job I'd choose."

The others also were undecided whether they would rather be a Bear or an All-Star, had they not shared the latter honor before.

of Michigan, who played in last year's all-star game against the Bears and helped the All-Americans stop the charges of Bronko Nagurski, Bears' full back.

Thomas Hopes to be Ready.

The All-American coaches will continue the policy of secret practices this week. The players draw a vacation today, but will report tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at which time Frank Thomas of Alabama, who has been confined to Passavant hospital for a week with acute arthritis, expects to be present. In his absence the other coaches, all chosen in the national poll, Charles Bachman, Dr. C. W. Spears, and Edward [Slip] Madigan, have kept the team moving along on its conditioning schedule.

Forty-three All-Americans have been assigned to positions and now are drilling as follows:

Replies to Halas.

Coach Bachman, who has been chief of operations during Thomas' absence, yesterday took exception to George Halas' remarks concerning use of the college rules in the game Aug. 29.

"Our team," Bachman said, "is composed of fine college players, who form a group better than the average university material but not as good and certainly not as experienced as the Bears. If the Bears didn't have Nagurski they wouldn't yell so much for the professional forward pass rule. Other pro teams, notably the New York Giants, seem to get results by having the passer back at least five yards.

"The college rule imposes no disadvantage on the Bears, as such. It does handicap one player who has made a specialty of a lob pass, but the Bears should not admit that this one play is so essential that without it they are only a mediocre eleven."

The major portion of this week's practice, the coaches indicated yesterday, will be spent on defense. So far slight attention has been paid to the strategy by which the All-Americans hope to stop Beattie Feathers, the National league's leading ground gainer, and Nagurski.

Japan Leads U. S. in Swim Meet, 14 to 7

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The finest swimmers of the United States and Japan began a three-day competition for world supremacy here tonight, with the Japanese winning three of the four races before a crowd of 15,000.

The American team escaped a shutout by scoring a close victory in the 300 meter medley relay. The time was three minutes, 20.2 seconds, the best recorded.

In the backstroke lap of the relay, Taylor Drysdale of Detroit gained a two meter lead over Kiichi Yoshida. In the second or breast stroke lap Jack Kasley of the University of Michigan held this advantage against Reizo Koike, Olympic 200 meter breast stroke record holder.

Fick Sprints to Victory.

With this small lead, Peter Fick of the New York Athletic club sprinted to victory in competition with Masanori Yusa, member of the Japanese team which set a world record for the 800 meter relay at the last Olympic games.

The point score of the opening evening gave Japan 14 and the United States 7, counting first places as three, seconds as two, and thirds as one.

Koike won the opening event, the 200 meter breast stroke, in 2:42.6, equaling the world mark set by J. Cartonnet of France in 1933. His team mate, Tetsuo Hamuro of Nihon university, was second, and Johnny Higgins of Olneyville, R. I., took third.

Yusa Wins 200 Meters.

Masanori Yusa of Nihon university scored again for Japan in the 200 meter free style event, in two minutes 13.2 seconds. John Macionis of Philadelphia was second, and Art Lindegren of Hollywood third. Jim Gilhulu of Detroit, American star at this distance, did not compete because of an infected ear.

The 1,500 meter free style race was all Japanese, with Gen Ishiharada of Neiji university leading Shozo Makino of Waseda university and Niroshi Negami of Rikkyo university to the finish in 19 minutes 12 seconds.

68 ANSWER 1ST CALL FOR YALE FOOTBALL DRILL

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Raymond W. [Ducky] Pond, Yale football coach, chose a hot summer day to issue his first call to candidates for the varsity.

Sixty-eight players, Pond revealed today, have been asked to report here Sept. 12, whence they will go to the training camp at Gales Ferry on the banks of the Thames river near New London.

The sixty-eight varsity aspirants, headed by Capt. Kim Whitehead, include men coming up from last year's freshman squad. Others included are Jerry Roscoe, Tommy Curtin, and Bernie Rankin, consistent ground-gainers in the Eli back field last year; Larry Kelley, end, and Dick Barr, whose center play was a feature in the 1934 Yale line.

Bears Forget Scrimmage as Injuries Grow

men who, in an unguarded moment, admitted good health. Meanwhile, backs and ends continued the passing drill that occupied the entire squad yesterday.

Halas plans to hold a scrimmage tomorrow afternoon, but he refused to announce a definite schedule for the day until he receives reports from physicians in the morning. He intimated he may call off the morning workout. There is no apprehension over the ability of Nagurski, Ronzani, Carlson and the left tackle candidates to play in the All-Star game, but coaches are greatly concerned over their inability to practice. Their absence now prevents the perfecting of an attack.

Dick Hanley, former coach at Northwestern, was among the visitors today as was Tarzan Taylor, line coach at Marquette university, who also is a veteran professional player. Hanley watched the morning drill.

ST. JOHNS TO PLAY COAST SCHOOL IN 2 YEAR SERIES

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Col. F. W. Mouso, treasurer at St. John's Military academy, today announced completion of negotiations for a home and home football series between the academy and Black Foxe Military institute of Los Angeles, Cal.

The first game will be played in Los Angeles on Thanksgiving day. Black Foxe will come east to play St. John's at Chicago in 1936. The St. John's squad will be the guests of the American Airways on its trip to the coast, flying both ways.

Fred Flato, six foot half back from Corpus Christi, Tex., captain of the St. Johns team, is expected to report to the academy before the Chicago Bears break training for the game with the All-Stars at Chicago, Aug. 29. The remainder of the squad will report early in September to begin practice.

Quin Ryan to Interview Warburton on W-G-N

Cotton Warburton, star quarter back on the Southern California football team for three years and a member of the College All-Stars who meet the Chicago Bears in the charity game at Soldiers' field on Aug. 29, will be interviewed by Quin Ryan on his sports review at 9:07 o'clock tonight.

REACHES NET FINAL.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Harry Corbin, Wichita, today defeated Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, 3-6, 13-11, 7-5 to enter the finals of the Alabama tennis tournament. His opponent tomorrow will be George Fryor, Oklahoma City.

Five Champions to See Action on Week's Ring Card

Five champions and a former holder of a crown head this week's national boxing program. The champions are Tony Canzoneri and Lorenzo Lovings, both lightweights; Freddy Miller and Al Nettlow, both featherweights, and Jack Doyle, heavyweight. The former title holder is Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight, now competing as a heavyweight.

Nettlow will box Tony Michaels in a four round preliminary to the eight round main contest between Henry Hook and Baby Manuel at Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Lovings will make his pro debut on Tuesday at Western stadium in a supporting match to the ten round windup between Bobby Pacho, California junior welterweight, and Gene Higgins.

Canzoneri clashes with Frank Klick at San Francisco tomorrow and Miller is booked to fight Roger Bernard at Cincinnati, O., Tuesday. Neither is for the title. Doyle will battle Buddy Baer, heavyweight brother of Max Baer, at six rounds at Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl Thursday. Loughran is paired against Al Delaney at Buffalo, N. Y., Wednesday.

COAST STARS SET TO GIVE BEARS BUSY EVENING

Cotton Warburton Collegians' Open Field Threat

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Pacific coast colleges, which one year ago sent Homer Griffith, Bill Smith, Ad Schwammel, and Mike Mikulak into memorable action against the Chicago Bears, will oblige again this year with a highly competent delegation of athletes who hope and expect to give the Bears a headache.

Back field men predominate in the far west contribution, which Coaches Thomas, Bachman, Spears, and Madigan are currently dedicating to the hoped for discomfiture of Coach George Halas of the Bears.

Cotton Warburton of Southern California, whose wispy white thatch has always waved most wildly in the midst of the fray, is probably the best known of the current coast delegation of nine players. Little Cotton, who grins at throwing his 148 pounds against the roughest of the 200 pound Bears, represents, probably, a more concentrated open field threat than any player in the game.

Just Give Cotton an Opening.

Let Big Stan Kostka of Minnesota, his 215 pound full back teammate, and Big Al Nichelini of St. Mary's, or Big Frank Sobrero of Santa Clara playing as interferers earn Cotton the smallest opening and the football rooters on the night of Aug. 29 are likely to see the liveliest game of football hare and hounds imaginable.

Besides Al Nichelini of St. Mary's, who distinguished himself chiefly in successive hard fought victories which the Oakland, Cal., school won from its rival, Fordham, in New York, the San Francisco bay territory has sent four other outstanding players—all of them from denominational schools—to strengthen the collegians' chances against the Bears.

These are Joe [Salty] Salatino, quarter back, and Frank Sobrero, half back, of Santa Clara; Larry Siemering, 200 pound center, and Jim Barber, 212 pound tackle from San Francisco university. Salatino not only is a good ball carrier but was the best signal calling quarter back in the far west during the 1934 season.

With a team like the 1935 All-Stars, which has a line strong in every position and the 20 best backs in varsity football, those who watched Salatino's coast career expect he may puncture the Chicago Bears in spots.

How Sobrero Can Pass!

Sobrero is the next most sensational forward passer to Dixie Howell of Alabama to appear on a far west gridiron during the 1934 football season, and it must not be forgotten that in the Bear game Sobrero will have glue fingered Don Hutson, Dixie Howell's touchdown scoring pass catcher, to pitch to. Sobrero throws his passes from a dead run and from an unusual pitching position. Galloping and circling back of his scrimmage line with the ball fitted snugly into his constantly moving right hand, Sobrero will suddenly leap high into the air, knees bent, his legs doubled to gain an extra inch or two of height, and will abruptly lash out a sidearm or overhead toss which zips the ball toward a speeding receiver.

Jim Barber, captain of last autumn's San Francisco university team, and with Reynolds of Stanford was generally rated as all-coast choice at his position. His stringy appearance on a football field is deceptive, due chiefly to his 6 feet 3 and a fraction inches of height. The coast boy displays a knack of leverage with his long legs and lethery thighs that frequently lifts an opposing lineman out of play. Larry Siemering, S. F. U. center, steady on getting his ball into the hands of his backs, shifty on his feet, shap-eyed and fast moving on defense, and smart on passes, was the coast's nomination for two years for the fictitious all-American honors.

Morse Plays Smashing Game.

Ray [Butch] Morse, University of Oregon end, was co-captain of his team last fall, and won unanimity in the coast football sector as the year's choice for wing man. Quite rugged, nearly 200 pounds in weight, hard to hurt, and a glutton for hard going, Morse is the smashing type of end which will be required if the Bears are to be turned back at the flanks.

Charles [Chuck] Mucha, a Chicago boy who played his college football under Coach Jimmy Phelan at University of Washington, is another bulwark for the scrimmage line. Only 5 feet 8 inches in height, he weighed 191 when he played with the Huskies, but reported a little heavier here last week, making him just about as easy to move as a grand piano.

They Can't Stop Inky.

Haskell [Inky] Wotkyns, full back from Southern California, rounds up the coast's all-star delegation of nine players. Inky had the misfortune of playing on a losing team last season, on which, however, he was the year's standout. No team on the Trojans' 1934 schedule was able wholly to stop Inky, who possesses sprint speed superior to his agile team mate, Cotton Warburton.

DROP IN SILVER COMES AS BLOW TO SPECULATORS

Results from Cut in U. S. Bid Price in London.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Bombay speculators seem to be the chief victims of the current silver crisis and all sorts of stories are afloat about possible failures there as a result of the decline in price. The trouble was started almost accidentally when the United States treasury last Monday lowered the buying price by 1-16th of a penny to bring the London price into exchange parity with New York's.

The arithmetic was obvious and London accepted it without alarm. But the news hit Bombay at a time when lenders were beginning to press for larger margins on loans which had been made to silver speculators and the upshot was that Bombay holders were forced to disgorge in excess of 20,000,000 ounces of silver upon the London market.

British Exports Less Favorable.

Great Britain's export trade is still on a pleasant plateau compared with last year, but the July figures show that for the last three months the plateau has been sloping gently downward.

The plateau dates from last September, when the daily average of Britain's exports rose from $6,300,000, where it had stayed for the previous twelve months, to $6,850,000. This rise was abrupt and inexplicable except as the ultimate result of forces set going long before.

For the last eleven months since and including September the averages have shown complete inability to work upward. On the contrary, May and June showed a daily average of $6,800,000, July another decline to $6,750,000. It is this which preoccupies the bankers, statisticians, and economists.

Politicians Ignore Trade Decline.

The politicians ignore this decline and point out that the daily average for the first seven months of this year remains around $6,850,000 compared with only $6,200,000 during the same period last year and $5,575,000 during the first seven months of 1933.

No doubt both views are legitimate. What gives the former view considerable importance, however, is the fact that Britain's retained imports of raw materials have thus far in 1935 lagged behind the retained imports last year, suggesting that British manufacturers are being forced to curtail purchases because the available market is saturated or otherwise restricted.

VAST QUANTITIES OF FOREIGN GRAIN FED LIVE STOCK

Vast quantities of foreign grown grains are being fed this year to live stock on farms in this country as a result of the 1934 drouth and the crop restrictions of the AAA. Farmers of other nations have reaped millions of dollars from grain used for fattening meat animals in America.

Live stock raisers and feeders of this country, always bitterly opposed to the importation of meats and meat products from other nations have been placed in the undesirable position of bringing in foreign grain or fattening meat animals entirely on grass, due to the small crop of grain produced last year.

During the last week the markets have handled a greater proportion of strictly "grassy" cattle than probably ever before, resulting in a marked spread in prices between grassy and the "corn feds," the latter bringing the biggest premiums in several weeks.

Poorest grassy steers and yearlings fell 25 cents in value from the close of the preceding week, while fat cattle, both steers and yearling stock, advanced 25 to 75 cents, better grades showing the sharpest upturn.

Final hog prices were 15 to 25 cents higher than a week earlier, with the average for the six days at $13.50, highest since July, 1926. The price shows a gain of 40 cents compared with a week ago and is $1.15 above two weeks ago.

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per cwt collected for the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are for 100 lbs of live animal:

NEARBY LARD DELIVERIES SHOW MAXIMUM DECLINE

Nearby deliveries of lard closed at a decline of 50 cents per 100 pounds yesterday, the maximum amount permitted under exchange regulations after advancing as much as 25 cents at the opening when further short covering was in evidence. The distant deliveries lost 10 to 25 cents, while clear bellies [salt pork] were off 15 cents.

It was the first interruption of consequence in the upward trend in lard which had occurred in over a week, during which period the October delivery had advanced $2.12½, the bulge movement being impelled by aggressive short covering which trade reports credited to closing of spreads with cottonseed oil on the part of eastern interests.

September lard at the top yesterday touched $17.75, the highest level since July, 1925, and showed $5.30 above the inside level of May 1 when it sold at $12.45 per 100 pounds, the lowest price of the season. Cash lard closed at $16.95; loose, $17.00; leaf, $17.25, and bellies at $19.87 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 17.—Demand for wool in the Boston market was much better during the last week with most grades receiving some call. Medium grades of Ohio and similar fleeces were moderately active at 31@32c for strictly combing 56s ⅜ blood and 30@31c for strictly combing 48s, 50s, ¼ blood in the grease. Only a limited demand existed for Ohio fine delaine, 31@32c for the choice lots and 30@31c in the grease for the heavier shrinking lines. The bulk of the demand during the week was for fine and fine medium territory wools, although sizable quanities of ⅜ and ¼ blood territory wools were moved.

COTTON FUTURES ERRATIC; SPECULATIVE INTEREST LOW

Cotton prices continue to fluctuate in an erratic manner, but made only a moderate response yesterday to a statement by Senator Bankhead in which he predicted that official announcement would be made Monday to the effect the government would loan 12 cents per pound on cotton. Owing to uncertainty as to the loan basis, speculative interest in the markets is at a minimum, and easily influenced. An early dip due to liquidation by holders of October contracts was followed by a rally. Chicago finished 6 points lower to 4 points higher, while other markets were 1 point lower to 5 points higher. Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points higher, with New Orleans 11.65 cents and New York 11.80 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

"WHY I DECIDED THAT NOW WAS THE RIGHT TIME to BUY A HOUSE,"

SAYS

DR. OSCAR S. LUNDEN, 7914 DANTE AVE.

"WE have three children. In addition, my mother and father sometimes live with us. We have been living in a six room apartment at 7826 East End Ave. It wasn't large enough for comfort and we were anxious to get back into a house of our own.

"I read Tribune want ads and looked at a few of the places advertised. I realized at once that the market was very favorable, for I have bought and sold houses before, and always made money on them.

"It wasn't long before I saw an ad which attracted me. It described a nine room house and gave a price which I knew to be about half of what a house of that type sold for in 1929.

"I called up the agent, Floyd M. Phillips & Co., 7504 Kingston Ave. As soon as I saw the place I knew it was a big bargain. I brought my wife over to see it. After a little negotiation, Mr. Phillips, the owner and I agreed on a price and closed the deal.

"We are doing a little remodeling and decorating, and expect to move in shortly. A house of your own is the only place for a large family. I think real estate today offers excellent investment possibilities—and the Tribune want ad section is the place to find them."

Would you like to own a house of your own, in a good neighborhood, and at a price which would make it a good investment for years to come?

Attractive homes are being offered at prices lower than the cost of building. People who have been out of the real estate market during recent years, and people who have never before owned real estate, are taking advantage of present low prices. Rents are on the way up. There is no longer a large surplus of dwellings. Building construction has been at nearly zero since 1930.

To get an idea of what is being offered, study the real estate offers in the Tribune want ad section Check the ads and inspect the many attractive bungalows, houses, two flats and other types of dwellings which are now available at bargain prices.

Value of Building Contracts in Chicago in the First Four Months for 5 Years Compared

IN THE FOURTH SQUARE, note the slight upward trend in the building of one and two family houses. Chicago's long building holiday is at last reflecting itself in rising rents and the scarcity of dwellings. Also, the desire for a safe place for spare funds is inducing a large number of people to buy or build homes of their own.

TRACES 27 INQUIRIES DIRECTLY TO WANT AD IN THE TRIBUNE!

"It has been our experience during the past five years, when the going was not particularly easy in the real estate business, that Tribune want ads are the most productive want ads in Chicago.

"In the case of the Dr. Lunden sale, we had over fifty inquiries after advertising in the Tribune want ad section, twenty-seven of which we were able to trace directly to our Tribune ad.

"We also find your paper very good for the renting of apartments and rely on it mainly in our spring and fall drives."

SHELVE ALL TAX LEGISLATION, BUSINESS URGES

Balance in Budget Sought First.

Shelving of all further tax legislation until the treasury presents concrete plans assuring a balanced budget and reduced governmental expenditures was urged upon the entire Illinois congressional delegation yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The business men's barrage came after careful analysis of the pending tax bill. Criticism was offered section by section.

The $250,000,000 to be produced was laughed off as a drop in the bucket, the business group pointing out that it would be less than 10 per cent of the so-called ordinary expenditures of the government in 1935.

Urge Cut in Expenses.

"Instead of encouraging new taxes to produce a quarter billion in increased revenue," the association executive committee said, "the administration should be considering means to reduce the already unbearable load on business and the wage earner."

The excess profits tax on corporate earnings was dubbed "capricious, inequitable, and unsound."

"The tax is based upon a purely arbitrary and fictitious figure having no conceivable relation to the reasonableness of a corporate income or the ability to pay. The present corporate income tax combined with state taxes on corporations is now so high that any increase will have a serious effect upon recovery and reëmployment.

Has No Justification.

"The intercorporate dividend tax has no justification. It is a discriminatory tax aimed at holding companies. It is an evil intended to correct the other evil engendered by the fallacious theory of graduated corporation taxes.

"The estate taxes are so high as to be confiscatory and will have a serious effect upon individual initiative and thrift."

Increasing income surtaxes are opposed on the ground that higher rates do not produce larger revenues but run into the law of diminishing returns and drive high incomes into avenues of escape. Incentive also will be retarded, the association said, and business and employment as well as federal revenues will suffer.

EAST ST. LOUIS TRACTION LINE SEEKS TO QUIT

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The East St. Louis Railway company, operator of street cars and bus lines here, announced today it would quit business because of heavy losses. It will apply next week to the Illinois commerce commission for authority to discontinue service and that a new company controled by the Rex Finance company, of Chicago, would seek authority to operate a bus system.

G. W. Welch, general manager of the railway company, explained to the officials and city council the company had been losing money for the last six years and that the loss recently amounted to $2,000 monthly. The company is a wholly owned subsidiary of Union Electric Light and Power company.

E. Roy Fitzgerald, president of the Rex Finance company, was present at the meeting and explained his plans. Fitzgerald proposed to sell two rides for 15 cents instead of the straight 10 cent charge now in effect.

COAST-TO-COAST RUN SPEEDED BY NEW AIRPLANES

Progress on United Air Lines' million dollar improvement program has been so rapid that plans are being made again to speed up the company's New York-Chicago-Pacific coast service about Sept. 1.

At the conclusion of the program, details of which were announced yesterday by President W. A. Patterson, the company will have a fleet of 55 twin engined Boeing transports capable of a top speed of 202 miles an hour and cruising speed of 189 miles an hour in its coast-to-coast service. Thirty-five of the new planes are to be completed by Sept. 1.

The outlay is said to be the largest single expenditure in the air transport field this year and the largest single airplane power plant order ever placed by an air line. The latter includes purchase of 130 supercharged 550 horse power Wasp engines.

FRANCE LOSING FOREIGN TRADE, FIGURES REVEAL

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Publication today of foreign trade figures for the first seven months of 1935 show a continuance of the discouraging situation with which France has been struggling for the last few years.

Imports totaled 12,347,000,000 francs which was a decline of 1,966,000,000 as compared with the same period of 1934. Exports were 9,060,000,000, which was a drop of 1,102,000,000. As imports declined more than exports the unfavorable trade balance aggregated 3,287,000,000 francs against 4,151,000,000 for the corresponding period in 1934. The really serious aspect of the figures is that last year's low volume of trade has been seriously reduced this year until it is at its lowest level since the war.

Selling Wave Engulfs Wheat in Final Hour

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat fell 2 cents a bushel when a sudden wave of selling swept over the Chicago market in the last hour of trading yesterday. The cause of the swift drop in prices was not altogether clear to the traders, but was attributed in part to the announcement in Washington of the suspension from trading of Thomas M. Howell, a leading speculative figure in the grain market for several years.

News of the Howell suspension sent a nervous tremor through all grain pits. Wild conjecture that Howell holdings, if any, would have to be liquidated, apparently inspired the mild selling panic that ensued. Howell's market position is not known, but the prospect of an appeal and stay of execution on the suspension order suggests the unlikelihood of any forced liquidation.

Wheat Market Unsettled.

The wheat market was in an unsettled condition when the Howell news broke. Weakness in Winnipeg and reports that transactions had been closed for the shipment to Chicago of a half million bushels of Ohio wheat were unsettling influences.

The December and May future contracts were the target of hedging sales which were considerably heavier than on the preceding day. Part of the hedge sales were believed to have been made against the purchase of Canadian wheat for import. Private estimates indicated that more than 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat have been bought by milling interests in the last week.

Other grains were lower but did not encounter the insistent selling that came into the wheat pit. September corn, which is selling at a big premium over other futures, lost over 2 cents a bushel on the prospect that Chicago will receive some new crop corn from Texas in time for delivery next month.

Closing Prices Lower.

Closing prices on the December futures, with comparative quotations, were:

	Yest.	Fri.	Wk. Ago.
Wheat	.88¼	.90½	.91⅝
Corn	.56¼	.57¼	.58⅛
Oats	.26¾	.28	.31
Rye	.43½	.44¼	.45⅝

The rapidity with which wheat prices receded before the late selling yesterday emphasized the timidity of speculators at the present time. Currently the volume of speculative trading in grain futures is small. The prospect of more rigid federal regulation of commodity exchanges if the pending commodity bill is passed by congress has contributed to this uneasiness.

INDUSTRY MORE ACTIVE, WEEKLY INDEX REVEALS

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity listed substantially this week. Increased production of automobiles, steel and cotton goods more than offset the contra-seasonal declines in freight movement and power production.

The index, which is based on 1929-'30 as 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation, rose this week to 73.1, compared with 72.9 a week ago, 71.7 a month ago, and 65.9 at this time last year. The complete index, with seasonally adjusted figures for its six components, follow:

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	73.1	72.6	65.9
Automobile prod.	63.4	53.6	60.5
Steel mill activity	64.6	61.7	34.6
Cotton mfg. activity	87.6	82.8	84.8
Electric power prod.	101.4	101.9	95.4
Residential bldg.	*41.4	41.4	18.9
Total carloadings	59.0	60.8	60.9

Transit Revenues Decline, but Still Exceed Year Ago

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Transit revenues during the week ending Aug. 10 were slightly under the preceding week, according to reports to the Transit Journal whose indicator stood at 101.63, compared with 102.37 at the end of the week ended Aug. 3.

Chicago Bank Clearings Run Above Previous Week

Bank clearings in Chicago last week amounted to $253,300,000, compared with $231,400,000 in the preceding week and $230,000,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

CALIFORNIA CHARGES AAA ILLEGAL; SUES TO RECOVER PROCESS TAX

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act was challenged today by the state of California. Officials here said it was the first such action taken by a state.

State Atty. Gen. U. S. Webb filed today in United States District court here an action against John B. Lewis as collector of internal revenue for recovery of $20,845. He said the state government had paid that amount in processing taxes in buying supplies for institutions.

Webb's complaint declared the AAA was unconstitutional because it interfered with the state's control of farm products, because it constituted an illegal delegation of power, and because the act's taxing power was being used not to raise revenue but as a means of controling agriculture.

FIND MORE MONEY BEING USED AS TRADE IMPROVES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Improved retail trade conditions are largely responsible for a $140,000,000 increase in the amount of money in circulation between Jan. 31 and July 31, the federal reserve board said today in its August bulletin.

The increase was contrary to the ordinary seasonal trend and carried the total of money in circulation to $5,518,000,000, a record high for July, according to the board.

Besides accelerated demands for money resulting from improved retail trade, the movement among banks to increase service charges on checking accounts has tended to augment the use of cash and therefore to increase the amount of coins and currency in the hands of citizens.

Some hoarding, a carryover from the nervous days of the bank holiday, still exists, the board believes, calling attention to the fact that on June 30 the 50 dollar bills outstanding were more than double the amount held by persons in October, 1930, the date of the first big bank failure.

LESS BUSINESS DONE BY CHECKS IN MIDDLE WEST

Checks drawn against individual deposit accounts last week amounted to $850,133,000 in the seventh federal reserve district, a decrease of 13.9 per cent from the preceding week, when the total was $986,854,000, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank announced yesterday. Figures for the week are taken from the reports of 161 banks in 41 clearing house cities.

Forty cities in the district reported a total of $848,709,000 for the week, compared with $815,060,000 in the corresponding week of last year, an increase of 4.1 per cent. Some of the totals for the week with figures for a year ago were: Chicago, $487,884,000, against $511,970,000; Detroit, $144,737,000, against $117,110,000; Milwaukee, $52,634,000, against $42,596,000; Indianapolis, $32,296,000, against $28,596,000; Des Moines, $19,745,000, against $15,025,000.

I. C. C. APPROVES NICKEL PLATE NOTE ISSUANCE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission announced today it had approved issuance by the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad of $15,000,000 three year promissory notes in payment for an equal amount of notes maturing Oct. 1.

The maturing notes were issued originally in payment of 75 per cent of $20,000,000 of 6 per cent notes to purchase a controling interest in the Wheeling and Lake Erie railway.

The railroad, known as the Nickel Plate, is a Van Sweringen property.

Better Demand for Glass Products Predicted Soon

The American Glass Review states prospects for early improvement in the demand for glass products appeared brighter last week. The steadiness of demand was regarded as tending to fulfill "predictions of a more active market in the last half of the month." Production of polished plate glass in July was reported at 13,908,529 square feet, compared with 13,162,515 in June, and only 7,241,867 in July of 1934.

Ticker's Buzz Is Music to La Salle St.

La Salle street is in a cheerful mood again. The market has assumed a semblance of normal activity, prices have been going up, and speculators are active. Brokerage house board rooms once again are filled with tape watchers who are backing their observations with orders.

Private wires are humming, gloom has changed to a diligent hunt for "sleepers" and earnings reports and corporate news is being scanned with an eye to possible price trends in a manner reminiscent of bull market days.

However, the cheer is not confined to customers as increased activity is being translated into more employment, new equipment, salary raises, bonuses, and additional tickers.

Former Employés Recalled.

While no estimate of the number of employés is available there has been an undeniable increase. Brokerage firms, working throughout the depression with skeleton stafs, found it impossible to handle the increased business.

Some concerns have raised wages, chiefly of clerical workers, who had their incomes cut sharply during the dull days of the last few years. In some cases the boost has amounted to as much as 10 per cent. Others have adopted a policy of giving occasional bonuses of a half week or week's salary. This has been done because of a fear that the boomlet may not last and they do not want to follow a hastily ordered wage increase with a subsequent cut.

More Tickers Being Used.

The spurt of prosperity is mirroring itself in other lines. Translux equipment—the illuminated ticker tape—attached to the quotation circuit of the Chicago Stock exchange May 1 numbered 7 units. Today the total is 18. On May 1 only 64 Chicago quotation tickers were running in four cities. Since then the total has risen to 77, while additions are under negotiation in 8 other cities. At the high point of bull market the exchange's tickers numbered 447.

The Teleregister corporation, which operates automatic electric quotation boards, has just finished installation of two such boards in loop brokerage firms at a cost of $25,000 to $32,000 each. Another is under construction, while seven others have been contracted for.

Wire company officials report a gain in the number of leased wires used by security concerns, necessitated by increased business.

SHARP RISE IN LARD MARKS LAST WEEK'S COMMODITY TRADE

A sharp upturn in lard prices marked commodity markets last week. The future quotations on lard and bellies [salt pork] again moved to new high quotations for the season on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Moderate gains were recorded in some other commodities, notably cotton, coffee, and sugar. In the grain futures market yesterday's closing prices were lower than those of the preceding week.

The following table shows yesterday's final quotations on a representative list of commodities, as compared with the preceding week and the high and low prices for the season:

CHEERFUL TRADE OUTLOOK SENDS STOCKS HIGHER

Week-end Turnover Unusually Large.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Optimism over the general trade outlook found further expression in a fresh rise in stock market prices today. Trading was unusually heavy for a Saturday, the turnover running to 1,076,230 shares, as compared with the total of 1,713,000 shares for yesterday's five hour session. The ticker found itself pressed to keep up with the pace of floor operations during most of the two hours.

Gains of fractions to more than a point were the rule in most departments of the list. Utility issues were again prominent, with such issues as Consolidated Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, and Standard Gas being turned over in large blocks. Most of the trading favorites of the division recorded new highs for the year or longer.

Railroad Group Is Firmer.

Rails again gave a good account of themselves, although the net improvement in most cases was held within a fractional range. New York Central, Union Pacific, Atchison, and Lackawanna as usual came in for a major share of the speculative attention devoted to the carriers.

The motors looked promising in the earlier dealings but the net gain of the group as a whole was not so pronounced as that of some other sections of the list. Auburn continued to forge ahead.

Fertilizer shares were given a whirl and the usual string of preferred issues were active, some of them scoring gains of 2 or 3 points. The oils were firm, as also were tobaccos, foods, and specialties.

Silver Issues Do Little.

Silvers had another "off" day. The white metal issues have been suffering of late from the vicissitudes of the metal market and from a subsidence of inflation talk.

In the later trading some traders sold stocks rather than carry them over the week-end, but these offerings were well absorbed and price recessions from the day's highs were moderate.

There was little in the day's spot news to influence speculative activity. Constructive sentiment, so much in evidence, was attributed to the excellent progress being made in major industries, the favorable trend of corporate earnings and the hope that adjournment of congress would be accomplished without action on legislation calculated to work against the market's interest.

SILVER FIRMER IN LONDON; N. Y. PRICE IS STEADY

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—World silver markets were quiet today. In London the price rose 1-16 pence to 29 1-16 pence an ounce, and in New York the quotation was unchanged at 65⅝ cents.

A shipment of 10,000,000 ounces of London silver is due to arrive here next Thursday, it was asserted. Of the amount one-half will be transshipped to San Francisco. The 5,500,000 ounces of silver which were scheduled to arrive today on the President Harding are also to be divided, one-half to be transshipped to San Francisco. The shipments, like other weekly arrivals, consist of silver bought for the account of the United States treasury.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and irregular. Pound sterling rose ⅝ point to $4.97¼. French francs gained ⅛ point to 6.63⅝ cents, or slightly above parity with the dollar, reducing the value of the dollar to a little under 100 cents, compared with 100.01 cents yesterday. Based upon the old parity of the franc, the dollar was worth slightly less than 59.06 cents, compared with 59.07 cents yesterday.

Bar gold in London advanced 1½ pence to 140 shillings 4 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.85, at which price an amount valued at $196,000 was purchased in the open market.

COURT REFUSES INJUNCTIONS ON PROCESS TAXES

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Judge Murray Hulbert in the federal court today dismissed injunction suits seeking to restrain the federal government from collecting the processing tax and the compensating tax of the agricultural adjustment act.

Deciding three cases, one affecting the cotton industry and two the tobacco industry, Judge Hulbert ruled that revised statute 3224 prohibited the courts from restraining the government of the collection of taxes. The court upheld that the proper remedy was a suit for the return of the taxes after their payment if it was shown the taxes had been improperly assessed. In each case a temporary injunction had been sought.

Brookfield State to Return 5 Per Cent to Depositors

The Brookfield State bank was authorized yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett to return another $8,412 or 5 per cent to depositors. Checks will be mailed tomorrow. This brings to 15 per cent the total repaid since the institution closed. In addition to depositor payments, $5,045 preferred claims and $51,500 in old bills have been wiped out. Receiver William L. O'Connell reported. Funds for the current distribution were obtained in the ordinary course of liquidation.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Twelve Men to Control Credit — Commodities Sing "On Our Way"—Polish Hams and Canadian Hogs Flow into U. S.—Cotton Prices Jump Wildly.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Twelve men—seven political appointees and five bankers—will control the volume of bank credit in this country and find means of raising the billions of dollars which New Dealers require to care for that part of their expenditures which is not covered by government revenues.

Last year the government spent 3,500 million dollars more than it took in. This year it plans to spend an additional 4,000 millions in excess of revenues. That money must be borrowed.

Individual investors have been shying away from government bonds, but the banks can—and will—buy them.

The banking bill of 1935, agreed upon by house and senate conferees Friday, assures that. Seven members of the federal reserve board and five representatives of the privately owned reserve banks are given authority to tell the reserve banks when to buy government bonds and how many. Even if the five bankers demur the seven political appointees on the federal reserve board can outvote them.

New Deal Takes Money.

Thus, did the New Deal assure itself an unlimited supply of bank funds to cover its extravagances.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] succeeded in modifying the bill in many particulars, but it emerged from the senate-house conference containing the control over banks' government bond buying operations which was the chief desire of the administration.

"On Our Way," might well have been the theme song of important commodity markets last week. Cotton, wheat, silver and hogs were well on their way somewhere, but their destination wasn't clear. They seemed to be going in several directions simultaneously.

Prices High; Few Hogs.

Hog prices Thursday struck a new nine year high, the average reaching $13.55 per hundred pounds, nearly double prices a year ago. This would mean great prosperity to the hog farmers if there were many hogs, but there aren't. Packers' buyers are scouring the countryside for more, but the receipts at Chicago and other markets are so small that packers have had to lay off men and close down part of their facilities. Half of the hog alleys at the Chicago stockyards have been locked up, because of lack of business. What small supplies are left on farms are now threatened by sporadic outbreaks of cholera at several widely separated points.

While Polish hams are arriving at New York and Canadian hogs are coming over the double wall of customs duty and processing tax at Buffalo, this country's already depleted stocks of pork in storage drop still further. According to the department of agriculture, cold storage houses Aug. 1 held only 370 million pounds of pork, the lowest on record, compared with 644 million pounds a year ago.

Predict Rise in Pork.

And packers report that despite housewives' complaints about high meat costs, the price of pork products must go still higher this fall if the packing companies are to avoid loss on the meat they are now cutting out of fourteen dollar hogs.

In wheat the situation became so acute that the Agricultural Adjustment administration at Washington last week suddenly had to reverse itself. Next year's reduction of the wheat crop, decreed the AAA, will be only 5 per cent, instead of 15 per cent as ordered earlier.

Cotton prices jumped wildly following the prediction Wednesday by Senator Bankhead that the government would lend 12 cents per pound to producers of 1935 cotton, thus holding the pegged price for cotton far above the world price. The following day the department of commerce released figures showing that the United States in the last year alone has lost more than one-third of its export market for cotton, the number of bales sold abroad this year being 36 per cent less than in the preceding year.

In Washington Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, still adamant in theory on the crop control scheme declared that the AAA "has not and will not change its goal." "The concept from the beginning," he said, "has been to produce a normal supply per capita for the American consumer and not to produce a surplus for a foreign market which has been lost."

Cotton Exports Ruined.

Whether cotton is one of the American crops which has already lost its foreign markets, Wallace did not say, but Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late "T. R.," at a dinner given in New York in honor of his recent return from Brazil, declared our cotton export business "almost ruined."

"I met many American business men setting up cotton businesses in Brazil," he said, "because they could produce cotton cheaper than in the south. . . . Why the situation is so changed that Brazil now ships corn and cottonseed to feed our cattle."

U. S. Silver Policy Puzzles World.

The American silver situation continues to be an international puzzle. A move by Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.] a silver inflationist, to put the heat on the administration to force it to speed up its buying of foreign silver was sidetracked only by the adoption of Senator Key Pittman's [Dem., Nev.] resolution to appropriate $10,000 to investigate effects of the administration's silver policy to date.

On Wednesday, despite the fact that the treasury in one day bought 25½ million ounces of silver in foreign markets—or more than the entire amount produced in the United States in one year—the London price went down. This buying helped foreign speculators unload but it did not prevent a further sagging of the world price for silver.

Foreigners Get Benefit.

Why it should be necessary to include foreign producers and speculators in the United States government's handouts mystifies Americans, inasmuch as the treasury is obligated in any event to pay American producers 77.57 cents per ounce—or about 12 cents more than the price in the open market—for each ounce produced within the boundaries of the United States.

Business in general continued good during the last week. The seasonal midsummer slump still failed to appear, a belief was growing that it would not occur this year and that the upturn which began last spring would blend into a further pickup after Labor day.

Last week operations of steel plants rose 2 points to 49 per cent of capacity and this week they are expected to pass the 50 per cent mark.

Stocks Continue Advance.

The stock market continued the persistent and almost uninterrupted upward movement that began last spring. The bond market was firm, despite a slight sagging in prices of United States government issues.

Wholesale and retail sales still maintain their gains over year ago figures. Dun & Bradstreet reported that the volume of fall orders ranges all the way from 15 to 40 per cent ahead of the comparative 1934 showing, depending upon the type of merchandise. Industrial operations, according to this agency, average 20 to 25 per cent above those of a year ago. Bank clearings are holding their gains over last year, latest figures showing them 7.2 per cent higher. Retail sales in July, the reserve board reports, were 14 per cent over a year ago figures. Electric power sales continue to set new record highs for midsummer weeks.

Packing plants with their volume curtailed by last year's drouth and the AAA pig and cattle destruction program, and railroads continue to present weak spots in the business picture. Passenger business on the railroads is the best in several years, thanks to faster trains and air conditioned cars, but freight car loadings are well below those of 1934 and 1933.

NATION REPORTS BROAD GAINS IN RETAIL BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Continued nation-wide retail trade gains were reported by the commerce department today for the week ended Wednesday. In its weekly summary of 33 major cities the department said every city showed improvement over the same week last year.

"While seasonal influences brought about declines in a few cities compared with the previous week, the majority of centers displayed increases from the preceding week," the report said.

"A number of cities gave evidence of the fact that the usual summer slump had so far failed to make its appearance. In New York retailers, wholesalers, and manufacturers reported a demand for goods that ran well ahead of last year. One of the main drawbacks to better trade was uncertainty over the processing tax.

"Cooler weather permitted retail sales in Chicago to continue at better levels than had been anticipated, it was reported. In Philadelphia it was reported that business activity continued upward, contrary to the usual seasonal decline. Retail sales in Boston and vicinity revealed gains running from 10 to 15 per cent over the corresponding week last year."

HOWELL BARRED IN GRAIN TRADE FOR CORN DEALS

U. S. Officials Decide Act Was Violated.

T. M. HOWELL.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—Declaring that Thomas M. Howell, member of the Chicago Board of Trade was guilty of violating the grain futures act, a committee of three cabinet officers today ordered him barred from trading on all American grain markets for two years beginning Sept. 15.

The cornering of the July corn market in 1931 by Howell and his associates was the basis for the action by the committee, which is known as the grain futures commission and which is composed of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, and Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

Corn Manipulation Charged.

Howell was guilty of violating the grain futures act because he manipulated the price of corn by "concealing his transactions in the market, by making false reports, and by failing to report," according to a formal statement issued by the department of agriculture.

An appeal to the federal Circuit Court of Appeals is open to Howell and his exclusion from trading would be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the appeal. Arthur W. Cutten, another Chicagoan, who was declared guilty by the cabinet committee, has such an appeal pending.

The commission charged that Howell, individually and through associates, purchased cash corn and July corn futures during the summer of 1931 and withheld practically all his purchases from sale to the end of the delivery month for the purpose of manipulating the price of corn in violation of the grain futures act. Prices jumped 14 cents a bushel in three days.

Referred to as "Howell Group."

In the original complaint by the agriculture department, filed last November, Howell and his associates are referred to as the "Howell group." They are, in addition to Howell, his wife and his daughter, Helen; R. N. Meyer and J. R. Meyer of Chicago, brothers of Mrs. Howell; H. F. Hall, Howell's secretary; Kelley Butler, Arthur de Cordova and Frank Bliss, friends of Howell; J. P. Bickell of Toronto, Canada, and the Barrington company, Delaware corporation directed and controled by Howell. Bickell and the Meyer brothers also are members of the Chicago Board of Trade.

It was charged Howell traded through this group to avoid violation of the agreement between the Chicago Board of Trade and the grain futures administration whereby the administration is to notify the board when a member reports open contracts in any one future of any one grain equal to or in excess of 5,000,000 bushels. All contracts of the group were made in the names of individuals, and were kept below 5,000,000 bushels.

CHICAGO STOCKS EDGE UPWARD IN HEAVY TRADING

Interest in Lower Priced Issues Predominates.

The Chicago Stock market moved irregularly in a narrow range yesterday to close a week which brought the heaviest trading volume here since the week ended Feb. 10, 1934, when 662,000 shares changed hands.

Last week's tally was 476,000 shares compared with 377,000 the preceding week and only 140,000 in the corresponding period of last year. One hundred fifty-seven issues were traded during the week, almost the same number as the preceding week's 159. Sixty-one made new 1935 highs last week.

Yesterday's 36,000 share volume was one of the largest Saturday totals of the year. Interest in the low priced shares continued to predominate, seven of the ten most active issues being listed at less than $5 a share. This was typical for the week, when low priced utilities were a major factor in producing the high volume.

Middle West Issues Active.

Middle West continued to lead the flock with 4,650 common and 550 preferred shares changing hands yesterday. Midland United, almost forgotten until last week, was a trifle soft yesterday. The same was true of Central South West.

Twelve new highs were registered yesterday. Zenith closed unchanged at 4⅜ after edging an eighth higher for a new top. National Gypsum jumped almost a point to make a high of 19½. Dayton Rubber issues, McQuay-Norris, and South West Light and Power were among the others at new 1935 marks. The latter two and Kentucky Utilities junior preferred were the only ones to gain as much as a point. No issue lost as much as a point.

Packing Stocks Are Steady.

The packing stocks, which came in for renewed interest during the six day period, were quiet but steady yesterday. Merchandise shares, also a center of attention lately, were on the soft side. Motors were steady to easier.

Continental and Ryerson, each up half a point, were the strong spots of the steels. Continental had a fairly brisk turnover.

Cities Service was up an eighth and Chicago corporation common was steady. Both enjoyed active trading. Cord continued steady and in demand at 4½, even with its best 1935 price, in the wake of New York buying of Auburn and persistent rumors that the Cord-Auburn group is "about ready to pop something."

AUTO PRODUCTION AGAIN TOPS 1934 AS FORD REOPENS

Production Last Week Is Placed at 56,386 Units.

Output of the automobile industry in the United States and Canada resumed its pace again last week and ran ahead of 1934 levels. Total production was placed at 56,386 units, compared with 53,854 in the corresponding week of last year, by Cram's Report, Inc.

The week ended Aug. 10 was the first this year in which production slipped to a figure under the corresponding week of 1934. The total was only 48,067. The sharp drop from previous weekly figures was caused mainly by the complete shutdown of Ford. Last week's rise, in turn, resulted from reopening of the Ford plants.

Chevrolet Leads Field.

Chevrolet continued to lead the field with a total of 23,000 automobiles and trucks last week. This or higher rates of production have been in effect for a number of weeks.

"With various dates approaching on which early production of 1936 models will start," said Cram's, "most of the plants are slowing down or closing completely in preparation for new manufacturing schedules. There are several, however, that already have announced new cars and these are likely to encounter little change in output during the next several weeks."

Industry Spending $100,000,000.

The industry is estimated to be spending some $100,000,000 in plant expansion, reopening of factories that have been shut for several years, and in equipment for the new models. This is said to be the heaviest outlay for expansion in any industry since 1919.

The biggest investments are the $50,000,000 General Motors program and the $27,000,000 expansion program of Ford. Much of the work involved is already under way and a good portion of it completed.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS MIXED IN UNLISTED TRADE

First National and Continental Illinois bank stocks reacted from their 1935 highs last week. First National closed at 166 bid, 170 asked, canceling 5 points of its 15 point spurt the preceding week. Continental finished at 75½ bid, 77½ asked, a loss of only 1½ after easing to sales of 70 from a high of 77.

Harris Trust was the strongest issue of the week, closing at 260 to 275 for a rise of 15 points. Northern Trust was quoted at 537 bid, 545 asked, gains of 12 and 10 points, respectively. Merchandise Bank and Trust was up 1 at 83 bid and no sellers. Terminal National advanced 1½ to 14½ bid, 16½ asked.

Chicago Title and Trust company slid back to 124 bid, 127 asked, after an 11 point rise the previous week to 130 bid, 135 asked.

Trend in Dairy Products Favorable, Review Asserts

Factors influencing the trend of both production and consumption in dairy products are more favorable, says a special survey by Dun & Bradstreet, "and the industry appears to be nearer stabilization than at any time in the past two or three years." The survey finds consumption has slowed down, however, and that creameries are less active than a year ago, when storage supplies had been curtailed owing to the effects of the drouth.

MOFFETT TO QUIT FHA TOMORROW; 'WANTS TO GO BACK TO WORK'

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—James A. Moffett, who was drafted from his position as vice president of the Standard Oil company of California to administer the Federal Housing act, is going to Washington tomorrow to resign. The man who has supervised one of the biggest jobs ever undertaken in this country insists that he wants "to go back to work."

He feels, and the cold figures of statistics bear him out, that the housing act is safely embarked on a career that will play a part of constantly increasing importance in achieving complete recovery.

His job, he says, was to start the ball rolling by showing American home owners, American bankers and American industrialists the possibilities of the enormous new business which the act created.

Since the act went into effect just a year ago, Moffett estimates that what he has spent has resulted in the creation of $703,980,655 of business.

A total of 5,553 financial institutions are actively engaged in making loans under its provisions.

SUGAR IMPORT QUOTAS REVISED BY ORDER OF AAA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Revision of the 1934 and 1935 sugar import quotas, decreasing allotments for Cuba, the Philippines, and the Virgin Islands and increasing allotments for Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the full duty countries, was announced today by the AAA.

An AAA statement said the revisions did not change the total of the quotas, since decreases offset increases. Inquiry into re-exports of Cuban sugar in 1934 showed Cuba was entitled to a re-export credit of 64,778 short tons for 1934, it was announced. The quota changes were made after an investigation of sugar imports under the Jones-Costigan act.

Explaining the Cuban re-export credit, officials said the quota restrictions of the Jones-Costigan act apply only to sugar imported for domestic consumption and not to sugar imported for refining and re-export.

Amounts previously alloted for the various areas and the revised quotas for 1935 are: Cuba, original quota, 1,857,022 tons; revised quota, 1,822,596 tons. Philippines, original quota, 991,308 tons; revised quota, 981,958 tons. Porto Rico, original quota, 783,959 tons; revised quota, 788,331 tons. Hawaii, original quota, 894,992 tons; revised quota, 925,969 tons. Virgin Islands, original quota, 5,341 tons; revised quota, 5,179 tons.

BANKERS URGE POSTAL SAVINGS PLAN BE ENDED

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—With government and other insurance in force as a guarantee of the safety of deposits in banks, many bankers contend the desirability and usefulness of the Postal Savings system now are open to serious question. The suggestion is being advanced that a drastic reduction in the postal interest rate be made and thus serve in time to drive most of the deposits into savings and commercial banks.

For years the relatively small total of its deposits made purely academic any discussion of curbing its activities. Now, however, the system has grown to be the largest single institution for savings in the world—virtually a savings bank, with 8,000 branches—with its deposits guaranteed by the government.

HOWELL BARRED IN GRAIN TRADE, FOR CORN DEALS

U. S. Officials Decide Act Was Violated.

contracts in July corn the holdings of the Howell group increased from 32.16 per cent on May 26 to 84.76 per cent on July 30, that by July 18 the group owned all the corn in Chicago deliverable on Board of Trade contracts, and that on the last three days of July, 1931, due to the concentration of future contracts and cash corn in the hands of Howell and his associates, corn and July corn futures advanced approximately 14 cents a bushel, "squeezing" those who had sold corn for July delivery. This abnormal increase in price lasted only three days.

On June 30, 1931, Howell and the Howell group had contracts in July corn of 8,435,000 bushels. At that time the Board of Trade reported the visible supply of corn of all grades at important grain centers in authorized warehouses east of the Rocky mountains and afloat on the great lakes at only 7,197,000 bushels. In the Chicago district there was then in store in public elevators recognized by the Board of Trade only 1,480,189 bushels of corn of deliverable grade.

Howell at New York.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Thomas Howell, the Chicago grain operator suspended from trading for alleged violation of the grain futures act, arrived here aboard his yacht from a fishing trip today, but efforts to get into communication with him for comment on the federal commission's ruling were unavailing.

The broker disembarked at the New York Yacht club's landing on the East river. He did not report to the club and left the landing without revealing his destination.

HOWELL WILL APPEAL

Sidney S. Gorham, attorney for Thomas M. Howell, said here yesterday an appeal would be taken immediately on the order suspending the speculator's trading privileges. A petition to stay execution of the order, such as that granted in the Cutten case, will also be filed with the Circuit Court of Appeals.

"There is no basis in the grain futures act for the action of the commission," Gorham said. "We are confident the court will uphold our contention."

Gorham said the principle involved in the two cases is the same. Assailing the administration for what he termed "stark foolishness," Gorham said, "The only reason I can see for this action is that they just have to find something for the boys to do down in Washington."

CATTLE RUSTLERS AGAIN WORRYING COUNTRY SHERIFS

Private stockyards police are on the watch for stolen live stock which thieves may attempt to sell here. In the last few days there has been a marked increase in the rustling of live stock in the country, and owners and sherifs from several sections have notified police here to be on the lookout for such animals.

The modern rustler simply backs up a truck to a farm fence, cuts the wires, and drives the stock into the truck, and in a few minutes is miles away. Frequently calves and lambs are killed right in the field and taken.

Live stock men attribute the increase in rustling to the fact that live stock is worth more now.

BOND OFFERINGS 103 MILLIONS IN LAST WEEK

Total Largest in Month; Canadian Issue Leads.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—New bond financing this week amounted to $102,884,000, the largest since the week ended July 19, when $234,148,000 in new issues was placed on the market. This week's total compares with $40,693,000 last week and $989,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Four major classifications were represented although a total of only six separate issues appeared on the market. Foreign, railroad, and industrial groups each contributed one new issue, while the state and municipal group accounted for three offerings.

Canadian Issue Well Received.

The sale of $76,000,000 ten year 2½ per cent bonds of the Canadian government by a nationwide banking syndicate stood out as the high light of the week. This offering marked the first Canadian financing in the United States under the rules of the securities and exchange commission. The Canadian bonds met an eager investment demand throughout the country and the success of the flotation is interpreted in banking circles as indicating a resumption of Canadian financing in the United States market.

Public offering was made of an issue of $15,282,000 equipment trust certificates of the Pennsylvania railroad. This marked the first railroad financing since the sale of $12,000,000 Atlantic Coast Line 5s in the week ended May 3, 1935. The Pennsylvania equipment trusts were purchased by bankers from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and publicly reoffered at prices which reveal no softening in the underlying price structure of the higher grade securities.

Chicago Bonds Sold.

The award and subsequent public offering of a new issue of $5,500,000 Chicago board of education 3½ per cent bonds held the center of interest in the state and municipal field. Two other smaller municipal loans completed the new financing for that group. Offering of a new issue of $5,500,000 Champion Paper and Fiber company 4¾s was the lone representative of the industrial group this week.

The following major domestic corporation bond issues have been registered with the securities and exchange commission and are expected to be offered soon:

New York, Aug. 17.—Except for the continued strength in second grade railroad liens, bond trading was without feature today. The absence of many traders from the financial district was reflected in a sharp falling off in interest in all groups, except the rails and a few selected public utility issues.

High grade corporation bonds and United States government obligations were neglected as prices held within a narrow range.

Federal List Mixed.

The federal list displayed a mixed undertone. Net gains of 1-32 to 4-32 were balanced by declines of similar amounts. The treasury 2⅞ per cent issue was moderately active and closed up 1-32 at 100.25.

Noteworthy moves in the carrier group included North Western 3½s and Illinois Central 4s of 1953, both of which rose 2 points; Missouri-Kansas-Texas 4s, up 1¼, and Florida East Coast 5s up a point at the close. Baltimore and Ohio and St. Paul issues were also responsive to the demand and showed advances ranging from fractions to better than a point.

Utility Liens Advance.

American Waterworks and Electric again featured the market for utility issues. The 6 per cent issue rose 3 points and the 5s netted 1½ points. Utilities Power and Light issues continued in demand at advancing prices. Industrial loans were quiet with prices holding steady to slightly lower. Richfield Oil 6 per cent certificates reacted a point.

The market for foreign dollar bonds marked time today, only minor fluctuations ruling in that group during the two hour period.

Bank Stocks.

Despite many adverse factors most banks have made good headway in the last year.

There are several reasons for this. One is the sharp comeback of the bond market. Banks had set up substantial reserves to write off losses in their bond holdings.

In the last year and a half the bond market has climbed steadily upward. Banks have found that the highly speculative bonds that they had written down to low figures on their books are now selling at much higher prices. Gilt edge bonds rose, too, and are now selling above par.

Mortgages that looked weak a year or two ago are being resuscitated by rising prices of real estate. Many straight commercial loans, secured and unsecured, have been strengthened by increased business activity.

Another bright spot is the deposit situation. Deposits have increased sharply. A substantial portion of this increase, it is true, is accounted for by funds deposited by corporations to pay off called bonds and are temporary in nature. In addition, however, a steady increase in other deposits has occurred.

Banks no longer have to pay interest on commercial deposits. They can therefore invest these funds profitably in short term high grade securities at a yield of a fraction of 1 per cent a year. In one sense, however, these huge deposits are a burden—banks must pay their Federal Deposit Insurance corporation assessment on the basis of total deposits.

Bank revenues have also been bolstered by the imposition of additional service charges.

There are, however, some factors that cloud the future of bank earnings.

One of these is the abnormally low rate of bond interest. Bonds today yield at the lowest level in 30 years. Bankers are hesitant about tying up their funds in long term issues at such low rates.

The yield on short term obligations is only nominal.

The commercial loan field is highly competitive and the interest rate small, due to the lack of demand for such borrowings from desirable risks.

A formerly very profitable sideline for many banks, the underwriting of securities, has been sharply curtailed.

The heavy stake of the federal government in banks, in the form of preferred stocks and notes, makes the common stocks of many banks junior issues. Dividend prospects are dimmed by the requirements for preferred dividends and retirement.

Topping all this is the current agitation to extend political control over banks. What the eventual result of such action would be it is impossible to determine.

CHICAGO'S FAIR GROUP TO INSPECT FAMOUS RESORT

Plans to Visit N. Y. State $15,000,000 Beach.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Of Jones beach, the $15,000,000 New York State park and beach development opened a few years ago on the south shore of Long Island, it often has been said that only in America would they tack a name "like that" on a place so pretentious and withal so beautiful.

The Chicago Permanent World Fair commission on its forthcoming idea-tracking expedition will find much on its visit to this justly famous resort to make it share the popular wonder over the choice of such designative nomenclature. For a fact there is little or nothing plebeian about the place but its name. Everything about it is done up in the grand manner.

Feel Like Millionaire.

Here, as nowhere else in the metropolitan district, the plain, ordinary, garden variety of holiday-maker may indeed "feel like a millionaire" for the price of his bus or car fare. Nothing seemingly has been left undone by the state park commission in charge of the project to improve to the utmost the bounty provided by nature in the shape of one of the most ideal beaches on the entire Atlantic coast.

The beach, more than three miles of glistening white sand, is lined for one and one quarter miles with a boardwalk rivaled only by the more famous one at Atlantic City. Two huge stone bathing houses [both state operated like everything else in the park except a food concession] have accommodations for 15,000 bathers at once. One of them is equipped additionally with an inland swimming pool, purified and safeguarded by the latest scientific means. There are two expansive picnic areas equipped with 38 outdoor stoves, with wood furnished free to all comers. A still water tract known as Zach's bay and designed primarily for aquatic contests, but in front of which fireworks displays are held twice weekly and other forms of entertainment at frequent intervals, is faced with 10,000 seats, a small percentage of which may be "reserved" at nominal fees.

Next Tuesday the "Bay" crowd will be entertained with a performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan masterpiece, "Pinafore." Band concerts are frequent items on the seasonal bill.

Classes in Calisthenics.

Public dancing is the order on the Central Mall—around the Big Flagpole—nightly and for those mindful of an improved physique there are free-for-all classes in calisthenics on the beach twice daily. Any variety of popular games may be found along the boardwalk, among them being shuffleboard, ping-pong, pitch-and-put golf [an 18 hole course for it], horseshoes, volley ball, archery, paddle tennis, tether ball, and even a baseball field where one may play for thirty minutes by donating 10 cents toward the upkeep of the enterprise.

An Indian village for children, presided over by a real honest-to-goodness Indian princess who teaches basket weaving and other arts and tells stories between rounds of such instruction, and a free kindergarten class for children up to the age of 7 years are other features of the resort.

And because Jones Beach is large all sorts of things have been thought out to enable parties to stay together. There are tall, numbered poles all up and down the beach which serve as meeting places. You simply tell your girl to meet you under number "thirty-two" and there, under number "thirty-two," you may expect to find her. There also is a local broadcasting system by means of which a hostess can collect her party or give instructions as to where her party is to meet. And, too, there is a fenced-in pen, mothered over by a capable white-uniformed nurse, to which you go to reclaim lost or strayed children. They seem to have thought of everything there.

Space to Park 16,000 Cars.

The automobile parking space accommodates 16,000 cars and on an average summer Sunday is jammed to the last square foot of its capacity.

Like playland at Rye, the resort makes something of a fetish of cleanliness and order. So rigidly are its rules against boisterousness and promiscuous littering enforced that more than one irate nonconformist has been moved to write his favorite editor suggesting that the name of the place be changed to "Don'ts Beach."

For all their firmness, however, the numerous uniformed guards are proverbially courteous. They blow their whistle at every fall of an orange peel, but they are adamant in insisting that the offending trash be picked up and placed in one of the numerous huge refuse baskets scattered about the resort and emptied often.

Being circumspect and "classy" the resort has no shirtless bathing problem. Nor are bathers permitted to drop the straps of their suits.

"It isn't a matter of morals," Albert K. Morgan, the superintendent, explained. "It's a matter of anesthetics. We don't think the appearance of either the beach or the boardwalk is improved by a lot of Tarzans, and most of the people agree with us and coöperate. On heavy weekends we have to ask perhaps 100 bathers to comply with our regulation in that respect, which for crowds that run to 150,000 to 160,000 is not a very large percentage."

There isn't even a superabundance of shorts to be seen on the boardwalk as is the case with most other public beaches. Women who aren't in bathing suits apparently prefer to wear either dresses or slacks.

The resort—Jones Beach State park, to give its full name—was opened in 1930. The land, 2,413 acres all told, was donated to the state by the towns of Oyster Bay and Babylon.

WINS DIVORCE

MRS. JESSIE BLOOM.

Mrs. Jessie Bloom, 24 years old, 5036 Sheridan road, told Judge Charles A. Williams of the Superior court yesterday that when she asked her husband, Harry Bloom, for money with which to buy some face powder he struck and beat her, with the explanation that he would "fix her face." The judge granted her a divorce on the ground of cruelty. Mrs. Bloom waived alimony. The couple was married in Waukegan on March 9, 1934.

National Real Estate Outlook Best in Several Years, Survey Shows

MORTGAGE FUNDS NOW AVAILABLE IN MOST CITIES

Home Shortage Grows and Rents Rise.

With mortgage money at last available to the home owner in most cities of the country and with rising rents, growing shortage in homes and a definite trend of capital to seek real estate investment, resulting in a general increase in market activity, the national realty outlook is the best in several years. This statement was made yesterday by Walter S. Schmidt, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, who based his comment on the twenty-fifth semiannual survey of the real estate market just completed by his organization.

Although mortgage money, considered the key to home building, is now available in 81 per cent of the 251 cities which supplied material for the realty board's survey, the key is as yet unturned in most of the communities.

Loans Still Few.

"There is a striking change in the degree to which mortgage loans are available for new home building," the survey states. "Real estate boards in 81 per cent of the cities state it is now possible to obtain such loans in their communities. But they add that loans actually negotiated are still generally few and extremely conservative. They tend to be 50 per cent loans and 60 per cent for new construction.

"Much advertised long term low rate loans are non-existent as yet in most communities. Many cities say banks, particularly, are reluctant to act under the Federal Housing administration plan. Few communities show loans on practicable terms for operative builders.

"A shortage of single family space in 69 per cent of the cities is reported. But with adjustment going on as to loan terms and loan practices, uncertainty still felt by families as to their future income, and construction costs still in unfavorable ratio to rent levels, there is in general an extremely conservative amount, as yet, of new home building. Many cities cite the need of new dwellings but lack of available financing."

Rents Continue Upward.

Market activity increased 81 per cent of all cities reporting, the survey states. Prices received are now higher than a year ago in 61 per cent of cities. Not in the last ten years has so high a proportion of cities shown an uptrend.

Rents for single family dwellings are going up in 71 per cent of cities. In metropolitan centers they have reached approximately 75.9 per cent of the 1926 level.

Apartment rents are climbing in 65 per cent of cities. Rates still are 52.5 per cent of the 1926 level.

Real estate market activity is shown to have been increasing since the board's midsummer survey of 1933. Price levels began to show a measurable upswing a year later. In the present survey, every city over 200,000 in population reporting is experiencing a more active market. Over 75 per cent of these larger cities report higher selling prices.

PLAN $45,000 ADDITION TO FACTORY PLANT

The Chicago Transformer corporation yesterday leased 66,000 square feet of floor space in the industrial building at 3501-23 Addison street, and an addition to be built, for fifteen years beginning Jan. 1, 1936, at a reported term rental of $240,000, or $16,000 annually. Starting in business in 1928 with 8,000 square feet the lessee, which makes small electrical transformers and reactors for all purposes, now employs more than six hundred workers.

Hart & Whetston, who negotiated the lease, also were brokers in the purchase of the property by Boettcher-Dienner, trustees, from the W. F. Williamson Advertising Service of Illinois, for a reported $125,000. The new owners will immediately erect a one story addition to the present 120x300 building at a reported cost of $45,000. Francis M. Barton is architect and engineer.

FHA Regional Director Percy Wilson Goes Back to Real Estate

When Percy Wilson bade adieu to the officials and staf of the regional office of the Federal Housing administration last Wednesday after completing a year as regional director for the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa, he was the recipient of a gold watch and other gifts from FHA associates in Region No. 7. He recently announced that he intended to resign on Aug. 15 and resume his business duties with the realty firm of Percy Wilson & Co. on Sept. 1 after a short vacation. Above are shown, from left to right: Gael Sullivan, administrator Chicago Association of Better Housing committees; Mr. Wilson, and Mrs. Wilson receiving flowers from Walter M. Brittain, regional controler of FHA.

'TINSMITH' TURNS INTO GYPSY TRIBE AND OUT THEY GO

The strange metamorphosis of one "Steve Adams, tinsmith" during his short tenancy of the store at 1452 North Western avenue, into a full sized tribe of gypsy men, women, and children, of which he was chief, at first puzzled Daniel J. O'Connor, receiver of the property. He took the mystery to Attorney George F. Anderson, who quickly solved it and had the solution legalized to the extent of having the chief and his entire tribe thrown out into Western avenue.

A dark complexioned man who said he was Steve Adams and a tinsmith, rented the store from O'Connor several weeks ago for use as a tinshop. He paid $20 advance rent. A week or so later O'Connor dropped into the "tinshop." He found it swarming with gypsy men, women, and children. Chief "Adams" was in charge.

"Your petitioner further shows unto the court that the chief and his tribe not only use said store for residential purposes, but also for fortune telling, phrenology, palmistry, and prophesying," read the petition Anderson filed with Judge Joseph B. David in the Superior court.

"What do you know about phrenology?" the court asked Attorney Anderson.

"Well, I know that if a man has a bump on his head he's probably pugnacious," replied Anderson.

"Throw out the chief and his whole tribe of gypsies," roared Judge David. "Next case."

Ingersoll-Waterbury Co. Rents Space in Garland

John W. Pauly, manager of the Garland building, Wabash avenue and Washington street, reported yesterday that the Ingersoll-Waterbury company, now at 111 North Canal street, has leased space in that structure for its Chicago office and will move to its new location tomorrow. Hermon P. Haynes is manager of the Chicago office which has been maintained in this city for more than half a century.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Aug. 9 to 15, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 32, with a combined cost of $344,300. For the corresponding week of last year there were 20 contracts totaling $204,200.

Plan High Power Light System for Conway Building Corner

Rounding out a comprehensive modernization program which has been under way at the Conway building for several weeks, H. O. Bailey, manager of that property, yesterday announced plans for brightening up both the exterior of the building and the neighborhood. Contracts were signed yesterday with the Commercial Light company for the installation of four street lights, duplicates of the downtown State street standards, both in size and voltage.

Two 28 feet high steel posts will be installed on the Washington street side and two on Clark street. Each will be surmounted by 4,000 watt lights.

Lighted all Night.

"There is a definite connection between street lighting, pedestrian trafic, and rents," said Mr. Bailey. "With the white terra cotta walls of the Conway building reflecting these four powerful lights, the Washington-Clark corner should be much more attractive at night to pedestrians. We believe increased pedestrian trafic will influence the store owners in the building and neighborhood to spend more on window display and also on window lighting.

"As this is close to the theatrical district, it is probable that we shall keep the street lights, at least one or two of them, burning all night. Installation will be started at once and the lights should be turned on within seven weeks."

Now 84 Per Cent Rented.

The initial steps in the Conway modernization program included the installation of modern elevator cabs and doors, now under way, and framed office indexes and directions on each floor opposite each bank of elevators.

The lobby also was rejuvenated by installation of a new ceiling equipped with a modern and attractive lighting system. Several novel features are contemplated by Mr. Bailey before the entire program is completed.

He reported the building 84 per cent occupied and 100 per cent office rent collections for the last twenty-seven months. The property is owned by the estate of Marshall Field.

HOOD RUBBER CO. RENTS 3 FLOORS OF MAC VEAGH BLDG.

The Hood Rubber company and the footwear division of the B. F. Goodrich company have leased the first, second, and third floors at the southeast corner of Wacker and Lake, containing 75,000 square feet, and will move there on Sept. 1.

Owned by the Garrett Biblical institute, this nine story building formerly was entirely occupied by Franklin MacVeagh & Co., pioneer wholesale grocers. It will be remodeled into a multiple occupancy structure. Robert White & Co., agents, represented all parties in yesterday's lease.

Thorp-Rogoff Co. Is Low Bidder on Postal Station

The Thorp-Rogoff company, builder, was the lowest bidder on the Fort Dearborn postal station, to be built at the southwest corner of Clark and Chestnut, with a bid of $123,400. Its bid and several others were delayed in the mail and it was recently announced the Lundoff-Bicknell company was low bidder.

TITLE AND TRUST ADS WILL TELL OF REALTY RECOVERY

Six factors in real estate recovery—occupancy, rent, taxes, mortgage money, construction costs, and operating costs—are to be analyzed in a series of newspaper advertisments to be published beginning next Tuesday by the Chicago Title and Trust company.

"The recovery in residential real estate is quite definitly under way," one of the advertisments states. "Six major factors are operating: 1. A marked increase in occupancy. 2. A definite upward trend in the rental scale. 3. Local taxes on a considerably lower basis. 4. Sufficient mortgage money, accompanied by lower interest rates. 5. Relatively high replacement costs. 6. Relatively stationary operating costs."

In conclusion it was pointed out that "there is an increasing demand for housing accommodation and present owners of improved property are holding on for higher prices unless they are forced to sell. It is becoming increasingly difficult to find bargains in real estate.

"There is real competition among mortgage lenders for choice loans at low rates of interest and low commissions. The prospective purchaser still finds it cheaper to buy existing structures than to build."

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION ANNOUNCES $400,000 MODERNIZATION PLANS

A $400,000 modernization program is contemplated by the American Medical association for its six story building at the northeast corner of Dearborn street and Grand avenue. Plans are now being drawn by Holabird & Root for a two story top addition and rejuvenation of the present structure. Formal action on the plans will be taken by directors Sept. 27, but, according to Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, approval already is assured. Work will start as soon as an official O. K. is placed on the program.

Approximately $200,000 will be spent on the two story top addition. The balance will be used for modernizing the entire building and making many changes in departments.

The entire new top floor will be used for enlarged editorial and library space. The executive, secretarial, and business offices will be moved to the new seventh floor. Various special bureaus will occupy the present sixth floor. The printing departments and others will use the remaining lower stories.

Founded in 1847 the American Medical association now has a membership of 100,000 doctors out of the 130,000 practicing physicians in the United States. It publishes many medical magazines and booklets on its own presses. It employs 550 men and women on a day and night shift. Dr. Olin West is secretary and manager. Dr. Austin A. Hayden is secretary of the board of trustees.

CHICAGO LAWYER BUYS FARM IN DU PAGE COUNTY

Thomas H. Slusser of the law firm of Carnahan, Slusser & Mitchell, who now lives at 5835 Circle avenue, yesterday purchased a 120 acre farm on the east side of Leask lane, just west of and adjoining the Morton arboretum, in Du Page county, from Edward S. and Frank Yender. Arthur L. Webster was broker. The new owner will remodel the old Yender farmhouse, said to be close to a century old, and occupy it as his year round home.

Mazzini Slusser, his father, was at one time Circuit judge of the Sixteenth judicial circuit, which included De Kalb, Kane, and Du Page counties. In 1921 he bought a farm on Ogden avenue, a mile and a half east of Lisle, and there Thomas Slusser spent his boyhood days, only a few miles from the property just purchased.

SUBURBS HAVE MOST BUILDING IN FOUR YEARS

July Permits 34.2% Over Same Month in 1934.

DUDLEY C. MEYERS

Building volume in the Chicago suburbs in July was the greatest of any month since July, 1931, with permits totaling $1,916,000. This was 34.2 per cent increase over July, 1934, when permits totaled $435,000, and 87 per cent over June of this year, which had a total of $1,026,000. The total of the first seven months of this is $7,500,000 as compared with a total of $5,584,000 for the same period last year. In fact 1935 already has a total exceeding all suburban permits issued for the entire year of 1934, which amounted to $6,803,000.

For the last few years July building permits have slumped below June totals, so the July, 1935 advance, contrary to the customary trend, is an encouraging feature of the local suburban construction field. For the fifth consecutive month the total has been over the million dollar mark in cost of buildings.

Hammond, Ind., topped the list of suburbs for the month, with a total of $721,129. According to Joe P. Guy, building inspector, the cost of the city filtration plant, amounting to $610,841, was the main item. Even with this amount deducted from the suburban total, July's figures were well over the million dollar mark.

Oak Park Is Second.

The second largest suburban total was reported by Dudley C. Meyers, commissioner of public works of Oak Park. The largest project is a $100,000 theater and store building to be erected at the northwest corner of Lake and Marion by Loew's, Inc., of New York. The balance of Oak Park's $187,560 total is for permits for six new residences.

Lake Forest ranks third, with $159,272 building permits reported by W. O. Paape, building commissioner. This includes $58,000 for a school addition, $67,000 for a water treatment plant, a $15,000 residence and alterations repairs.

L. M. Helke, Glencoe building commissioner, reported permits for five new homes, the lowest in price being $11,000, the most expensive $28,000, and the total cost $86,500.

A newcomer in this survey, which is conducted by the Straus Securities corporation, is Clarendon Hills, a Du Page county suburb. Albert Crosby, building commissioner, reported a $5,700 storage building and garages. He has plans for an $18,000 addition to the public school for which a permit will be issued shortly.

EXPECT 200,000 AT PARK FESTIVALS

GREEK PRIMATE WILL DEDICATE CHURCH TODAY

Ahepa to Join Rites at St. Demetrios.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Attention of the Greek population in Chicago and vicinity centers this morning on the consecration of St. Demetrios church, Winona and California avenues, by Archbishop Athenagoras, primate of the Greek Orthodox church in North and South America.

ARCHBISHOP ATHENAGORAS.

This ceremony marks the opening of the twelfth national convention of the Order of Ahepa, derived from the initial letters of the official title of the organization, the American-Hellenic Educational Progressive association, to be held this week at the Hotel Sherman.

According to Arthur H. Peponis, supreme governor of the order, the consecration of St. Demetrios church, the largest Greek Orthodox edifice in North America, will attract an unprecedented number of visitors. The archbishop will be attended by more than 30 other bishops and priests from the middle west. Preceding the consecration a procession will take place in which the officials of the order will participate in full regalia. In fact, the entire ceremony will be replete with all the dignity and pomp characteristic of the orthodox faith.

Saint Demetrios is known and endeared to Greece as "The Soldier Saint." Tradition holds that during the time of the Byzantine empire St. Demetrios was always to be seen, transfigured in the sky, in advance of the Grecian troops. He is usually portrayed upon a fiery horse of red. Next to St. George, the patron saint of Greece, he is the most venerated by devout Greeks as a symbol of their pristine splendor.

The Rev. Vasilios Pantozotoulos is pastor of St. Demetrios church.

The Rev. Arnold J. Garvy, director of the St. Joseph's School for Colored Children and assistant pastor of the Holy Family church, 1076 West Roosevelt road, celebrated his golden jubilee in the Jesuit order Thursday.

Born in Chicago in 1868, Father Garvy was educated at St. Mary's college, Kansas, and St. Louis university, and was ordained at St. Louis in 1900. After a period of teaching in Cincinnati and St. Louis, where he was chancellor and dean of the college of arts and sciences of St. Louis university, he came to Chicago to teach at St. Ignatius college, now Loyola university.

In 1919 he was transferred to the seminary at Florissant, Mo., where he taught until 1930. He returned then to Chicago as professor of English in the graduate school of Loyola university.

Two years ago Father Garvy resumed what he terms his life's "most cherished occupation"—educational work among colored residents of his native parish.

For Catholics of the west side and suburbs August is proving itself distinctly a month of spiritual retreat. Friday Czech women began a retreat at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Lisle. A similar retreat for men ended last Sunday. An English retreat will begin next Sunday, at St. Procopius college in Lisle for men, and at the Academy of the Sacred Heart for women. The Rev. Emilian Shonka of the order of St. Benedict is the retreat master.

Armenia Tiny Republic with History of Ancient Grandeur

BY ARCH FARMER.

Any story about a single group of immigrants in Chicago must necessarily begin with a statement of their background, their origin, history, language, and past and present position in the family of civilized nations. Such an introduction is especially indispensable in the case of the Armenians, about whom little is generally known in this country except that they repeatedly suffered starvation, exile, and massacre for their religion — Christianity.

DR. LEVON B. MUGALIAN.

Armenia today is a part of communistic Russia, a Socialist soviet republic having an area of 30,948 square miles, a population of some 1,300,000 people, and a national tradition that extends back through obscure ages to Old Testament times. Bounded on the north and east by Georgia and Abermaijan, sister soviet republics; on the south by the Areaxes river, and on the west and southwest by Turkey, it is but a fragment of the former Armenian empire.

Soviet Armenia has no seaport and is economically dependent on Georgia and Azerbaijan.

Claim Descent from Noah.

Its people represent only a fraction of what remains of a race represented by Armenian legendary history as descending directly from Noah, the ark builder. Between 800,000 and a million Armenians were slain or died of disease and starvation during the Turkish massacres of 1915 and 1916, and many had been killed in religious and political conflicts prior to that.

The great majority of the world's present Armenian population, variously estimated at between 2½ and 3½ million persons, is scattered throughout other lands.

Thus Armenia and the Armenians today—the current chapter in the romance of an ill-fated but courageous people. That either the country or its people might have escaped their eventual destiny seems highly improbable. That destiny appears to have been shaped irrevocably by two factors: The geographic location of Armenia and its national religion.

Armenia has been called the "most coveted highway of the world, a bridge across which pass the civilizations of Europe and Asia." A meeting ground of east and west, races have ever there exchanged their wares and fought their wars, traded their ideas and tested their ideals, mingled with mutual concessions or contested for rights and privileges.

The interior of the country is a great plateau land, traversed by numerous rivers and streams and intersected by beautiful mountain ranges which culminate toward the east in Mount Ararat, on which, according to the Bible, Noah's ark rested after the flood. In its fertile foothills the celebrated rivers, Euphrates and Tigris, have their origin. On their shores, says tradition, the human race sprang into existence.

Scholars are not entirely agreed regarding the racial origin of the Armenians. It has been suggested that they were a branch of the great Hittite nation. Herodotus records that they were an offshoot from the Phrygians, who at first lived in Macedonia, and according to the Encyclopædia Britannica, there is evidence that the main type of Armenian was formed by the amalgamation of a non-Aryan race of the type called "Armenoid" and an Indo-European race, either the Cimmerians or the Phrygians. The contention of modern Armenians that they are of Aryan stock has twice been upheld in decisions of American courts.

Christians Since Year 303.

The Armenian of today is a little above middle stature, robust, slightly olive in complexion, and usually with straight black hair, prominent nose, and high, wide brow. He is alert, adaptive, and remarkable for his industry, quick intelligence, and business aptitude. The women are frequently beautiful, with dark eyes and regular features.

Whatever their racial origin, it seems fitting that a people living in a land so closely associated with scriptural history should early have embraced a religion founded on the teachings of the Bible. This they did, turning from sun and fire worship to Christianity in 303 A. D. when King Tirdat, converted by St. Gregory, "the Illuminator," established Christianity as the state religion. As a result Armenia became the theater of an almost uninterrupted religious warfare.

The history of the ancient kingdom of Armenia is obscure, though as the land of the Khaldians [named after the god, Khaldi] it is believed to have been a satrapy, or principality, of

JEWISH PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE WILL EXHIBIT TALKIE

"Laughter Through Tears," a Yiddish talkie based on a story by Sholem Aleichem, will be shown tomorrow evening at 8:30 at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. The film will be accompanied by a tabloid version of the opera, "Martha," under the title of "Milady's Escapade." The showing will be in the roof garden if the weather is suitable.

"Socialism, Communism, and Capitalism: Which?" will be discussed by Dr. H. Percy Ward at the institute Thursday night.

Safest Community in U. S. Is Goal of Oak Park Drive

Newly appointed members of the Oak Park Safety commission announced last week that they have embarked upon a campaign to make Oak Park the safest community in the United States, and to attain for the village first place in the rating announced each year by the National Safety council.

"There must be an awakening of public interest in the case of accident prevention and safety promotion on the part of every citizen of Oak Park," said J. A. Erwin, chairman of the commission.

"Oak Park's standing for the last few years, during which these national safety contests have been conducted, is as follows: 1932, 86 per cent; 1933, 65 per cent; 1934, 42.15 per cent," continued Mr. Erwin.

Rules Become More Strict.

"In 1932, 561 auto accidents occurred; in 1933, 573, and in 1934, 702. Deaths, due to automobiles were: In 1932, 3; in 1933, 6, and in 1934, 7. The severity of the contests and strictness of marking have increased from year to year, hence, it becomes increasingly difficult to obtain a perfect grade. To accomplish this every man, woman, and child must be made 'safety conscious.'"

"One of our first moves toward this goal will be to cut out all angle parking in congested business areas of Oak Park," Mr. Erwin said. "This jams up trafic and, contrary to the opinion of merchants who surmise that a line of cars before their stores mean more business, in reality hinders shopping. In a recent survey it was found that in most cases the parked cars were those of the merchants and their employés, and to employ an old saying, 'a stream which is not navigable has no commerce.'

"In angle parking," he pointed out, "the usefulness of a four lane road is destroyed, for the space occupied by cars on either side returns it to a two lane state. Also, the pulling in and out of cars is decidedly unsafe."

The Oak Park Safety commission eventually hopes to cut out parking in business districts altogether, Mr. Erwin said. Owners of vacant lots will be asked to donate the use of their property for parked cars. Another project being considered by the commission is the establishment of a "no fix" rule on trafic violation tickets.

Safety Pointers Issued.

Some pointers issued by the commission last week are as follows: "Weaving in heavy trafic is dangerous to you and wasteful of others' time. When you pull out of a parking space look both to the front and rear. Passing on curves puts more than one motorist in danger. A turn from the wrong trafic lane is a violation of the motoring ordinance. Cross trafic will catch you unless you heed the yellow light. Play safe."

Col. Edward A. Blair is vice chairman of the commission, Frederick A. Rowe Jr., is secretary, and Emile Bloche, treasurer. Members of the committee on trafic ordinances are Anthony J. Mercurio, chairman; Frank A. Ramsay, Mr. Bloche, and Charles O. Butler.

N. L. Kramer has been appointed chairman of the compulsory inpection committee with Mrs. Ross C. Hall, W. D. McEvoy, and Henry F. Kucera acting as members. Mr. Rowe was named publicity chairman and chairman of a speakers' committee, members of which are Anthony Tamburrino and Mr. Ramsay.

MAYWOOD BAND MUSICIANS HOLD FIRST REHERSAL

Organization of a Maywood band which will participate in civic affairs of the village and present public concerts during the late summer and early fall was going forward last week under the leadership of Capt. Daniel Duda, 1514 South 4th avenue, Maywood, veteran band organizer and director of the 132d infantry band during the world war.

The nucleus of the band rehersed Friday evening at the headquarters of the Maywood post of the American Legion, 1116 South 5th avenue. The band now is composed of twenty-five members. Capt. Duda said that he hopes to treble this number by the close of the summer.

Several public programs already are contemplated, and a schedule of concerts is expected to be announced within the next few weeks. All band instrumentalists of Maywood are eligible to join.

LONGER TERMS WIN APPROVAL IN WEST SUBURBS

A majority of officials in the west suburban area are said to approve the new state law lengthening terms of office from two to four years. Others prefer that the two year term be retained.

Terms of incumbents are not affected by the statute, but it will effect mayors, trustees, and others elected in 1937.

Among those who took an active part in the campaign to extend the terms of elected officers were Mayor Charles Bartlett of Evanston, Mayor Frank Bruggeman of Harvey, and former Mayors Maurice Shay of Berwyn, Henry Tolsted of Maywood, and Willis McFeeley of Oak Park.

Sponsors of the movement felt that a two year term was too short, and that before an official could really put into effect a constructive program his attention was distracted by the necessity of another campaign. They held that with a four year term each official would be given time to become orientated to his work and that the municipality would benefit by an increased steadiness of administration.

In certain suburbs, such as River Forest, Riverside, La Grange, Hinsdale, Winnetka, and Lake Forest, it is explained that officials are chosen on a nonpartisan basis and are practically "drafted" for office. It will be more difficult, say leaders in these villages, to "draft" men for a four year term than for a two year term.

The feature of the new law which will have the entire set of city and village officials elected at one time, in force for the first time in 1935, is rather universally deplored by municipal officials in the suburban area.

VENETIAN NIGHT TO BE HIGHLIGHT OF 4 DAY FETE

Water Pageant Will Have 100 Floats.

Two hundred thousand persons are expected to attend a series of festivals to be held in the four major west side parks, with adjacent small parks and playgrounds, Sept. 2 to 6. Garfield, Humboldt, Douglas and Columbus parks each will present local programs for four days and combine on the night of Sept. 6 for a Venetian night and water carnival at Garfield park.

Plans for the lagoon parade at the Venetian carnival call for 100 illuminated and decorated floats, many of them depicting historic events, a number of them entered by west side clubs and civic groups.

Columbus sailing from Spain to America on a replica of the Santa Maria is a feature of the parade being arranged by youthful patrons of the recreation department of the Chicago park district. Another tableau planned is that of Neptune rising from the Garfield park lagoon.

Will Select Queen.

Each of the parks will sponsor a beauty contest, the winners to be named after the park at which they register and, in a contest among the parks, the final winner will be named Festival Queen. On Venetian night, the queen and her maids-of-honor will ride in a special float.

Through the coöperation of Mayor Edward J. Kelly's office, homecoming programs will be held at the parks with the aid of the Chicago Homecoming week committee.

Every west sider has been invited to participate in the festival week plans by Harry Joseph, honorary chairman of the festival, and vice president of the Chicago park district. Those who wish to give their aid are asked to register at the Garfield park recreation center.

Arrange Local Programs.

Local programs at the parks have been arranged as follows:

Monday, Sept. 2.—Children's day with picnics, races, games, swimming events and doll buggy parades.

Tuesday, Sept. 3.—Church picnics and Old Settlers' reunion.

Wednesday, Sept. 4.—Beauty contests, costume contests, diving and athletic contests, craftsmanship displays, community singing and Mardi Gras features.

Thursday, Sept. 5.—Mardi Gras dance and presentation of the new park queen.

The Venetian Night Water carnival at Garfield park on Sept. 6 will open with a flag raising ceremony at 7:30 o'clock, and a spotlight will remain on the flag during the entire evening.

Water athletic events will start at 7:45 o'clock and will consist of water polo, diving, canoe tilting, log rolling and a sculling exhibition.

Gondoliers to Sing.

The "Parade of the Venetian Floats" is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock when gondoliers will sing as their boats pass the reviewing stand. The period also will be given over to community singing and costume dancing.

The colorful pageant, "Columbus Sails for America" is set for 9:30 o'clock. "Neptune Rises from the Waves" will be presented at 9:45 o'clock, and will be followed by the appearance of the float of the festival queen and her escorts.

Fireworks will conclude what is planned as one of the most spectacular series of festivals yet held in Chicago.

HELPING NEEDY TO HELP SELVES CUTS RELIEF BILL

Du Page Charities Show Timely Aid Counts.

Aiding families in their efforts to be self-sustaining, lending assistance in emergencies where other relief agencies are handicapped by set rules, and performing a service that considers the plight of individuals in need of a temporary lift in meeting the problems of depression, the United Charities of Du Page county is planning fall and winter activities during which, it appears, more calls for its type of neighborliness will be demanded than at any time in the past.

The organization, having headquarters in the Glen Ellyn State bank building, and of which Mrs. W. T. Bruckner of Hinsdale is president, is unique in many respects. It is the only County United Charities in the state, is entirely an independent organization, and is one of the few groups of its kind that has continued to carry on with its fundamental principles regardless of obstacles.

Formed Before Depression.

The charities was organized six years ago, just before the depression entered into the picture, and was an inspiration of the County Federation of Women's clubs. The group made an investigation of welfare methods in the county with the desire of bringing them into line with the most adequate methods available.

All through the depression the organization has redoubled its efforts, rather than surrender to the new set of conditions involved. Its policy throughout has been to reduce the number of familes going on relief by timely help, thus preserving the morale of the unfortunate and keeping down the amount of tax money, which every one must pay, required when families cease to be able to help themselves.

Personal and skillful investigation of cases has been a feature of the program. A free bed has been maintained at the Hinsdale sanitarium, and timely hospitalization has maintained more than one breadwinner in the ranks of the employed. Care of teeth and tonsils has been given consideration in promoting health and its consequent strength for life's battle.

Thrift Shop Raises Funds.

A recent project has been a county thrift shop, where contributed articles may be purchased for small sums. The organization has held to the theory that goods and services must be partially paid for wherever possible.

During the summer a philanthropic resident of the county brought a load of potatoes from Wisconsin for the group to distribute, and the produce was exchanged for labor of various sorts.

Investigation of family problems has shown that in many instances the giving of aid for a few weeks has forestalled what would have become relief cases. In other instances the applicants, though in deep distress, were unable to meet the set rules of other agencies.

A study of history has convinced the organization that after every disastrous depression, privately controled charities have been obliged to step in and "clean up" the situation. Germany, visited by a plague in the early 18th century, first resorted to public relief. Numbers to be cared for increased so fast that eventually the authorities were obliged to divide the territory into districts so that personal investigations could be made in avoiding indiscriminate relief.

Conserve Tax Funds.

The Du Page group approaches its sixth year with new determination of carrying out its policies which include a neighborliness with no hard and fast rules, the requirements that recipients of relief give something in return, and that tax money may be saved by reducing the number on the relief rolls.

The Rev. F. H. Millett of Wheaton and Mrs. C. F. Amacker of Winfield are vice presidents of the organization; Howard G. Wilson of Glen Ellyn, is treasurer; Mrs. A. W. Abbott, Lisle, secretary, and A. L. Dawson, Hinsdale, finance chairman.

Members of the board are the officers and Mrs. Austin Angell, Wheaton; Mrs. E. E. Byerrum, Warrenville; Mrs. Jesse Capoot, Bensenville; Mrs. A. H. Finnemore, Elmhurst; D. E. Garrity, Wheaton; Miss Hattie Glos, Wayne; Mrs. Grantley Graue, Elmhurst; Dr. Timothy Lehmann, Elmhurst; H. Luehring, Itasca; Mrs. L. A. McKenzie, Itasca; E. L. Meservey, Westmont; Mrs. Minnie Prince, Downers Grove; Mrs. Lester Roth, Hinsdale; J. T. Schless, Downers Grove; Monte B. Taylor, Wheaton; The rev. R. J. Watson, Lombard; Mrs. W. H. Regnery, Hinsdale; Mrs. Clifford Brinkerhoff, Hinsdale, and C. C. Wimpress, Lombard.

GLEN ELLYN PARK BONDS MAINTAIN PERFECT RATING

The fact that bonds issued by the Glen Ellyn park district have maintained their standing, and holders of them have lost nothing on their investment, is a matter of pride on the part of the Glen Ellyn park commissioners at a time when so many bonds have been defaulted.

The showing of the park board is considered all the more credible inasmuch as unpaid taxes due the park district have increased until the sum now approximates $25,000, or a sum in excess of one year's income.

Nearly all the bonds are held by persons residing outside the village and the state. Members of the board are Commissioners Frank J. Schreiber, Sylvester E. Baker, Herbert S. Gilbert, F. W. Gulbrandsen, and William W. Hoover, president; W. P. Cooper, treasurer; Myron W. Whittemore, attorney, and Forest I. Lofgren, secretary.

ELMHURST PLAY PROJECT NEARS SEASON CLIMAX

Success Exceeds Hopes of Founders.

With a tennis tournament planned for Tuesday, and a track meet arranged for next Saturday. Elmhurst's first annual summer recreational project is swinging toward a climax of a season, the success of which has surpassed even the highest hopes of its sponsors. The Elmhurst Kiwanis club, with child welfare one of its main objectives, is responsible for this year's recreational program in the suburb. L. F. Ollmann, as director, has had an active time of it in arranging supervised play in the various districts.

Press of other duties has caused Mr. Ollmann to give up his work as supervisor of the recreational project and he has been succeeded by Charles Keller. Mr. Ollmann will continue to act in an advisory capacity. Mr. Keller has been active for some time in Boy Scout work.

270 Youngsters Register.

More than 270 youngsters have registered at the playgrounds. Director Ollmann said that while he was not sure the Kiwanis club would continue the work next year, he felt convinced that the filling of a need had been so thoroughly appreciated it would be carried on by some group as the result of popular demand.

The Girl Scout organization of Elmhurst is now lending its assistance in providing games for the girls and smaller children. Those aiding in the work are Miss Rosana Schonemann, Miss Lois Goble, Miss Ireta Goble, Miss Janice Doherty, and Miss Frances Kinnett.

Courts Being Improved.

The tennis tournament will be held in Wilder park, where the courts are now being improved. Clarence East, high school coach, and Pete Langhorst, college coach, will assist at the track meet.

Trips to the White Sox and the Clubs' ball parks have been highlights in the summer program, business men having been generous in offering their cars for transportation to and from the grounds. Director Ollman said that knowledge displayed by even the youngest boys on the fine points of baseball proved a revelation to their elders sitting beside them on the bleachers.

NIGHT SOFT BALL GAMES ATTRACT LOMBARD CROWDS

The appeal of evening games on the village green, referred to in the folk tales of other lands in bygone periods, still prevails as evidenced in the suburb of Lombard, one of the first communities to make twilight soft ball an institution.

During the summer, Saturday dances on the street have added to the gaiety of the Lombard scene. Cornmeal has given smoothness to the pavement, and music has been intensified through amplifiers.

Held back by a rainy season, the soft ball games, played six nights a week on a lighted field in the village hall square, have recently been drawing larger crowds than during any summer in the past. Competition has been so close that leadership has remained an uncertainty from night to night. One of the contests went to 14 innings before either team could score.

The soft ball league has planned to sponsor a carnival during the week starting Aug. 26, and soft ball games will be a feature. The five teams that have been playing nip and tuck are the Bradleys, Pureoilers, Sacred Heart, Merchants, and Westmore. First Church and the Businessmen teams are expected to push their way up the percentage column, as both of the trailing teams are striking back at their opponents with vigor.

LOUISIANA DEER FEAST PROMISED TO CLUB IN LYONS

C. W. Fredericks to Try Sport in South.

C. W. FREDERICKS.

Fellow members of the Lions club of Lyons will eat deer meat at one of their meetings this fall if the hunting season in Louisiana comes up to anticipations of C. W. Fredericks, first vice president of the group. Most persons may think of summer as the ideal vacation season but Mr. Fredericks contends that no outing provides thrills equal to that of an autumn period spent with the hounds in the southern wilds.

How Mr. Fredericks came to be an enthusiast on hunting in the Bayou state brings out a story of camaraderie made possible through friendships formed between men from all sections of the country during the world war, and the new neighborliness that has resulted from modern transportation.

Meet at Convention.

Mr. Fredericks, aside from his war service, has been a constant resident of old Lyons. His grandfather, George Neher, was one of the community's pioneers.

Vines Harris, native of Melville, La., belongs to an old southern family. Fredericks and Harris met at a national convention of the Legion. In his characteristic drawl, Harris told the northerner that he hadn't "seen nothin' yet" if he hadn't been deer hunting in Louisiana. Fredericks made a trip south to investigate in 1927, and he has not missed a fall since in joining his "buddy" at the sport.

Southerner Pays Visit.

The southerner, at Mr. Fredericks' invitation, came north to attend a world series ball game, and to find what the suburb of Lyons had to offer. The new generation, North and South, has discovered that the Mason-Dixon line probably never would divide peoples of the same country had they possessed present day facilities for becoming well acquainted with each other.

OLD "BLACK MARIA" RETIRED.

QUEBEC, Que.—Quebec's old fashioned horse drawn "Black Maria," a familiar sight on the city streets for a century, is to be scrapped. The city council has decided to give the department a motorized patrol to transport tipsy citizens to jail.

YORK TOWNSHIP G. O. P. TO RALLY AT PICNIC TODAY

A reunion and varied entertainment will feature the picnic of the York Township Republican club today at Green's grove on York road just north of Hinsdale.

Republican workers in York township and other precincts of Du Page county have announced the picnic will be for the purpose of renewing old acquaintances, forming new ones, and enjoying an afternoon and evening at an outing near the site of the historic Fullersburg mill.

Several state Republican leaders are scheduled to attend the picnic, at which the York club will be host to all G. O. P. stalwarts of the county. There will be games, refreshments, and dancing.

A feature of the entertainment will be a softball tournament between teams from Elmhurst, Villa Park, and Lombard.

WEST SUBURBAN PLAYERS FORM CHESS LEAGUE

Lombard and Glen Ellyn Meet in First Matches.

For the first time chess players in the west suburban area are being rounded up in a league that is expected to provide a series of scheduled contests throughout the fall and winter months. J. L. Shane of Lombard is among those who are active in searching out the chess players and getting them acquainted with one another.

Tentative plans include a chess league with players from Lombard, Glen Ellyn, Hinsdale, Wheaton, Elmhurst, Downers Grove, La Grange, and possibly other suburbs.

How Project Started.

The organization had its beginning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luster Starrett of Lombard. The two became deeply interested in the game and invited a group of friends for an evening of moving pawns, protecting the king, and avoiding checkmates. Mrs. Starrett is credited with being the star woman player in the area.

Recently chess players from Lombard competed with those from Glen Ellyn. Now Hinsdale, Wheaton, and Riverside have organized clubs.

See Suburban Rivalry.

Discovery has been made that there are more chess players in the area than had been supposed. A feature of the ancient game is that a man and his wife can play it on an evening alone, and a foursome is not required as with bridge. Enthusiasts insist that chess is not difficult to learn, but that becoming a good player calls for utmost concentration.

Groups of ten are considered desirable. Founders of the league say that each competitive contest will offer an opportunity to hold valuable post mortems. Which western suburb excels in the game of strategy is a question that, it is expected will be decided before the winter is over.

LAWNDALE BOYS EXPAND PROGRAM AT CLUB BRANCH

Newspaper and Cartoon Class Started.

That the youth of today is interested in its own enterprises is evidenced by the increase in membership of the various art and handicraft classes provided by the facilities of the Lawndale branch of the Chicago Boys' club, according to a statement last week by Norman H. Cook, club director. The club headquarters are located at 2801 South Ridgeway avenue.

Keen interest in all departments of the club's program of summer activities, including music, art, touring, collecting, cooking, and plant cultivation, was cited by the director as indicating that boys of today want "to do things by themselves." Typical of their general attitude, he said, is the club members' activity in music.

The club's band, consisting of eighty members directed by John Sovinec, won third place in THE TRIBUNE'S 1934 Chicagoland Music Festival and has participated in a number of concerts, proceeds from which were used to buy uniforms, enlarge the club's band room, and provide musical compositions. The club also has a saxophone band, directed by Mr. Sovinec, and an orchestra, conducted by Paul Schmidt.

Expand Art Program.

The club's art program recently was expanded to include a cartooning class and instruction in paper craft. At present, Mr. Cook said, members are making letter holders, baskets, book covers, jewelry boxes, belts, and hats. The paper craft classes are supervised by Miss Hazel Perry, director of the girls' department. At a recent exhibit held at New York City the Lawndale club won first place in basketry.

The first edition of the Lawndale Herald, a biweekly mimeographed newspaper edited by members of the club, was issued June 18. J. J. Yuza is editor of the paper. His associates are George Vukasovic and George Keblusek, sports writers; Louis Sheperich, picture editor; LeRoy Basha, Miles Kral, Henry Alfirevic, Emil Vankat, Mary Puckett, Ruth Kudelka, Henrietta Puckett, and Elynore Susmelich, reporters.

Correspondent in Camp.

The staf of the Herald also includes two music critics, Ruth Williamson and Mary Johns, and an art editor, Lillyan Korik. On the masthead of a recent issue the paper carried the name of 12 year old Joseph Doll as correspondent. Young Doll sends dispatches of activities at the Boys' club camps at Winona Lake, Ind.

Another novel organization is one devoted to collecting. At the first meeting of the collectors Orville Dral was awarded a blue ribbon for his collection of 365 badges and medals. Robert Keblusek won second honors with a collection of 1,130 stamps, and recognition was accorded to Joseph Vyskocil for his collection of cigar bands and to Louis Lejcar for his display of 19th century newspaper prints.

The club became the owner of a garden this spring when several members spaded a small plot of ground adjacent to the club building and planted flower bulbs and seeds. Petunias, snapdragons, marigolds, geraniums, and foliage plants combine in beautifying the garden this summer.

Girls Make Tours.

Activities of the girls' department have included domestic art classes and supervised tours to the Adler planetarium, the Shedd aquarium, the Field museum, the Chicago Art institute, and other places of educational interest in the city. The girls have made visits also to Lincoln, Douglas, Jackson, and Garfield parks, and to Thatcher's woods, where they held a marshmallow and wiener roast.

Ninety west side boys left the city recently to attend Camps Swift, Valentine, and Lincoln, Chicago Boys' club camps on the shores of Winona lake. The total enrollment of west side boys at the camps this summer is expected to exceed 400. About 125 west side girls will enrol' for the girls' period, which begins Wednesday. John H. Witters has general charge of the encampment.

EASTERNER SELECTED AS NEW RECREATION LEADER IN MAYWOOD

JOHN A. LUDLAM.

John S. Ludlam of Knoxville, Pa., recently was appointed director of recreation and supervisor of physical education by the Maywood Playground and Recreation board. Mr. Ludlam succeeds C. Collisi, who has been appointed principal of the Stevens school in Melrose Park.

Mr. Ludlam was assistant director of recreation and director of physical education at Morgantown, W. Va., for three years, and was director of recreation at the Lennox Hill Neighborhood association in New York City for four years. His training includes six years of intensive professional preparation. He has a B. S. degree from the University of Illinois, an M. A. degree from New York university, and one year of training at the National Recreation school in New York City.

Unanimous choice of Mr. Ludlam followed the consideration of 53 applicants from eight states.

Miss Florence Rotermund, secretary and assistant for seven years in the Maywood recreation office, has been appointed assistant director of recreation.

BACK YARD KEEPS YOUNG OFF STREETS

Not only are the streets unsafe as a play place, but they lack the equipment of swings and teeter-totters, according to the decision of west side youngsters gathered in the back yard of Robert Pacl, 2730 South 59th court, Cicero. "There's room enough for the boys and girls of the whole neighborhood, as well as our own children," say the Pacls, who are co-operating with the Chicago Motor club in its contest for more and better play yards that will save many young lives.

GLEN ELLYN GIRL DIRECTS SOCIAL LIFE AT COLLEGE

Margaret Stanton Will Teach Etiquet.

Vacationing at her home south of Glen Ellyn is a graduate of Glenbard High school who has made good in a unique phase of college leadership. She is Miss Margaret Stanton, director of social life on the campus at Iowa State college, at Ames.

MISS MARGERITE STANTON.
[John Barry Jr.]

In coöperation with the students, Miss Stanton directs and approves the arrangements of all college social activities. She has charge of the supervised dancing classes, sponsors the "Campus Varities," and is adviser for the Town Girls' council and of the Women's Panhellenic council.

Starting next fall, the college at Ames will offer a regular course in etiquet, and Miss Stanton will teach the subject from a text book she has written.

Was Class Historian.

Miss Stanton is recalled by fellow students at Glenbard as a dark haired co-ed of pleasing personality who was third highest in her class back in 1925, and was writer of the class history. She entered college at Ames in 1926, and during her freshman year was elected president of the Freshman commission.

During her second year at Ames, Miss Stanton was elected secretary of the Women's Self Governing association, and to membership in the Jack-o'-Lantern, womens sophomore honor society. During her junior year she was elected secretary of Veishea, the college annual spring festival, and became a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, national home economics honorary.

In her senior year, Miss Stanton was elected president of the Women's Self Governing association, became general manager of Veishea, and was elected to Mortar Board, national senior woman's honor society. She became a charter member of Phi Delta Chi, national literary honor society for women.

Named May Queen.

At the end of her senior year, the Glen Ellyn girl was selected as one of the six representative students of the class of 1930, and also was elected Queen of the May.

Following her graduation from Ames, Miss Stanton entered the employ of the Glen Ellyn State bank. Two years ago she accepted the position of auditor of student organizations at her alma mater. The position led to the one which she now holds as head of the department of campus social life.

HUMBOLDT PARK BIKE BOWL WILL BE READY SEPT. 1

Completion of the Humboldt park bicycle bowl on or about the first of September was promised last week by George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district. Protests over the delay in finishing the bowl have been voiced recently by bicycle enthusiasts and civic organizations on the northwest side.

The track proper and the tunnel are already completed and have been in use for some time. Brick and masonry work for massage, locker, and transformer rooms is about 90 per cent complete, Mr. Donoghue said. Material for the grand stand has been ordered and the structure should be completed in less than a month.

When completed the bowl will be used only for amateur events and for those who ride bicycles for health and recreation, Mr. Donoghue said. The bowl is designed for speed and safety and will be equipped with all modern conveniences. The grand stand will have a seating capacity of between 1,500 and 2,000 persons.

Oregon fir was used in the track construction. This is what is known as battleship deck lumber and it is not affected by weather conditions.

SCOUTS REGRET ORDER BANNING THEIR JAMBOREE

Boys Want Fund Saved Until Next Year.

"Of course we were keenly disappointed that the jamboree in Washington was called off," said Scout Executive William Schwedler, of the West Suburban council, Boy Scouts of America, last week. "But the value of all the planning has not been lost. If an epidemic of poliomyelitis had broken loose among 30,000 Scouts, it would have been a national calamity. Cancelling the encampment was a courageous thing to do on the part of the officials.

"We had 36 Scouts all ready to go," added Capt. Schwedler, "and after planning for three months it was a let down to get word that we couldn't shove off. The offer of camp sites from the mayor of New York and the governor of Montana were appreciated, and our boys still hoped for an alternative, but the setup in another location would be impossible before vacation time would be over."

Capt. Schwedler said that assembling the Scouts on Aug. 21 for the silver anniversary broadcast was out of the question so far as the West Suburban council was concerned, as too many of the boys had scattered to summer camps, caddying jobs, and the harvest fields.

"Our boys," said Capt. Schwedler, "are hoping for a jamboree next year and some of them are desirous of having their funds held for that purpose. The national office had received more than a half million dollars from the Scouts, the sum having been insured, with a clause providing for settlement in case of the interference of a pestilence."

'Y' CAMERA CLUB WILL HEAR TALK ON PHOTO PRINTS

A print criticism by Edward D. Cromwell, president, will open the Irving "Y" Camera club's meeting tomorrow evening at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park boulevard.

He also will discuss "Toning Methods." Other speakers will be E. A. Johnson who will talk on "Composition," W. F. Hampton who will describe "The Miniature Camera," and L. W. Schoepp who will explain "The Variations of Contrast."

An exhibit of miscellaneous prints, the work of Miss Edwina Reed, is now on display in the "Y" lobby. Next Monday Frank Kuper will hang his show in accordance with the club's plans to give each member the opportunity to exhibit his prints.

LAWNDALE AREA HISTORY GROUP GATHERS RELICS

Old Settlers Still in District Urged to Aid.

Commemorating the period, 87 years ago, when Peter Crawford bought his 160 acres of government land, the month of September has been chosen for the holding of the second meeting of the Lawndale-Crawford Historical association.

Phitographs and relics are being gathered for an exhibit and Miss Marie Stampen, secretary of the association, is seeking the coöperation of old settlers of the Lawndale-Crawford district.

In recent years the compilation of neighborhood history has been an important task of Chicago branch libraries, and historical societies have been organized in different sections of the city. The Lawndale-Crawford association, a subsidiary of the West Side Historical association, held its first meeting last December at the Toman branch library.

Compile Permanent File.

The first session was so successful that a permanent organization was formed with Larned Meacham of La Grange as president and Mrs. Mary Newett Broadway, vice president.

A permanent historical file has been compiled with information about early settlers which may be consulted at any time by members of the organization. Early settlers who have not yet been reached are requested to call Miss Stampen at the Toman library or Mr. Meacham at La Grange.

Miss Stampen has discovered that many factors accounted for the influx of families into the Lawndale-Crawford district between the years 1870-1875. Following the great fire, the tendency of Chicagoans was to move westward.

Rebuilding of the McCormick Reaper works at Ogden and Western avenues brought many families into the locality. Good transportation was provided by the Burlington railroad and the construction of highways. A wide road was laid out from Ashland avenue to Riverside, then one of Chicago's most exclusive suburbs.

Lawndale Small in 1870.

The district of Lawndale, from Homan to Hamlin avenue, was subdivided in 1870, at a time when land between the Illinois-Michigan canal and 26th street was uninhabited except by an occasional farmer. Miss Stampen finds the same condition was also true of the section between 22d street and 16th street, so that the Lawndale district in 1870 was only four blocks square.

The two oldest churches in the district are the Millard Avenue Baptist church, 24th street and Millard avenue, and the Millard Avenue Congregational church, 23d street and Central Park avenue.

ST. GENEVIEVE'S PARISH TO HOLD PICNIC AT ELGIN

St. Genevieve's parish will picnic today at Wing park, Elgin. The outing is sponsored by the Young Ladies' sodality of which Miss Catherine Fannasardo is president and who, with her fellow officers, has planned a program of races and games.

Features will include two indoor baseball contests. The parish C. Y. O. Girl's team will play the sodality and the married men have challenged the single men. Swimming, dancing, and tennis also will be on the day's program.

Buses for the picnic grounds will leave the church, 4838 Montana street, at 8:30 in the morning and will return about 9 in the evening. Reservations must be made in advance.

Assisting Miss Fannasardo are Miss Marie Ringelstein, recording secretary; Miss Anne Regan, corresponding secretary, and Miss Mary Moran, treasurer.

Johnsburg Baptist Church Will Have Chicken Dinner

St. John the Baptist church will hold its annual picnic and chicken dinner next Sunday afternoon on the church grounds in Johnsburg, near McHenry. The Rev. A. J. Vollerman is pastor.

4 LEGIONNAIRES OF COUNTY WILL SEEK STATE POST

When 25,000 Legionnaires gather next Saturday at Quincy for the 17th annual convention of the American Legion Department of Illinois, four Cook county veterans are expected to compete for the post of senior vice commander of the state organization.

ROBERT E. KINNARE.

Among those prominently mentioned for the post is Robert E. Kinnare, past commander of La Grange post, who is widely known in Legion circles throughout the state. As department judge advocate for three years, he has many contacts throughout the state. He also has had charge of state trust funds of the department.

Others in the race, which by common consent is limited to Cook county in the odd numbered years, include Joseph Novotny, a member of the North Shore post, and a past Cook county commander, who has his following on the north side. He also has served as department judge advocate. Matthew J. Murphy of Police post and Edward F. McGinnis of Brophy post, past county commanders, also aspire to state honors.

Paul G. Armstrong, Chicagoan who holds the present state commandership, is expected to be unopposed for the post of national executive committeeman. Eleven hundred delegates will have votes in the selection of offices.

FORUMS OPENED BY KIWANIS CLUB OF LOGAN SQUARE

Open forum programs were begun by the Kiwanis club of Logan Square at its meeting last Tuesday at the Norske club, 2346 North Kedzie boulevard, and will be continued during the fall. William J. Niemann, program chairman, has charge of the meetings.

Among the subjects discussed last week were the projected Burnham park development, superhighways, and transportation in Logan Square.

At next Tuesday's meeting the program committee plans to present an expert discussion of the problem of superhighways with several city officials on the program.

TWO DAY AUTUMN FLOWER DISPLAY TO OPEN SEPT. 7

Amateur Growers Offered Array of Prizes.

A fall flower festival, starring dahlias, gladioli, and other flowers grown in the back yards of Chicago and its suburbs, is planned for Sept. 7 and 8 in the International amphitheater, 43d and Halsted streets. The sponsoring organizations are the Central States Dahlia society and the Men's Garden club of Chicago. Exhibits will be welcomed from all amateur gardeners and all garden clubs. There also will be classes for professional growers.

Both sponsoring groups have held flower shows each fall for several years, and last fall held exhibitions in Horticultural hall, A Century of Progress, which were admired by thousands of visitors. By combining forces, the largest display of garden flowers ever seen in Chicago is said to be assured.

Members of Committee.

J. Louis Roberts, 12147 Harvard avenue, president of the Central States Dahlia society, will be general manager. Others active in the management are B. B. Melgaard, 2138 Nordica avenue; L. W. Mack, 4921 Kimbark avenue; O. V. Morgan, Elmhurst; Frank J. Purrington, Wheaton; M. D. White, Winnetka; John J. Bruggeman, Hinsdale; H. J. Bluhm, Western Springs; Paul Battey, Mundelein; A. F. Boonwell, Riverside, and James H. Burdett, Homewood.

Ribbons, cups and medals will be awarded in the amateur classes. In order to insure fair competition, dahlia classes will be provided for gardens of varying size. There will be no entry fee for exhibits and suitable containers will be provided except for classes that call for artistic arrangement.

Schedule Is Prepared.

Copies of the schedule of competitions for the festival may be obtained on request from show headquarters, room 1311, 130 North Wells street.

"The greatest thrill that comes to any one who makes a hobby of flower growing," said J. Louis Roberts, "is to see a blossom, which he or she has tended, win an award at a big flower show. We hope to make our fall flower festival an annual event of national importance which will attract flower lovers from the entire midwest to Chicago each September."

LEGION NOTES

Boy Scout troop No. 39, sponsored by Advertising Men's post of the American Legion, is engaged in a sixteen day camping trip around Lake Michigan, the outing having been made possible through special contributions from members of ADPOST.

The party departing Thursday at Chicago avenue and Noble street included 26 first class Scouts, Scoutmaster Peter Kukelski, his assistant Milton Raff, a physician and a cook. Excitement prevailed as a truck was loaded with duffle and fish poles.

Charles E. "Chuck" Sloan, assistant chairman of ADPOST'S Boy Scout activities, mapped the itinerary and obtained camping accommodations. He planned to join the party over the week-end. Among the camp sites will be those at Holland, Manistee, Charlevoix and Menominee, Mich., and Oconto and Marinette, Wis.

American Legion posts at the various stops have assured Mr. Sloan of their coöperation in making the trip a success.

The executive board of the Cook County Council American Legion auxiliary will hold its regular meeting Tuesday noon at 7 South Dearborn street. Mrs. H. R. Dearborn will preside. On Sept. 7, the auxiliary will hold its annual meeting and election of officers in the Hangar at the Hotel La Salle.

WHAT A LIFE IS RADIO EDITOR'S! SAYS FRED ALLEN

Comedian Tells What He Would Do as Critic.

Though Fred Allen is making a picture he can't keep his mind off radio. In this letter from Hollywood he explains how he would perform if he were a radio editor.—Larry Wolters.

I have often envied the radio editor. What a life, sitting back in his dimly lighted corner of the bustling newspaper office, radio going full blast, this monarch of all he overhears wallows in power.

Sponsors from coast to coast spend untold round figures herding their talent to microphones. Program follows program monotonously throughout the day. Sopranos release high C's that split the stratosphere. Comedians babble bewhiskered jokes that totter around the radio studio and finally slink under the chairs, out of sight, ashamed of their age. Statesmen rant and ridicule the actions of other statesmen in command. The editor, his ear glued to the loudspeaker, stalks material for his daily stint.

Sopranos, comedians, and statesmen quake in their boots, or in their stockinged feet, if you surprise them at dinner later in the day. They know that the radio editor, slumped over his no tube set in that rodent infested nook at the newspaper office, has heard their efforts over the air. What will he say in his column?

What Does He Say?

Awake at the crack of dawn, the crack that hasn't been heard over the air to date . . . the luckless radio artists bound from their beds and rush to the nearest news stand. Their trembling hands fumble the pages of the morning paper. The radio page! Here it is! The editor was listening in! What does his column say? Paragraph No. 1 reads: "Smiling Lily Fumfet has left the Bide-a-wee Garlic program. It won't be as strong without Lily." Paragraph 2: "Winners of the local amateur contest were presented with copies of that popular Shakespearean play 'Much Ado About Nothing.'" And so it reads far into the column. Soprano, comedian, and statesmen are ignored. The radio editor sees all! Hears all! Writes nothing about what has gone on the day before. This is power! I envy him! If I had Aladdin's lamp I would be the radio editor for a day. My office would boast but three articles of furniture—one chair, one waste basket, and one radio set.

After I had stuffed the radio into the waste basket I would lean back in my chair and start rubbing the lamp, obeying restrictions of the lamp rubbers' code, of course. The following things would instantly happen in radio:

A Lesson for Hillbillies.

All lone cowboys would be forced to bring a friend to the mike with them. This would stop cowboys from being lonesome and with an acquaintance in the studio the cowboy would be assured of one listener.

All bridge experts, who explain intricate plays over the air, would be made dummy for the duration of the program.

All hillbillies would be forced to stop singing through their nostrils. I know a hillbilly singer 60 years old whose throat is as good as new.

Jack Benny would be on the air every night from 9 to 12.

All early birds who hope you are doing the morning exercises with them would be hustled back into bed for another hour.

All M. C.'s on amateur programs would be compelled to identify themselves so we could tell them from the amateurs.

All studio audiences would be equipped with woolen mittens. Their applause would be seen and not heard and those who listen at home would not be disturbed.

A Tip to Comedians.

All child prodigies who attempt to sing "About a Quarter to Nine" would be trussed to the mike until that time when they should get sleepy and be put to bed.

All band leaders who feature their brass sections would have their heads buried in French horns as far as the adam's apple while their horn players rendered "Wagon Wheels" fortissimo.

All announcers who spell out one syllable words over the air, "This is the Eureka Cat Nip program, spelled C-A-T," would have their tongues tied to the top buttons on their vests.

All this would happen if I had Aladdin's lamp. But I haven't—so it won't. The radio editor will continue to squat in his littered corner. The soprano, the comedian, and the statesmen will wail, bore, and rant, in that order. I shall return to minding my own business and doing what I came to Hollywood to do—to wit: Appear in Darryl Zanuck's forthcoming picture, "Thanks a Million."

In and Out of Studios with Cameraman

Rosemary and Priscilla Lane of Fred Waring's troupe prefer to look over the top of their rose colored glasses.

Here are the two maestros who will be broadcasting over W-G-N from the Aragon and Trianon this fall. Orville Knapp (left), who will follow Wayne King when he leaves the north side ballroom Oct. 1, and Jan Garber, who is to return to the south side spot Sept. 15.

The first pictures taken of Amos 'n' Andy while actually on the air. Charlie Correll (left) is doing the part of Andy; Freeman Gosden, a few inches further from the microphone, is speaking as Amos.

LITTLE ARMENIA RICH IN LORE OF HUMAN PROGRESS

Sons Here Claim Descent from Noah.

Persia in the sixth century B. C. The country became essentially Armenian under Tigranes the Great in the first century of the Christian era.

Following its subjection by Persia, after King Tirdat's adoption of Christianity, and the subsequent downfall of the Persian empire in 642, the country was overrun successively by the Arabs, Seljuks, and Monguls. By 1351, however, the country reverted to the control of Armenian feudal lords, and it was at least partially automonous until the 16th century, when began the bloody rule of the Ottoman Turks.

Proclaim Independence.

Russia appeared in the Trans-Caucasia and occupied Georgia in 1801, and thereafter until 1918 was waged a contest for Armenia by Christian Russia and Mohammedan Turkey. The Grand Duke Nicholas conquered Armenia early in 1916 and proclaimed "the liberation of Armenia from the Turkish yoke," but following the Russian revolution of 1917 the Armenians proclaimed their independence, establishing their capital at Erivan.

On his accession to power Lenin proclaimed the union and independence of Armenian lands, later ceding the districts of Batum and Kars to the Turks. The present soviet Armenian government, controled by the communist party and supported financially by soviet Russia, was established in 1920.

Forming one of the smaller groups of people that have been streaming into the United States from southeastern Europe and the Ottoman empire during the last forty years, the Armenians represent only a small fraction of this country's large foreign population. This fraction is unusually small in Chicago.

Dr. Levon B. Mugalian, a dentist, whose active leadership in Chicago Armenian affairs qualifies him as an authority, estimates that there are no more than 3,200 of his countrymen in the metropolitan area. This number does not include the West Pullman colony of several hundred persons.

Massacres Cause Migration.

The Turkish massacres were probably the chief cause of Armenian immigration to this country, although high taxes and low productivity of soil contributed to the expatriation.

The first Armenians are believed to have come to Chicago in the early 1880s. Among them were the brothers Hohanees and G. T. Pushman. The latter, a prominent rug dealer, in 1905 founded the Armenian Educational society, the purpose of which is to lend financial assistance to worty Armenian students in American colleges and universities. A son, Hovsep Pushman, studied at the Art institute and since has won wide distinction as a still life and portrait artist.

The Armenians have always been among the most susceptible of all races of culture. In the truest sense, they have a national art and literature, both highly reflective of their long religious martyrdom. Since the founding of the Armenian National church the art of the country has been ecclesiastical in character.

Probably no other foreign speaking people in Chicago, unless it be the Germans, have shown a greater respect for learning than the Armenians, have progressed further in the acquirement of good citizenship. The percentage of literacy and naturalization among them is exceptionally high. Many are engaged in professional vocations, eighteen doctors, five dentists, four lawyers, and six clergymen of Armenian birth being listed in the city directory.

Have Two Churches Here.

Two Armenian churches, the St. Gregory the Illuminator church at Augusta street and Hoyne avenue, the Rev. Vahan Guldalian, pastor, and the Armenian Evangelical church at Chestnut and La Salle street, Pastor A. S. Darakjian, administers to the group's spiritual needs.

There are also a number of social and quasi-charitable societies, including besides the Armenian Educational foundation, which is the oldest Armenian organization in the city, a branch of the Armenian General Benevolent union.

G. T. Pushman is a member of the national executive board of the latter organization. Officers of the local branch are S. H. Nahigian, president; Samuel Donian, vice president, and John Dezazian, treasurer.

The Anahid chorus of mixed voices, which under the direction of Bud Norehad has been a prominent contestant in THE TRIBUNE'S annual music festivals, represent the Armenians in the music life of the city.

WEST SUBURBS CALL SHOWDOWN ON WATER BILLS

A showdown on delinquent water bills is engaging officials in the suburban area. Various methods have been used to convince the householder that paying the water bill is as essential in keeping the plants going as is the payment of gas and electric bills to the corporations supplying service.

Collectors have been tried. Western Springs was among the first of the suburbs to adopt the trickle system which allowed sufficient water for sanitary requirements and no more. Recently, Brookfield adopted the method and seven out of eight delinquents were influenced by the trickle to start a flow of cash into the village water department.

In Lombard a campaign for the collection of delinquent water accounts, under the direction of the light and water committee, and Emil Becic, department superintendent, has resulted in doubling the revenue during the midsummer period.

In Lombard it was necessary to discontinue the service of a number of accounts showing no coöperation with the village. Those on relief are being given opportunity to work out their bills.

So acute has the delinquent water bill problem become in suburban towns that the Illinois Municipal league is making a study of the situation through a questionnaire. Departments are asked to make a comparison of annual incomes and give their methods of collecting bills.

"Native women of Sumatra sing religious songs while doing the washing in the belief that this will cause the clothes to emerge cleaner without working so hard."

If you are a singer don't waste your time washing. Try the Radio Amateur Contest, an opportunity worth while.

SCHOOL LEADERS FILL STAFS FOR FALL SEMESTER

Hire Two New Principals in Melrose Park.

Vacation days are still here, but school boards and school teachers are beginning to plan on the opening of fall terms.

Two men principals have been appointed for the schools of Melrose Park by the board of education of district 89, Maywood. Emmet L. Morris has been chosen for the Melrose Park school, and C. Collisi for the Stevenson school in Melrose Park.

Mr. Morris, who has had 13 years of teaching and supervising experience, comes directly from Marquette, Ia., where he was superintendent of schools. He has worked in the state department of education on budget procedures and has had experience in planning financial accounting systems for the use of boards of education, now a requirement in all Iowa schools.

Formerly in Maywood.

Mr. Collisi for the past five years has been director of recreation and supervisor of physical education in Maywood. He has a bachelor's and an M. A. degree from Columbia university, and has had nine years' teaching experience in grade, junior high and senior high schools.

Supt. M. B. Travis of the Hinsdale High school is busy at his desk following a three weeks' vacation in Michigan. He has been interviewing candidates for positions made vacant by the recent resignations of L. W. Miller of the biology department, and Miss Helen Mechtle of the language department. Mr. Miller has accepted a position at the Normal university in Bloomington, and Miss Mechtle has joined the junior college and high school faculty in Joliet.

St. John's to Open Aug. 26.

Announcement is made that the doors of St. John's Lutheran schools in Forest Park will be open for sessions on Aug. 26, and preparations are being made for a heavy enrollment.

Advance registration at North Central college, Naperville, is said to be considerably in advance of that for last year.

Downers Grove schools, both grade and high, will open at the usual time, Sept. 3.

RIVERSIDE WILL ASK WPA FUND TO BEAUTIFY PARKS

Beautification and reclamation of parks are included in the plans recently submitted to the village board as a WPA project by Village Manager George L. Opper of Riverside.

Part of the desired improvement already has been accomplished under a CWA program.

Riverside had the advantage, when it was planned in 1875, of having its parks fully provided for before there was any building activity. The beauty of the winding Des Plaines river influenced the planning, and the park area, comprising river frontage, covers 300 acres.

Aside from the river frontage, extending a distance of nearly three miles, there are 44 small triangular parks of 31 acres, nine neighborhood parks of 33 acres, two large parks of 36 acres, and five parkways of 23 acres. With the exception of the Maplewood district, which was added later, the entire river bank is park property.

The three parks under consideration for the WPA program, are Swan Pond park, Indian Garden park, and a third unnamed park at Blythe and East Grove road.

OCTOBER BRIDE-ELECT

OAK PARK LEAGUE DEMANDS BETTER SEWER SYSTEM

Group Says PWA Plans Provide No Aid.

A campaign to provide a more adequate sewer system for Oak Park has been launched by the newly organized Oak Park Taxpayers' Service league, according to an announcement by William P. Walpole, secretary.

"Under a recently approved PWA project, a sewer is to be constructed along the Des Plaines river and will run as far south as Roosevelt road, turn east to East avenue in Berwyn, and continue from there to the drainage canal," said Mr. Walpole.

"This, however, will benefit River Forest and Berwyn and give no relief to Oak Park," he said.

Organized primarily for the purpose of obtaining a better sewer system, the league is composed of 1,000 taxpayers, residing in Oak Park's northeast section with other members scattered throughout the village. "Northeast Oak Park is most concerned over the problem because of the fact that this territory grew faster than anticipated by the village engineers at the time the sewer was laid," Mr. Walpole pointed out. "In fact, our section is the best built up in the village.

"Whenever there is a heavy rain the sewer is unable to carry off the storm water adequately. As a result basements are flooded with sometimes from three to four feet of water."

A meeting of the league was held Tuesday evening in the Andersen playground, Hayes avenue and Division street, Oak Park. W. H. Jennings is chairman. Members of the executive committee are F. O. Dahlin, George Dyer, George Eichoff, Harry Follett, G. E. Franz, L. P. Holden, H. H. Horn, Jacob Lewin, R. L. McClanahan, Ben Nelson, Edward Putzier, W. J. Stanton, J. W. Walter, Mr. Jennings, and Mr. Walpole.

Also under consideration by the league is the double transportation system now in effect for Oak Parkers residing in the northeast section, Mr. Walpole said. "Residents are required to pay a bus fare to reach the elevated station, where another fare is necessary," he said. "There is no reason why a transfer system, such as is to be started in Chicago, cannot be put in use here."

THE GUMPS
THE TERROR
THE SHIP'S LOG
AN AMAZING DISCOVERY - GUIDED BY KOODLOO, THE FRIENDLY ESKIMO, CHESTER AND CAPTAIN DUKETTE HAVE COME UPON A STRANGE ICE-LOCKED SHIP - IT IS "THE TERROR" EXPLORING VESSEL OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN, MYSTERIOUSLY LOST IN 1848 AND NEVER SEEN SINCE —
SIDNEY SMITH
WHAT AN ASTOUNDING STORY THIS SHIP'S LOG TELLS, CHESTER - IT PROVES AT LAST THAT MEN FROM THIS VERY SHIP REALLY DISCOVERED THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE —
FOR 300 YEARS, MEN SOUGHT THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE TO CHINA - THEY BELIEVED THAT SOMEPLACE ACROSS NORTH AMERICA WAS AN ALL-WATER ROUTE FROM EUROPE TO CHINA — HENDRICK HUDSON, FOR INSTANCE DISCOVERED THE HUDSON RIVER AND HUDSON BAY THINKING THEY WERE THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE —
THIS RECORD SHOWS THAT IN MAY OF 1845 - SIR JOHN FRANKLIN SAILED WITH 134 MEN UP PAST GREENLAND AND BAFFIN BAY. ACROSS THE ARCTIC CIRCLE - THE FIRST WINTER, THEY SPENT LOCKED IN THE ICE NEAR BEECHEY ISLAND —
IN JULY, THE ICE BROKE UP AND THEY SAILED DOWN A NEW CHANNEL WHICH THEY CALLED FRANKLIN STRAIGHT - THEY WERE ONLY ONE HUNDRED MILES FROM THE TRUE NORTHWEST PASSAGE WHEN THEY WERE SUDDENLY FROZEN IN HERE —
H.M.S. Terror - 29th of August 1846 -
With success almost in our grasp and the passage westward to Alaska almost within striking distance the temperature has suddenly dropped to -50 and the water all about us is freezing up. Heaven help us now. We shall be locked in all winter.
AND SO THEY SPENT ANOTHER WINTER OF WILD WINDS AND BLACK SUNLESS SKIES, LOCKED TIGHTLY IN THE ICE A FEW SCORE MILES FROM THE POINT THEY HOPED TO REACH —
GEE - I'D HATE TO BE UP HERE FOR TWO WHOLE YEARS —
BUT EVEN WITH SPRING, THE ICE SHOWED NO SIGNS OF BREAKING UP ABOUT THE ICE-BOUND SHIP —
SO SIR JOHN FRANKLIN DID A VERY NOBLE THING - HE SENT HIS ASSISTANT, LIEUTENANT GORE, WITH SEVEN MEN, TO EXPLORE THE REGION TO THE SOUTHWARD WHERE THEY HOPED TO FIND THE PASSAGE —
ACROSS THE STRAITS, THE MEN FINALLY LOOKED UPON THE CONTINENT OF NORTH AMERICA AND KNEW THAT THE WATER BEFORE THEM WAS THE TRUE NORTHWEST PASSAGE THAT MEN HAD SOUGHT FOR 300 YEARS — IT SHOWED THAT THE NORTH ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC OCEANS WERE CONNECTED BY WATER, THOUGH THAT WATER WAS FROZEN TEN MONTHS OF THE YEAR -
PACIFIC OCEAN
ALASKA
BAFFIN BAY
GREENLAND
BUT WHEN LIEUTENANT GORE RETURNED TO THE SHIP, SAD NEWS AWAITED HIM - SIR JOHN FRANKLIN WAS DYING - LIEUTENANT GORE PRESSED HIS HAND - TOLD HIM OF FINDING THE PASSAGE - AND SIR JOHN, WITH THE LIGHT OF VICTORY BRIGHT IN HIS EYES, PASSED AWAY —

HOW'S SHE DOING, MATRON?
SPLENDIDLY - SHE'S TAKING HER MEDICINE LIKE A GOOD TROOPER.

ALL RIGHT, GIRLS - BACK TO YOUR CELLS FOR A HALF HOUR'S REST BEFORE GETTING TO WORK!
HELLO, TOBY.

THIS YOUNG KID THAT JUST CAME IN HERE... I UNDERSTAND THE JUDGE GAVE HER THE LIMIT. WHAT'S THE DOPE?
SHE WAS SENT UP ON A COP-KILLING CHARGE - FRAMED BY A PAL OF "BOOKIE" JOE, IF YOU WANT TO KNOW WHAT I THINK.
SHE DOESN'T LOOK LIKE A MURDERESS.
SHE'S JUST A KID. I FEAR WHAT MAY HAPPEN TO HER AFTER ASSOCIATING WITH THESE HARDENED WOMEN CRIMINALS.
IF SHE'S MADE OF THE RIGHT STUFF, IT WON'T AFFECT HER. SHE'LL BE GIVEN ALL HELP POSSIBLE HERE.
ALL RIGHT, YOUNG LADY, THIS IS THE LAUNDRY. YOU'LL START IN LIKE THEY ALL DO BY SCRUBBING CLOTHES ON THE WASH BOARD.
AS YOU MERIT ADVANCEMENT, YOU'LL BE TRANSFERRED TO THE HAND IRONING - THEN THE ELECTRIC MANGLE - THEN THE SEWING ROOM - AND SO ON.
THEY'RE ALL TREATED ALIKE HERE. THERE ARE NO FAVORITES - NOW GET TO WORK.
YES MA'M.
LAWSY, SISTER - YOU'SE A NEWCOMER. WHAT'S DEY GOT YO' IN HEAH FER - BOPPIN' YO' HUSBAND ON THE HAID?
NO! NO! I'VE NEVER HAD A HUSBAND!
HAH - WISH I COULD SAY DAT! I'SE HAD FIVE OF 'EM - - AND DAT'S HOW MANY TIMES I'SE BEEN IN HEAH! YAS SUH - BEEN ATTENDIN' DIS PLACE OFF AN' ON FO' EIGHTEEN YEARS.. ..WHY SAY - YOU IS......
DAZED - BEWILDERED.. CRUSHED WITH DESPAIR.. PAYING FOR A CRIME SHE DIDN'T COMMIT! WHAT WILL BE TOBY'S FUTURE???

AW, C'MON! TELL US A STORY, JIM! PLEASE?
BUT IT'S KIND OF LATE AND IT'S GETTING DARK
LISTEN, WE'LL BUILD A CAMPFIRE LIKE THE INDIANS AND SIT AROUND WHILE YOU TELL US A STORY
WELL, ALL RIGHT
C'MON! GET SOME WOOD, FELLERS
I'M GOING TO TELL YOU A STORY OF WHAT HAPPENED TO ME UP IN THE NORTH WOODS
IT WAS A DARK NIGHT LIKE THIS- SO DARK YOU COULDN'T SEE YOUR HAND IN FRONT OF YOUR FACE
OH OH
WOLVES WERE HOWLIN' UP IN THE TIMBER, AND FROM DOWN IN THE SWAMP CAME THE CRY OF A WILDCAT-- IT WAS AN EVIL NIGHT--
I HAD JUST PUT OUT THE LIGHT IN MY SHACK AND GOT INTO MY BUNK, WHEN I HEARD A LOW MOAN -- IT WAS SOMEWHERE IN THE ROOM!
A PITIFUL MOAN -- FOLLOWED BY A BLOOD-CURDLING SCREAM! I REACHED FOR MY GUN --
THEN I SAW SOMETHING WHITE MOVING TOWARDS ME-- CLOSER -- CLOSER-- OH-OH! THE FIRES DYING OUT
I'LL THROW ON A COUPLE OF STICKS

FEARING ATTACK, THE DRAGON LADY HAS ARMED HER ROCKY STRONGHOLD... AN AMERICAN DESTROYER, SEARCHING FOR PIRATES, ALMOST PASSES THE HIDEAWAY IN THE DARKNESS - UNTIL TERRY FIRES ONE OF THE PIRATE CANNON DIRECTLY AT THE WARSHIP...

FIRING THAT GUN WAS A LONG CHANCE. BUT IT WAS THE ONLY WAY TO OUTFOX THE DRAGON LADY!
THE PIRATES OPEN FIRE WITH THEIR OBSOLETE CANNON, BUT THE SHIPS GUNS SOON FIND THE RANGE AND THE CARNAGE IS TERRIFIC!
WE HAVE NO CHANCE AGAINST THE MELICAN GUNS! THE DLAGON LADY WANTS US SLAUGHTERED SO SHE CAN STEAL OUR SHARE OF THE CAPTURED GOLD!
THERE SHE IS! SHE HAS BETRAYED US! KILL HER!
TURN MACHINE GUN ON HER BEFORE SHE CAN ESCAPE!

WITH THE ANGRY PIRATES CLOSING IN ON TWO SIDES, THE DRAGON LADY WAITS FOR WHAT SEEMS INEVITABLE DEATH...
LOOK, PAT! TH' PIRATES ARE TURNIN' ON TH' DRAGON LADY! THEY'VE GOT A MACHINE GUN!
THEY HAVE HER CORNERED! KEEP UNDER COVER! I CAN'T SEE HER DIE THAT WAY!
I GOT MOST OF 'EM - THE MARINES WILL BE HERE SOON TO CLEAN UP THE OTHERS!

"MOST BAD BREATH BEGINS WITH THE TEETH!"
The Case of Betty and Bob
EVERYONE BUT BETTY AND BOB KNEW WHY THEY HAD SO MANY SPATS!
YOU'RE A FINE ONE TO HINT ABOUT BAD BREATH, BOB WARD! YOU'RE GUILTY YOURSELF!! I WON'T HAVE YOU....
JUST LIKE A WOMAN - GETTING HYSTERICAL BECAUSE I TOLD YOU THE TRUTH!
BOB CAN'T BE RIGHT..WITH ALL THE CARE I TAKE TO AVOID BAD BREATH! I'LL PROVE IT BY ASKING THE DENTIST!
DR. J. L.
DENTIST
THE TROUBLE IS, BETTY - MOST PEOPLE DON'T REALLY GET AT THE CAUSE OF BAD BREATH. MOST OF IT COMES FROM IMPROPER CLEANING - FROM FOOD DEPOSITS BETWEEN THE TEETH WHICH ORDINARY DENTIFRICES FAIL TO REMOVE!
THEN BOB WAS RIGHT!
BOB, TOO, DECIDED TO GET THE TRUTH FROM THE DENTIST
YOU SEE, BOB, YOU MUST USE AN ACTIVE CLEANER. I SUGGEST COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE ITS PENETRATING FOAM GETS INTO THE CREVICES WHERE BAD BREATH STARTS
THAT MAKES SENSE TO ME... I'LL DO AS YOU SAY!
DR. WEBB WAS RIGHT! COLGATE'S SURE LEAVES YOUR MOUTH FEELING CLEAN AND FRESH!
MY! HOW QUICKLY COLGATE'S HAS BRIGHTENED MY TEETH!
SO TWICE A DAY AFTER THAT - LATER
I KNOW - BAD BREATH! ..BECAUSE WE'LL BOTH USE COLGATE'S!
AND THERE'S ONE THING THAT WON'T CAUSE ANY SPATS IN OUR FAMILY...

Here's how Colgate Dental Cream corrects Bad Breath . . . while it Cleans and Brightens Your Teeth

YOU seldom suspect bad breath—in yourself. Even less, perhaps, do you suspect its cause . . . improperly cleaned teeth!

Yet authorities say that decaying food deposits, lodged in hidden crevices between the teeth, are by far the most common source of this social handicap.

So play safe! Make sure that your teeth are thoroughly clean—free from hidden food particles that ordinary cleaning methods fail to remove. Don't run the risk of letting your breath make you unpopular!

Use Colgate Dental Cream. Its special penetrating foam cleans every hidden crevice, washes away food residue, acid deposits.

At the same time, a soft, grit-free ingredient gently and safely polishes enamel. So Colgate's makes teeth cleaner, brighter while it makes breath sweeter—pleasanter. Get a tube of Colgate Dental Cream today.

If you are not satisfied with results after using a single tube of Colgate Dental Cream—send the empty tube to Colgate, Jersey City, N. J. We'll refund TWICE what you paid.

Y-O-U-R O-W-N B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S

Would you be interested in starting in business for your self without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men were previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in net profit as much as $50 for a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant, increasing demand.

Now here are our requirements—you must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northeastern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday only between 9 and 11 a. m. Ask for Mr. Lovell, Suite 404, Maryland Bldg., 63d-st., and Maryland-av.

Did you ever hear of the Cook Estate Studios and Apts.? If they don't suit you, we can fix them so that they will; modern, or with an old-fashioned comfort about them. If you really know what makes you comfortable, we can give it to you. Some with high studio ceilings, or perhaps a bungalow, all with fireplaces, all about 5 blocks north of the river and not so far from the lake. You are home long before most of your friends with a full evening before you.

CHILDHOOD FRIENDS.

Children are entitled to the friendships of early life. Such friendships often last a lifetime. Constant moving does not make permanent friends. A rolling stone gathers neither moss nor friends.

Buy in Hinsdale where there is a wholesome social environment, where your children will develop a sound mentality and grow into healthy men and women. Pure water, a higher altitude, more oxygen and more ultra-violet rays are here.

We offer a good 7 rm. house with 2 baths, breakfast room and large porch at a reasonable price. This home is centered on 1½ acres of ground. There is a small orchard, a fine asparagus bed and plenty of small fruit. The large lawn is nicely shrubbed and shaded. Here the children can romp and play. Only 2 blocks to fine grammar school. Late Summer a Strategic Time for Buying Furniture; Values Are Now at Maximum

By EDITH WEIGLE.

NOW is the time to refurnish, to select that living room grouping you've been dreaming about, to try a modern dining room suite, or simply to get that new, really comfortable lounge chair the entire family will enjoy. The summer furniture sales are at their height and it is possible to buy more for less this month than will be the case again.

For those thousands of home owners and apartment dwellers who respond to the perennial charm of early American maple there are several lines now in the stores that combine excellent workmanship with pleasing finishes and styles. Maple is especially nice in the bedroom, for that room is informal and will take colors well. For the unpretentious living room it is also popular, and the new chairs are much more comfortable in their build and upholstery than those shown a few seasons ago.

Classic-Modern Desk Graceful Anywhere.

The pictures today show some of the well styled reasonably priced furniture of varied woods and periods available at two Chicago stores during the sales of August. The pretty little classic-modern desk and chair fit into almost any living room, or may be used in a bedroom or hallway, for that matter. The top of the desk is of lether, as is the upholstery of the chair, and the finish is painted. The trim is gold.

Modern lounge chairs are decidedly streamlined these days and exhibit interestingly textured upholstery fabrics. The huge, wide armed one pictured is built for comfort. It is covered in a soft, nubby material a little like glorified turkish toweling. Beside it is a modern walnut mirror-topped table. Both the photographs just described were taken in a large Chicago department store.

Maple Reasserts Its Charms.

Another large store is showing the beautifully styled line of maple featured in the other two pictures. It is made by a well known eastern firm, noted for its fine, mellow finishes, good woods, and expert workmanship. You can acquire pieces for any room in your home from the hundreds of items available in this merchandise. The beds, desk, and open bookcases shown are not only attractive but livable. They are the sort

A bedroom can be a living room as well if it is furnished with a good looking maple kneehole desk and open bookcases such as these from a well known line.

August sales feature early American maple, the ideal inexpensive furniture for the informal, cheery room.

This desk, featured in the August furniture sales, has a lether top. The little accompanying chair is upholstered in the same material.

Peach Season Reaches Mid-August Peak with Endless Possibilities for Flavorful Dishes

By MARY MEADE.

THE peach season, and an unusually good one it is, too, has rollicked to its own mid-August peak in the seasonal food loves of the midwest. Even though the supply of early Georgia peaches already has begun to wane from the orchards of southern Illinois and Indiana (to say nothing of those of Maryland and the Ozarks), the abundant and rosy blushed harvest is pouring into country and city markets.

Most frequently found among the peach varieties to be obtained at the season's height is the Elberta. You know it, of course, the large, round oval fruit with its fine texture, delightful juiciness, and its sweet, full flavor. Even without setting tooth to the fruit, the peach connoisseur knows his Elbertas. The peach is a golden yellow one, with a red blush and distinctive, if faint, red stripes.

Other Varieties Are Runners-up.

As possible runners-up to the Elberta in abundance (but not strong competitors, for the Elberta is the leading commercial peach of the country) are those other midseason varieties — the Champion, the Early Crawford, the J. H. Hale, and, possibly, the Lola. Of these the J. H. Hale most nearly resembles the popular Elberta in appearance, flavor, and texture.

The Champion you'll undoubtedly remember as the small, red, round peach, white fleshed, with its mild flavor and unusual tenderness. The Early Crawford is larger, roundish-oblong in shape, and boasts a red cheek on its yellow surface. The Southern Lola is less familiar to us, but it's recognizable by its creamy white color blushed with carmine, and its juicy, sweet, white flesh.

Freestone Peach Best for Serving.

One question that many food shoppers may ponder as they go peach buying is whether or not the flesh of the fruit will slip easily away from the stone or whether it's anchored there in a 'til-death-do-us-part grip. For slicing and for serving in fresh fruit desserts, when it is desirable that the peach and its pit be parted, the housewife is glad to know that the most easily obtainable variety, the Elberta, is of the freestone variety.

For canning, as well, the large yellow peaches with close tender flesh (but not coarse or ragged) are considered best, and there again the Elberta scores. In California and the western states, a clingstone variety of peach is thought best for canning, but here in the east and middle west the freestone varieties are just as popular.

All of the midseason, widely grown peaches mentioned above are rated highly, both as to use as a fresh

Let Fashions Lure Offspring to Education!

Latest Items of Juvenile Attire Erase Blues of First Day of the School Year.

By Rhea Seeger.

IT takes good management and strategy to get little brother in the right frame of mind to return to school without arguments and tears of rage. Little sisters also have been known to protest just as audibly, but there is a remedy. Try trotting them down to choose their own school wardrobes, and watch the smiles and even a stray bit of enthusiasm. When junior is surrounded by the latest things in frocks and school-going suits, to say nothing of assortments of gaudily colored sweaters, snappy lether jackets, and the last gasp in headgear, much of the gloom is dispelled, not even to return, on that dismal first morning in September dreaded by progeny and parents alike.

We dashed around the shops and discovered the new school loot, exciting stuff that will send the most laggard youth in search of his companion's envy and a little scholastic knowledge on the side. Tweed suits with jackets cut exactly like dad's with inverted plaits, all the pockets, snappy double-breasted numbers, and zippered knickers. There are shirts with plaited bosoms, non wrinkling attached collars, and no end of sweaters, also zippered and pocketed like the best of the grownup affairs.

Trick Headband of Lastex Controls Size of Boys' Caps.

And, what did leave us gasping with wholehearted admiration are the caps for the boys that come in three head sizes: small, medium, and large. The trick is a headband with an inset of lastex that obligingly fits any small skull and, added to that, the initial of the small owner handsomely embroidered in good, plain, readable style right in front, just above the visor.

Little sister Susie's school clothes proved just as easy to take, from the crisp, bright, heavy tub materials that make the first frocks, to the swanky English style topcoats with hats to match. A few of the newest models are sketched. No. 1: A girl's topcoat of soft, warm wool in checked design, tailored and snappy enough for any demanding young miss. With it the round, youthful, brimmed hat, also of the same tweedy looking wool as that of the coat. No. 2: What the young student wears to school, a pig grain lether jacket with a front zipper, trick pockets with a secret opening for contraband extras. With it the initialed cap made with an inset of lastex so that it fits almost any head.

Smocking Around Waistline Is Feature of Frock for Small Girl.

No. 3: For the little girl, a blue and white or any other color, striped cotton dress featuring smocking around the waistline. No. 4: Another perennial favorite, a thin wool Peter Thompson dress, resplendent with scarlet tie sailor collar, and rows of white braid.

No. 5: An imported and embroidered sweater worn over a plaited plain wool skirt. A dark beret completes the outfit. No. 6: What every boy wants, and usually gets, the sturdy knicker suit for fall, 1935. The knickers have a zipper closing, the coat is double-breasted, with all kinds of inverted plaits, and a belt in the back. Just like dad's best sports suit. No. 7: The small boys are just as crazy about sweaters as are their grownup sisters. This fuzzy wool number has a trick plaited back, a zipper down the front, and two slanted pockets. No. 8: Girl's rainy day outfit of gay, Scotch plaid, rubberized material matched to a hat, worn turned down.

No. 9: Last, the find of the fall. An Angora sweater fitted with a front zipper and a regular, honest to goodness good luck rabbit's foot to ward off evil days when teacher may have the bright idea to keep one after school.

Chinese "Uplift" Program Limits Feminine Freedom

AS the result of a new "uplift" movement which is sweeping over China, women are prohibited having bobbed hair, "permanent waves," or slit skirts, to go walking arm in arm, or to appear on the stage in scenes with men.

Snapshots from Paris

- Turbans that are bound around the head exactly like those worn by Martinique Negroes are being worn by some smart women like Mrs. Fellowes.
- For this coming fall when you plan your wardrobe remember that dark blue with a rich violet cast is both smart and flattering.
- All the smartest debutantes around Paris this summer are wearing frocks of real Indian muslin.
- Evening capes made of taffeta and metal moire, cut like those dashing capes the Italian officers wear, are the most popular evening wrap in Paris.
- Bangs have had their heyday and are now gone from styles altogether. Women here brush their hair straight off the face to go with those daring halo hats and padded berets.

Peach Season Offers Grand Slam in Flavor

dessert or breakfast fruit, and for culinary purposes. The Elberta and J. H. Hale top the list in keeping qualities, however, making a point to remember for the canny marketer who finds this fruit a good buy in large quantities. The bushel and half bushel containers are most frequent in this part of the country, and so are the flat packing crates which are about 5 by 12 by 18 inches in size. In the eastern states one is likely to see more of the 4, 6, or 8 quart baskets.

Even the most spoilage resistant of peaches, however, are relatively perishable in comparison with other more hardy fruits. Since, like one of the characters of a famous comic strip, they "bruise easy," they must be carefully selected for table use or for short storage.

Although their flavor and texture are not at their best until the fruit is fully ripe, they should be purchased while solid and firm for keeping—firm, but still with a good, characteristic, ripe color! The latter caution is because peaches, unlike pears, are superior in flavor only when the fruit has been ripened on the tree.

Fully ripened peaches should be used at once, no matter what the keeping qualities of the particular variety, because decay is a speedy process once it begins. However, if peaches are carefully picked, selected, and packed, it's possible to keep varieties like the Elberta for as long as two to four weeks, providing the storage temperature hovers around 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Inexpensive Light Grill Ideal for Hamburger Steak

A LIGHT grill for individual hamburger steaks is inexpensive easily carried, and has long handles. Over the campfire it will roast hamburger steak in flat patties just to fit the buns, and is so designed that all the meat juices do not run out, as often is the case with open grills.

of thing that one never wearies of, but that grow friendlier and dearer as the years go by.

The tables and chests in this line are copies, many of them, of beautiful antiques, and are as carefully fashioned as the originals. Maple bedroom furniture is ideal for all members of the family. Boys like the bunk beds that come in double-deckers with their own ladders. Girls are charmed with quaint canopy top models, "testers" as they were originally called, and adults appreciate the simplicity and beauty of the low or high four poster, the Jenny Lind, the spool type, and others. All are being displayed in the August furniture sales.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

MR. G. L. is 68 years old, but is confident that he can obtain work if some reader is able to help him. He has been ill and is much in need of a double truss, size 40 or 42. The address is on the north side of the city.

From a young woman: "I wonder if you could help me? I need clothing badly. Everything I own is threadbare, for most of my clothing was second-hand when given to me. I wear size 16 and I'm handy at remaking things. Mother works part time, but must have medical treatment every week, and is saving her earnings for an operation. My grandmother allows me to use her sewing machine and, as I specialized in dressmaking at high school, I'll be glad to remodel anything offered."—E. L.

I feel confident that some mother will be glad to pass on her infant's discarded layette in this case:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a young expectant mother. My husband has been out of work for six months and I have been unable to prepare a single thing for my first child, which will be born next month. I would appreciate your requesting discarded clothing from some of your readers who no longer need the articles."—Mrs. I. G.

Pretty discouraging outlook for this young couple. Their first happiness has been clouded by financial difficulties. A supply of tiny shirts, diapers, and, perhaps, a pretty little dress or two, would mean a great deal to Mrs. G.

Another young couple turns to us for help: "Dear Sally: We are a young couple with a 6 weeks' old baby. Trouble seems to have followed us for the past months. Now we are fortunate enough to have a relief organization come to our aid. They have helped us considerably, but are unable to give us any furniture. Our main need is a bureau or chest of drawers, since we have no storage place of any kind for clothing."—Mr. and Mrs. J. P.

Has your youngster outgrown its stroller?

"Dear Miss Brown: My little girl, 3½ years old, has just been released from the hospital after having been confined to bed for some time, suffering with a lung infection. Now that she is home I need a stroller to take her out, as she is too weak to walk far and I am not able to carry her. We live near Lincoln park and she could have the fresh air which is so necessary for her if some one of your readers can provide a discarded stroller. I will be glad to call for it."—Mrs. J. S.

If you have a carriage which is not in use, won't you let this mother have it? Plenty of fresh air and sunshine are vital to this child's health.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 19.

Try to have a better and more attractive window garden the coming winter. It is better to have one fine plant than a whole windowful of scrubs that are overcrowded and unsatisfactory. Consider flowering plants as seasonable, and occasionally buy a fresh plant of high quality. The best year-round plants are of value for their foliage, and among them are the following: Mother-in-law-tongue plant [Sansevieria], corn plant [Dracaena], rubber plant [Ficus elastica], cacti and other succulents, spider plant [Chlorophytum, the variegated form], screw pine [Pandanus], Roebelenii date palm, thatch palm [Kentia], holly fern, Boston fern, and the ornamental begonias. If a plant is doing poorly in its present location place it in another room. Remember that the temperature in the average room is 5 per cent drier than the desert. Exercise care when watering, and water whenever a plant is dry. Watch for insects and take control measures to eradicate them. See that no cold drafts strike the plants.

Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Order peonies for fall planting. Send for bulb catalogs and get the bulb order in as early as possible. Buy Madonna lily bulbs this month and plant only shallowly. Collect and burn the rusty leaves of the hollyhocks to check the spread of rust. Sow hollyhock seeds now and thin the young plants. Transplant seedling perennials that were sown in June and early July. The cold frame is a fine place for them, for they may be easily cared for and protected. A pot or two of oxalis makes a nice plant for the window. Buy a calla lily bulb and pot it. Transplant the Oriental poppy at this time. These plants may be increased easily by cutting the roots into lengths of two inches and planting them in flats or the frame.

Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Keep the garden well cultivated after every rain. Order evergreens for late August and early September planting. Buy stock with a ball of earth. Evergreens include the pines, firs, hemlock, spruce, juniper, and arbor-vitae, but few, if any, will endure over a long period under congested city conditions. They are best for the suburban districts. Continue to transplant those iris which are not doing well. Transplant the bluebell [Mertensia]. Goldenglow will flower a second time if cut back after flowering.

Thursday, Aug. 22.

Fresh delphinium will germinate with a high percentage, so it should be sown as soon as ready. Black leaf 40, a nicotine concentration, and pyrethrum will rid plants of plant lice, but it will not kill worms that eat the leaves of plants. The latter are killed with a stomach poison which is taken internally. Dust sulphur on plants on which mildew appears. Dust in the morning while dew is on the leaves. Keep all perennials tied up if the stems are straggling.

Friday, Aug. 23.

Disbud dahlias for large blooms. This is the month to bud cherries and peaches. Increase the supply of raspberry plants by layering the tips of canes. Prepare the ground for a new lawn this month for early September sowing. A layer of at least four inches of good soil should be used for a deep root system, enabling the plants to withstand drouth. By preparing the ground early the first crop of weeds may be destroyed.

Saturday, Aug. 24.

Pick cucumbers for pickling as fast as they develop. Look the patch over each morning. Vegetables which are grown for their leaves may be watered over the tops, but do not spray the tops of tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, and eggplants or the pollen will be washed away, and abundant pollen is essential if many fruits are enjoyed. As a rule, plants used for pot culture should be, if they are growing in the garden, carefully cut back. New breaks or growths will start immediately. Never pot a plant in dry soil. Moisten it with water and work it over until it is moist, but not wet. Make cuttings of plants that are intended for stock plants.

[Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield Park conservatory.]

Gutters Must Be Protected from Autumn Leaves

KEEP the gutters of your home free of leaves, rubbish, birds' nests, etc. If you don't, you may find the gutters stopped up, and damage resulting from the back up and overflow of the water.

It is a simple matter to place a wire, basketlike strainer, which you may buy at hardware or material supply house, over the gutter outlet.

Don't think, either, that just because there is no stoppage, that rotting leaves will do the gutters no harm. If they are permitted to remain they wil cause the metal to corrode, in time, and then to leak.

Hair Responds to Intensive, Faithful Care

Three Months of Attention Bring "Tired" Tresses Vitality and Health.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

I RAN across an expression the other day that I think fits a number of heads of hair seen around. "Tired hair" is the term, and a mighty good description even of heads of hair that have their regular shampoos and wave settings.

When I introduce the subject of hair styles, new hair styles with illustrations, I know my audience perks up its ears. But when I introduce the subject of hair care and how to accomplish a new hair beauty, I'm not so sure about said audience.

But I do want you women to listen to me now, if you never listened interestedly to a talk on hair beautifying before!

Here's a beauty asset you can have for the asking! I don't care what kind of hair you have at this moment. It may be oily, it may be stringy, it may be dry, or it may be tired. Whatever it is that it shouldn't be, I can guarantee you that in three months you still can turn that hair of yours into an outstanding asset.

Intensive Care of Hair Works Miraculous Changes in Drab Locks.

Lately I've seen remarkable changes in "halos." Two of them, believe me, were fairly rangy looking mops in the beginning. One case represented, in telling fashion, years of careless treatment and the discouraged appearance of head that follows careless or no treatment. The woman's hair was beginning to gray. It was a rusty looking head. Not a bright glow about it. Tired hair as applied to this head is putting it mildly.

I wish you could see that head of hair today! True, the woman, driven to action by the loss of her job and the difficulty in obtaining another, set to work with a vengeance and a motive. When she had finished the gray hairs were barely detectable. Or, they were lost to detection. I might better say, in the vital, glamorous look of the hair itself.

I'm not meaning to say that intensive hair care will turn the gray hairs back to their natural color. I'm merely reporting what happened in this case. Instead of that ugly, rusty look that so often discourages owners of heads with gray creeping in, there was a brilliant vitality to the hair that gave it a look of youth.

Care of One Feature Leads to Entire Program of Grooming.

You know there is an impressive phase of female psychology in the improvement of a particular feature like the hair, let's say, or silhouette or complexion. Immediately that improvement in the one feature is seen, a general grooming care sets in. A completely new, younger, and better looking woman is most likely to evolve from concentration in the beginning on one particular item of care. I've seen this happen so many times, there's no argument about its being a foregone conclusion. It was exactly so with the woman cited, and to give a happy ending to my tale, and not a forced one, either, today that woman occupies a more responsible and better paying job than the one she occupied before dismissal.

To me and, I take it, to a great many other people, a cared for, smart looking head of hair indicates self-respect, personal pride, and niceness of person that impress. It portrays efficiency, snap, confidence.

Now, I plead for a three month trial for heads with that "tired" look. This brings one on into the fall. A brief time, indeed, for hair beauty accomplishment. But, I repeat, it can be done in three short months. You can restore the spark of life to hair. You can give it glow, youthfulness, revived color in this brief period. But you can't do it unless you're willing to buy yourself an A1 hairbrush and use that brush daily for a definitly set time.

Those of you whose hair quality is poor, whose heads have that tired look, might sacrifice the waves for a bit, if need be. If you aren't skilled at setting your wave yourself, the brushing may and probably will spoil your wave. But I'd suggest, while you're putting your hair through its beautifying paces that you begin practicing the wave setting, too. You can become as smart on this job with practice as you have become with your cosmetic applications. But the main point is to get down into the roots of your scalp and set a new stimulation stirring. That's what makes vital, young looking hair.

New Method of Brushing Gives Excellent Results in Brightness.

But brush the hair in the new and better way! Brush the back of your head from the hairline to the crown until the scalp tingles. Divide the back of the hair into small units and brush each unit individually and UP. Brush the entire head actively up and away from the scalp. This is an infinitely improved way of brushing hair over the old way of tilting head forward or back and brushing in the direction of the hair.

Don't be afraid to brush oily hair. The brushing will correct the faulty functioning of scalp glands that causes the excess oiliness.

Don't be afraid to brush a permanent. The brushing will increase the buoyancy and elasticity of the hair. Incidentally, did you know that placing your head over a bowl of steaming water will revive a permanent wave?

Did you know that if you rinse coarse, naturally curly hair in cold water it helps straighten it a bit?

Did you know that a daily brushing treatment takes away the strawlike appearance of an overbleached head? It distributes the oil through the hair, producing highlights and softness.

On dyed hair, as you know, only a mild soap should be used in shampoos. Strong solutions may lighten or streak tinted hair.

When brushing your hair, you know, of course, that the brush should be wiped several times on a towel during the treatment.

Do you know that white and gray hair should be shampooed in tepid water? Too much heat or hot water may produce yellow streaks.

To set your wave after a shampoo remove excess moisture with a towel. Set the waves while hair is slightly damp. A number of women have told me that a little vinegar in the last rinse water makes a good setting lotion.

But brush beauty and youth and glamorous color into those locks of yours, and brush by the clock so that you can't cheat. Ten minutes, twice a day, is the time recommended for the quick, sure restoration to your head of its old time glory.

Knurled Grab Rail Affords Grip for Wet, Soapy Hands

A GRAB rail fastened to the rim of a tub or wall appears in the newest of bathrooms. It is not only convenient but it makes bathing safer for people of all ages and size. Some of the newest bars are "knurled," to afford a better grip for soapy hands. And sometimes we find them placed at an angle to the wall to yield greater leverage.

Home Treatment For Keeping Skin Young

MERCOLIZED WAX is the one beauty aid you can afford because this single preparation embodies all the essentials of beauty that your skin needs. It cleanses, softens, bleaches, lubricates and protects. It is so simple to use, too. Just pat it on your skin each night as if it were an ordinary cold cream. That's all. Mercolized Wax seeps into your pores and dissolves grime and dust and all impurities. It absorbs the discolored surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, revealing the beautiful, soft, young skin that lies beneath. It clears away freckles, tan, oiliness, sunburn or any other blemishes. You use such a tiny bit of Mercolized Wax for each application that it proves an inexpensive beauty investment. Beauty cannot be taken for granted. It must be cared for regularly if you want to hold it through the years. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin.

POWDERED SAXOLITE dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel quickly reduces wrinkles and other age signs. It is a refreshing, stimulating astringent lotion. Use it daily. At all drug and department stores.

Colonial House Model of Thrift in Floor Layout

L-Shaped Plan Has Many Advantages in Arrangements of Rooms.

(Beautiful floors deserve careful attention. A new booklet by Louise Bargelt, "Keeping Floors Flawless," is 3 cents by mail and 2 cents at Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower.)

By Louise Bargelt.

BY way of variety:

Last week we published pictures and a story of the restoration of an old farmhouse in Barrington, Ill. An example, it was, of what present day remodeling can accomplish.

This week we show a new house, now in process of construction, in Ravinia, Ill. The owner is Kenneth H. Kraft. An instance, it is, of fine design, skilful planning, and excellent construction.

Furthermore, this early American home is an illuminating example of how we can appropriate in our 1935 building that same wisdom and economy in floor layout which was practiced in colonial days, when money was a bit scarce, but labor abundant.

"Gallery" Insures Privacy to First Floor Rooms.

In these last five years, when we have learned, perforce, many valuable lessons in practical, every day economics, we have acquired a sensible state of mind; we are cost, quality, and utility conscious, and everywhere, in new building and old reconstruction, we see evidence that these mental house building habits are staying with us.

First of all, the floor plan is deserving of study, whether we plan to build a small house or a large one.

Here we find a "gallery" instead of a square entrance hall. This affords a degree of privacy for all the first floor rooms—for the living room at the extreme right, for the stairs to the second floor, for the dining room and the serving room.

The house is an L shape, instead of a pure rectangle At the extreme left there is a complete segregation of kitchen, rear service yard, rear steps to the second floor and to basement, and maid's room, bath, and double garage.

Service Yard Has Enclosure for Tools.

The power room and the first floor lavatory are reached from the gallery. Note the two small clothes closets close to lavatory and entrance.

Opening from the service yard is an enclosure for garden tools.

Every garden-loving member of every household—and here's rule without exception—wants a place for tools so that no precious gardening time is lost through the hunt-and-find system, or the huddle plan, in which tools are kept in dark corners.

This enclosure will have racks and hooks for further time saving so that all the tools aren't "bunched" together, necessitating individual handling of all of them before the desired one can be found.

Every Bedroom Has Its Bath.

On the second floor the home is quite "bath" conscious. It has three bedrooms and three baths!

ARCHITECTURE FROM YESTERDAY

An early American type of home of whitewashed brick, with black roof of clay shingle tiles and blue-gray blinds. Time tested construction, fine architecture, deft room arrangement, and artistic decoration are all incorporated into this adaptation of a house pattern from colonial days. Designed by Wright and Weber, architects, 820 North Tower court, Chicago. The house is now being built in Ravinia, Ill. It contains seven rooms, four baths and a studio.

At the rear, reached through a glazed porch opening, there is a large studio with a terraced outside entrance.

The exterior walls are of solid masonry—brick, painted white. This ivory finish, when weathered, will show the brick garbed in a quaint, domestic charm.

Against these white walls are the rich, blue gray blinds and the retaining wall, also of brick, which will have a blue stone cap. The driveway will be paved with flagstone and wide grass joints.

A pair of cocker spaniel dogs will guard the entrance to the forecourt. These dogs, however, will be a permanent fixture—they will be cast in bronze!

Walls Are Canvased and Painted a Soft White.

The walls of living room and gallery are to be canvased and painted a soft off shade of white. The floors are of concrete, covered with wood block, parquet patterned and bedded in mastic.

In the gallery the floor is of black and white checked marble laid in large squares. The kitchen floor is of asphalt. Bathroom and lavatory on the first floor are tiled. On the second floor the bathrooms have linoleum covering both the floors and walls.

Abundant insulation on wall and ceiling will insure the functioning of the heating plant at maximum efficiency with minimum consumption of fuel.

There is a warm air conditioning furnace, oil fueled.

Air Conditioner, Suitcase Size, Cools Six Rooms.

An air conditioner of interest to the owner of an average sized, moderate cost home, and designed to operate with radiator heating, has just appeared on the market.

This unit, which is sacrcely larger than a suitcase in size, can be hooked up at any point on a radiator supply line to condition a house of six rooms or less. In fact, it has been especially designed for the house which may cost from $2,500 to $8,000 or $10,000.

The machinery of this unit, which is the result of a number of years' extensive research and study, is simple.

No matter what size house, good planning is of major importance. This is especially true now, since we have all grown cost and utility conscious. Note the arrangement of these rooms, which performs a 100 per cent efficiency job in utilization of every square foot of floor space. Living room, 17x28 ft.; dining room, 14x19 ft.; kitchen, 11x17 ft.

There are special filters to remove the pollen and dust from the air, and a blower, which is mounted on a cradle to insure its noiselessness, circulates and recirculates conditioned air through the house.

Provision has been made for a refrigerating coil to cool and dehumidify the house in summer.

Aluminum Foil Gives Insulation.

One well known type of wall board is now being covered with aluminum foil on its reverse side. The value of this foil in adding to the insulating efficiency of the wall board is due to the capacity of its surface to reduce radiant heat flow. There is a great flow of heat across the open spaces between studs and joists in the outer shell of a building by radiation. This is true of heat flowing in either direction.

In brief, when the metal surface of this insulating board is placed next to studding, its high reflectivity will help to keep out summer heat. In the winter this same board will help by its low emissivity and high reflectivity to cut down the heat flow.

The same company has also brought out an insulating lath, with aluminum foil permanently fixed to its reverse side. This foil, as when placed on insulating board, will reflect radiant heat, and thus cut down transmission of heat through walls and ceiling.

The wall board product, with aluminum foil on its reverse side, can be used in new as well as remodeled homes. It need not be decorated. But since most home owners desire some special treatment, this board can be painted, calcimined, enameled, or covered with wallpaper. On being nailed, the board is finished with a smooth joint which can be decorated in the same manner as the board.

Next week we are showing actual photographs of the exterior and the interior of a quite fascinating house moderne which has just been finished in Chicago territory.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 9:45 a. m.

Specific Rules Dictate Proper Use of Gloves

Nature of Occasion and Hour Govern Way in Which They Are Worn.

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE style and material from which gloves are made are a matter of fashion. The time and place to wear gloves is a problem of etiquet. Materials and designs change with the season, particularly for informal wear. Gauntlets might be popular one year and short cuffed gloves another. But for strictly formal occasions long white kid gloves always have been and still are the most correct choice. There are some women who think that the matter of gloves is an exceedingly trivial affair. Nevertheless there are many instances in which there is an absolutely right and wrong point of view on this glove question.

In general, gloves are worn on the street and when traveling. At a formal tea women guests wear gloves and hats, and for a formal reception the same rules are followed. At less formal afternoon teas the gloves and hats are worn, but the gloves may be removed after arrival. Women need not wear gloves when guests at a musical, although they should carry them.

On the street when a young man meets a young woman of his acquaintance he removes his right glove before shaking hands, particularly so if her hand happens to be ungloved at the moment.

At a formal luncheon or formal dinner, gloves are not removed until after the guests have been seated at the table. Then the gloves should be removed entirely. Long gloves never should be tucked under at the wrist, leaving the gauntlet of the glove on the arm with the hand exposed.

Brides may or may not wear gloves, depending on the wedding, their individual tastes, their costume, and the fashion of the moment. Our advice is for brides to wear long sleeved gowns and no gloves. Then there is no confusion at the altar when the ring is placed on the finger. If, however, the wedding dress is short sleeved, long gloves are worn. The left glove must be quickly removed after the altar is reached, so that the ring may be placed on the finger.

The bride might wear only the glove on the right hand and carry the other. The problem of gloves is optional with the bridesmaids. Here again the question of sleeves helps them to decide. The idea is that at a church ceremony it is more discreet that the arms be covered, if not by the sleeves of the dress, then by gloves.

Knee Length Swagger Coat in Smart Paris Pattern Version

DESIGNED IN PARIS
by Bettina Bedwell
5099

No. 5099—The Paris pattern for this coat is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Cool weather is only about one jump away, and soon you will be wanting a coat that you can slip on over your dresses or your suit. This pattern, No. 5099, provides one that may be made easily at home, and ready for the first frosty weather. Knee length coats like this will be exceedingly chic all through the fall and winter and they will be made in plaid wool, in plain tweed, preferably gay colors, and in fur, too.

This coat is ideal for the girl who is going back to school and just as good for the girl in business or for the woman who gets out for shopping, for it can be worn over almost any kind of dress.

The original model was made of dark blue wool with red and green plaid, but you may select the material you prefer. Use heavy bone buttons to fasten this coat, and if you create it in plaid, make the pockets with the plaid on the bias. You may line the wrap, but the model was lined only in the yoke and sleeves.

Viennese Chic Sponsors Novel in Accessories

CHIC women of Vienna are reported to be indulging every whim in their costume accessories and costume jewelry. Bracelets, earrings, and finger ornaments of glass and crystal, some set with semi-precious stones, shimmer like rainbows under the artificial lights of Viennese night life.

Raffia fashion belts and buttons. Brightly colored accessories of this attractive material are seen frequently in glamorous Vienna. The cause of buttons in the style limelight is being abetted by wood, horn and ivory, in the form of animals, insects, and good luck tokens. Some smart women wear buttons of different colors, side by side, creating an effect both unusual and startling.

Viennese lether shops follow the mode with gloves, bags, and umbrellas to match any costume, and their faint stripe of gray persuades the eye that cloth, not lether, fashions these articles. They are extremely smart and may be had in gray, scarlet, marine blue and Nile green. Neck ornaments of brown lether, studded with gold nails, also are found in the lether shops of the Austrian capital.

Viennese women who take their astrology seriously, determine their lucky number and have the digits clipped to their handbags in decorative metal.

Bright red, artificial cherries of linoleum or galalith are being used for belt buckles, hat ornaments, or boutonnieres for the lapels of suits. Sprays of red roses or dainty field flowers embellish the belts and necklines of evening gowns.

Victorian Pieces Rescued from Attic to Furnish Keynote for New Schemes of Interior Decoration

Purified of Rococo, They Are at Once Lusciously Lovely and Practical.

Would you like to know how to frame and hang your pictures to best advantage? Miss Winslow's booklet, "Selecting, Framing and Hanging Pictures," tells you all about it. It's 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

WHEN this season's fashion in frocks coincides exactly with that little number you bought years ago and liked too much to dispose of you feel quite as if you were picking a ripe peach from the tree. When clever decorators go Victorian you might as well indulge in the same elation, for what house does not have plenty of items from this era — chairs, curve back sofas, and tables either stored away in the attic or still in faithful service?

You can be Victorian to your heart's content and still be in the forefront of the mode this year and for a long time to come. For the 1935 Queen Vic decorations have had that too, too rococo touch taken right out of them. They are lusciously lovely, but practical and chic at the same time.

Chalk white paint plus stunning new drapery and upholstery fabrics have done the major part in bringing the picture up to date. You see charming little curved legged chairs, once a sombre black walnut, painted white, the seats recovered in egg shell satin or in a tiny striped cotton damask or a lively glazed chintz. You see those stiff little sofas wearing the new chartreuse chevron weave flat mohair.

Square shaped, stodgy chairs, without arms, once padded in uninteresting deep red or mulberry, are rejuvenated in golden beige slipper satin, twelve inch deep fringe, like bangs, hanging from the lower frame of the seat to the floor. Or they may be done in a heavenly shade of delphinium blue with little white buttons in the tufting of the backs.

One of the most remarkably lovely settings in any recent movie was that of the living room in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film, "No More Ladies." Joan Crawford against a Victorian background sounds like a paradox, but simply goes to prove that this much maligned era of decoration can be extremely glamorous when aided by modern fabrics and light, fresh colors.

Today, just to prove that Victorian decoration is considered ultra smart, we show you a picture taken from the movie "No More Ladies," costarring Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery. The enormously attractive huge living room, you'll recall, is charmingly 1935 Victorian. The color scheme is turquoise blue, beige, and soft apricot.

The pièce de résistance is the chaise longue, done in a blue and cream geranium chintz and edged in outsize tassels that sweep the floor all around. Remember those cute, padded pin cushion pillows—or don't you? A couple of them are used on this chaise.

The little chair in the background is painted white and has pastel tinted seat covering. A huge mirror panel surrounds the fireplace — a modern touch. But the gold metal, figure and crystal drop candlesticks are as Victorian as the white china poodle on the hearth. The small table nearby is also in the period, though modernized through color.

When we saw this movie the women in the audience around us were commenting quite as audibly on this beautiful Victorian setting as they were on the glamorous Joan and the irresistible Robert.

The designers were Cedric Gibbons and his associates, E. B. Willis and Joseph Wright.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

STAMP collectors, no matter what branch of the hobby is followed, divide naturally into two groups, those who collect everything listed in the catalog and nothing else and those who collect only the stamps they like.

The latter group is seldom interested in watermarks, perforations, or varieties of paper, but chiefly in the picture shown on the stamp. In order to arrange such a collection it is necessary to cut loose from the printed album and to mount the stamps on plain pages in a loose leaf album.

A very interesting collection of this sort has been recently shown by Robert J. Hamilton of Oak Park, who has sponsored stamp clubs in connection with schools and playgrounds in the western suburbs. Mr. Hamilton has named his collection "A World's Fair in Stamps," and has arranged it to carry out the idea of a sightseeing tour through a great exposition.

Although the collection numbers only about a thousand stamps, it attracts the interest of every one who sees it and who hears the talk which Mr. Hamilton gives as he pilots the listeners about the fair grounds.

The first section is called the "Zoo," and here are placed all of the stamps showing animals, birds, fish, reptiles, etc. The "Transportation Building" includes stamps showing maps and various forms of transportation on earth, sea, and sky. The "Industrial Building" contains stamps which present views of engineering, industry, building, etc. One section, called the "Art Gallery," includes the stamps which show reproductions of paintings and statuary, as well as pages devoted to portraits of rulers, artists, musicians, etc.

World Historical Events Are Depicted in Stamps.

The "Museum of History" shows stamps with scenes depicting historical events throughout the world, with a separate wing for United States history, and another for current events illustrated with stamps. The "Old Curiosity Shop" includes small and odd shaped stamps and those lettered with old and curious alphabets.

A "Midway" section takes in the athletic stamps, the dancers and the native scenes in foreign villages, with a midget village for the stamps of tiny nations, such as Andorra, San Marino, Monaco, etc. An "Administration Building" shows only the portraits of contemporary rulers, and a "Hall of Religions" includes stamps having a portrait or scene of significance.

Mr. Hamilton admits that he is not a collector in the ordinary sense and would rather be called a collector of interesting stamps, since he keeps only those which are educational or entertaining, or which stimulate his imagination or arouse his curiosity.

Taste in Dress Is Declining, Paris States

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Are women capable of choosing their own personal style of dress? The Paris dressmakers say "no." Leading American designers also say "no." Left to their own devices even the so-called "best dressed" will often select clothes that are all wrong or will combine them wrongly Fashions have been diversified and there have been so many variations lately, women could go the limit in exercising their personal taste. The result has been a showdown of individual preferences and the Paris designers are pretty het up about it.

One Designer Advocates One Style Per Season.

"What we need is fashion dictatorship today as in past epochs. We need one style a season, to be changed and adapted to all women," one of the mightiest of the creators of clothes told me yesterday.

"Nineteen thirty-five will go down as the worst dressed year in a decade." Another of the Paris designers said this, running distracted fingers through a $5 wave. "Any evening in the smartest society is like a tour of the world today," groaned a third. "I see fashionable women dressed like Javanese, like Hindus, like renaissance madonnas, like 1900 cocottes, like anything but beautiful, modern women."

"Taste is nonexistent amongst women today," whispered an American designer in my ear. "It's simply awful the way even the so-called smartest women get themselves up."

The arraignment is against women everywhere—French, American, English, and the lot who dress in fashion more or less. The cure, so those I have interviewed say, is good fashions, and fashions definitly limited so that tastes cannot go haywire.

Mainbocher Works Against Influence of Theater.

Mainbocher tells me that he thinks the time is ripe for fashions that are exquisitely simple, beautifully cut, and in perfect taste. He thinks women are sick and tired of costume clothes camouflaged as styles and of theater clothes served out to women who never get behind the footlights.

Schiaparelli hints of a firm intention to design only simple, wearable things, albeit of the finest materials and cut. Several others have indicated that they are working on a dress platform of sanity in the future.

Rumors carrying increasing thunder come out of Hollywood about forthcoming clothes that will be of the drawing room rather than the musical comedy persuasion.

It looks as though something may happen along these lines in the more or less near future.

In the meantime I hear rumors of a great wave of styles, inspired by Italian Renaissance costumes, about to break over Paris, New York, Chicago, and points west, north, and south. I also hear whisperings about drapings and swathings from Greece and from the 1900 period, to be precipitated in the fall, as a follow-up of midseason madnesses. I hear about gaudier colors and more screaming combinations of them. There is talk about oriental modes inspired by those two imposing costume balls given in Paris by Comte de Beaumont and the Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes.

Whatever the vagaries of the styles may be, there will certainly be plenty of simple, wearable, and really elegant clothes on show. There always are. Women will again be given the choice perhaps between story book dresses and clothes that were made solely and purely to wear today and to stand a lot of wearing without turning sour.

Daring Women Now Wearing Moyen Age Frocks.

We may well be given a chance to come out in a moyen age dress like that in the accompanying illustration on Fig. 1, which is a dress that is actually being worn by a few extra daring women here in Paris right now. It is made of black, mat crêpe, and laced on the bosom with a white ruching at the neckline. The Renaissance toque is made of black velvet with circles of black kid to trim it.

Figure No. 2 shows how the draped dress is getting along in styles at present. This model is from Schiaparelli and is made of a beautiful purply-blue and white silk crêpe. The wrap made of the same fabric is a freely translated dolman folded in the back. The hat is made of blue straw and trimmed with a white flower.

Streamlined Skirt and Draped Bodice Combined.

Figure No. 4 shows the kind of dress that Mainbocher believes is perfect as a style for today's women and their active, machine age life. Comtesse G. de Robilant and Mrs. Gilbert Miller are two smart women who wear it. This dress is made of deep red—like old port wine—silk crêpe, and loops of matching silk cord make the neckline decorative. They tie and end in tassels.

Below: Mainbocher designed this dark red crepe frock, with its silk cord and tassel trimming, as a retort to over-complication in feminine clothes.

Intriguing Yarns Fashion the New Knitted Berets and Scarfs

By Jean Macdonald.

SMART Parisians ordering their early fall millinery prefer berets and closely fitted hats with some striking and unusual piece of trimming or ornament. With the many intriguing yarns for knitting and crocheting on the market, both shiny and dull surfaced, these yarns cooperate to create tricky materials from which to fashion the smartest knitted fall headgear. The simplest knitting stitches resolve themselves into most unusual weaves, especially when used with large sized knitting needles.

The yarn from which the beret and scarf illustrated at the top was made, is a soft, chalk finished, synthetic yarn done on huge needles. The stitch is a common pattern which assumes an entirely new character in its rôle as a scarf. The draped beret is knitted on four needles, using only the beginning knitting stitches. Accompanying the beret, illustrated below, is a clever two toned scarf done in ribbing of knit 4 purl 4, and then reversing the pattern after every other inch. The scarf is a straight band of the same design, tied in such careless elegance as to appear to reverse the color arrangement. But this is only one of the many smart touches in the feminine bag of tricks.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for knitting the two berets and two scarfs illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Handbag and Egg Cozy, New Items for Crochet Enthusiast

By Ellen Bruce.

HANDBAGS are one item we women must always have with us. However, the newest and most amusing trick on which the whole family will insist on having with them, at breakfast at least, is the crochet egg cozy. The rooster is a fitting motif, although any type of decoration may be used, one to carry out the color scheme of the breakfast set or invalid's tray. It is simply crocheted in white, using the double crochet stitch. The scarlet comb and yellow beak are the only color touches. It does preserve the egg for those late breakfast arrivals.

The every day necessity, a flat handbag, may be crocheted to harmonize with any crocheted or knitted ensemble in a woman's wardrobe. The stitch used for the bag is a treble crochet, with the stripe done in double crochet. Attractive color combinations for a purse of this sort are bronze and jade, smoke blue and petunia, brown and orange, black and lime, or any combination harmonious with any two outfits in one wardrobe.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the purse and egg cozy illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Warm Weather Best Time to Check Radiator Valves

WARM weather months are good months to check on radiator shutoff valves, as well as on the air valves of steam radiators. This will mean more trouble-free performance of the heating system when the chilly winds begin to blow.

Stubbornness Often a Child's Defense Armor

It's Weapon of Self-Expression in an Adult World, a Basically Sound Trait.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

SHE leaned thoughtfully against the open window looking out at the evening stars and listening to the children's voices and watching them as they played hide and seek, peering from behind trees and bushes, waiting for a chance to run madly "home" without being seen.

"How I used to adore playing in the evening when I was a little girl," she said. "And when mother used to call me in to go to bed, it seemed as if I couldn't stand it. I wonder now why I felt so intensely about it. I remember, though, that I wouldn't come in. And they used to call me a 'stubborn little mule.' And then they would send my oldest sister out and somehow she used to cajole me into acquiescence. I can remember even now that I didn't mean to be disobedient—and I wasn't, really. I simply cared so much about some things that I couldn't relinquish them."

Interfering Mother or Nurse Makes Obstinacy a Habit.

No one knowing this young woman now would ever associate the characteristic of stubbornness with her. She has intensity and great tenacity of purpose, but nothing that would ever merit the description of stubbornness.

Certain desirable character traits are often manifested in childhood under the guise of stubbornness. The mother or father who is wise will learn how to handle this behavior without breaking a child's spirit or weakening his determination.

Of course, all stubbornness does not answer this description. Some of it is just a general contrariness or resistance that is aroused by chronic poor management or the constant interference of a mother or nurse with a child's play and interests.

Of all of a child's traits, I think stubbornness takes the prize for producing in a grownup the feeling of utter helplessness. The child is in the grip of a stubborn spell makes you feel like a piece of putty—or as if you were banging your head against a stone wall. The child who may not be even old enough to dress himself knows how to use this weapon and defense.

For defense is just what stubbornness often is. Weapon, too, describes it in other situations. Children use stubbornness to help them to get what they want—which is to do some things and not to do others.

Child May Feel He Has "No Life of His Own."

To understand this we must realize that children have certain strong primitive instincts and urges and needs, like those for play, physical activity and so on. It is necessary for them to obey these impulses in order to grow and to develop in mind and body.

But civilization in the person of grownups—some wise and some not—puts all sorts of obstacles in their way. Little children must be quiet or they must be clean, they mustn't hit Joey or bite Sally, they must leave their play to eat, or bathe, or sleep, they must say "thanks" to grandpa or "good night" to the guests—in varying ways and degrees grownups bear down upon the child at a time when he is close to nature. If he gave in to all the demands and pressure of some parents, he would really be deprived of experiences he actually needs—he would have, to use an adult expression, "no life of his own." To combat this we see all sorts of behavior grow up to help him: disobedience, defiance, tears, tantrums, and stubbornness. Stubbornness is both a defense and a weapon.

If you will learn to manage your child well, you will not have to combat stubbornness—certainly not as an habitual form of behavior. The mother who is reasonable in her demands she makes upon her children, who gives them credit for intelligence, and who consistently gives them their way when there can be no real objection to it, will, I might almost guarantee, never have any stubbornness problem to cope with.

Stubbornness Makes Adults Feel Helpless.

Let me tuck in a remark at this point; when I speak of being reasonable in your demands upon your child, I distinctly do not mean giving him reasons and explanations at every step of the way, though there are many times when you should explain. I mean, rather, treat your child in such a way that he senses always your fairness and your considerateness of him as a human being.

One great strategic error that mothers make with children of some dispositions is making an issue of acts which are sometimes important and sometimes not. The mother who definitly commands a small and shy and perhaps tired child to say to a relative: "Thank you for the present you sent me"—and then insists and insists [usually without success], creates a situation and sometimes sets a pattern for stubbornness that is quite avoidable. Don't make issues of things unnecessarily, and so avoid clashes of will.

Here are further suggestions for avoiding or curing stubbornness:

Stubbornness is avoided by the exercise of tact—much the kind of tact you use with your contemporaries.

Say "yes" whenever you can.

Don't enter into a contest of wills.

Avoid commanding expressions or tones of voice, but on the other hand don't be vacillating when things have to be done. A friendly request, definitly given, which takes for granted the doing, is the one that gets best results.

Advice on this whole subject, fully written, will be found in our booklet, "Sidelights on Stubbornness," which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

UNIVERSITY STYLES for FALL 1935

JOE COLLEGE and his companion in crime, the flapper, are now as extinct as the "dodo," though of more recent vintage. The typical university man of today dresses in conservative, smart fashion, with much attention to the proper clothes for the occasion.

Now is the time young men begin to think about and buy clothes for "going back to school," and here are a few authentic and pertinent reminders:

GOOD TASTE IN A PLAID

Definite patterned suits of Glen Urquhart plaid will be seen on the best dressed men at fashion setting universities this fall. These may be of gray or brown. The newest three-button model features a high rolling lapel instead of the usual roll to the second button. The smartest backs are plain, with eight inch side vents.

SLACKS IN THE DARK

Flannel slacks which, incidentally, will go well with the jacket of the above mentioned suit are somewhat darker in shade and therefore practical. Solid color is highest fashion.

PRACTICAL AND NONCHALANT

In continued high fashion favor among university men is the reversible tweed and gabardine topcoat. This coat has true British ease of line and is eminently practical for campus wear.

SNAPS AND PORK PIES

The brown snap brim hat with black band continues to hold its ground as the pork pie gains in favor. The latter hat, of course, is strictly a campus and country fashion and particularly smart in rough felt finishes in the gray green or Lovat shade.

SHIRT STORY

That perennial favorite of the well dressed university man, the button down collar shirt, again will be much in evidence at leading university campuses. Nothing ever quite takes its place for easy nonchalance and good taste. (Fashion note: Be sure that the button-down collar sits rather high on the neck, with plenty of material between the button and top of the collar so as to produce a jaunty roll at the front.)

The button-down collar shirt is recommended in solid color oxford materials. Also recommended, in oxford stripes, is the round collar shirt which is exceptionally smart.

DARK TONES IN NECKWEAR

As masculine as a deep bass voice are the unusual new ideas in repp stripe ties recommended for university men this fall. These feature double and triple stripings of such unusual combinations as dark green, dark blue, and wine and dark brown, dark blue and wine.

Also gaining in favor is darker toned neckwear with allover animal motifs.

JUST AS SMART IN THE FALL

Time was when the plain toe white shoe with black saddle strap was considered a typical summer sportswear fashion, but the boys can't give them up. The fashion of wearing these same shoes the fall of the year has been authenticated by their appearance on the well shod feet of fashion leaders at the leading universities.

Rivaling the foregoing shoe for fall, and much newer, is the brown buckskin (reversed calf) shoe with the blucher front that is particularly smart.

THE WOOLS HAVE IT

Whether it is a solid color 6x3 English rib or the more spectacular Argyle plaid, it's wool socks for university men. Wool socks, particularly those with lisle linings, provide an exceptionally high type of comfort.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

Violet Scented Deodorant Is Delightfully Mild Yet Immensely Effective.

A DEODORANT with the cool, alluring fragrance of fresh violets is something you undoubtedly will list among your summer loves. It's inexpensive, effective, and you can slosh it on without fear and trembling that your frocks will fall apart or your skin become irritated.

Daintiness comes into its own in warm weather. The woman who looks cool is the one who leaves all the rest at the post. She rests the eyes, soothes the soul. She may be a murderess at heart, but if she's mastered the knack of looking crisply delectable she'll be every one's favorite person.

Art of Being Dainty in Summer Requires Great Care.

This charming trick of suggesting a dew-kissed flower petal, instead of a wilting woman, when the thermometer is doing a dance skyward, isn't achieved casually. It's both an art and a science. It takes a flair for cool, becoming colors and fabrics, but it takes conscientious work as well.

Baths, toilet waters, impeccable grooming of hair and nails, and a thousand and one little touches of slicking oneself up are tremendously important. And the battle against the distasteful odor of perspiration is relentless.

In the matter of choosing a deodorant it's only sensible for women to experiment. Some women need stronger ones than do others. Some find them irritating to the skin. The whole problem is one of those individual affairs that must be worked out by one's own rules.

Delicate Deodorant Is Mild Yet Remarkably Effective.

The violet scented deodorant we like so much isn't so strong that it will irritate even the most delicate skin. It prevents excessive perspiration and most effectually banishes its odor, and its light violet fragrance is an added joy.

It may be used at any time. Keep a bottle in your desk, if you like, and splash it on whenever you feel yourself slipping. Because it contains no acids or corrosives it won't eat the fabric of your frocks.

Since to be and to look dainty should be your summer aim in life, this is a true friend.

[For information about this violet scented deodorant, telephone Eleanor Nangle at Superior 0100, or write care of The Chicago Tribune.]

Daintiness is the secret of summer charm, and all aids toward it are welcome. Fastidious women will like an effective, inexpensive deodorant that has a violet fragrance. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Sally Invites Youngsters to Unusual Party

Huge Playroom in Stevens Hotel to Be Scene of Gathering Aug. 29.

By Sally Joy Brown.

HOW would you youngsters like to go to a brand new kind of party? Something we've never had before, but something perfectly grand? All right, here it is! 'Way up high in one of the biggest hotels in the world is one of the most unusual spots in Chicago. It's a perfectly huge playroom, with every toy about which you ever read or dreamed. It's not generally open to the public, but when Mr. Otto K. Eitel, managing director of the Stevens hotel, invited me up to see it, and suggested that I bring up 100 boys and girls for a party, you may be sure I was interested.

Great Assortment of Toys Will Intrigue Both Boys and Girls.

You never have seen such a marvelous collection of toys! You boys will be fascinated, I know, by the huge electric train, and the girls will love the Old Woman's shoe. There is a sand pile, there are doll houses, slides, ping pong tables, books galore, billiards, rocking horses, games of all kinds—well, there's everything any child would need to be happy!

At one end of the room is a stage, with real footlights and a curtain, and there we'll see a show which is to be presented especially for us. There'll be music and dancing, and Mr. Seymour Simons, the orchestra leader, has promised to come up and do a special number for us.

Interest Displayed in Letters Will Determine the Winners.

I'll tell you more about our party tomorrow, but now I want to explain again how any boy or girl may try for an invitation. I'll take 50 boys and 50 girls to this party, which is to take place on Aug. 29, and naturally I want to include as my guests the youngsters who'll most enjoy it. So, if you think you'd like this new kind of party, just write me a letter and tell me. Be sure to sign your full name and address, and tell me how old you are, and mail your letter so that it will reach me by next Thursday. If your letter is a good one, and I think you'll really like this new entertainment, you may see your name printed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE, with the winners.

These Lucky Children to See Shirley Temple in "Curly Top."

Here are the names of the boys and girls who'll be my guests at the Chicago theater next Thursday, Aug. 22. They've won invitations to see "Curly Top," Shirley Temple's delightful new movie. Personal invitations will be mailed within the next day or two, so if there's a mistake in your address, let me know immediately.

Shirtwaist Frock Proves Popularity by Being Lovely Fall Fashion.

By Clotilde.

FASHION cannot dispense with the shirtwaist frock, even after a summer season stressing its popularity. Here it is in an autumn version. The skirt of this dress is slender in line, possessing an inverted plait at the front to assure the wearer comfort in walking.

This model, pattern No. 2541, is adaptable to many lovely fabrics which one will want to wear on the first crisp days of fall. The original of this design was created in rust brown, wool-like silk, with the shirtwaist collar and bow of yellow green silk with silver stripes.

Novelty wool crêpe, angora plaid, wool jersey, and satin-back crêpe are other suggestions for this dress which is decidedly simple to make.

Style No. 2541 is designed for sizes 14, 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measurement.

Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Miniature English Rock Garden May Be Created Indoors

MINIATURE English rock gardens are charming. These adorable little gardens are made of small, multicolored flowers, cleverly arranged in attractive bowls. They vary in price according to qaulity of containers. There are Lenox ivory china shell bowls, French pottery, and hand wrought aluminum. When the flowers are arranged in them and they are placed upon a mirrored plateau.

The flowers are perfectly made in every detail. They are waxed, shellacked, and fashioned of linen fabric. Tiny pale yellow calla lilies, sapphire blue larkspur, gay coral pink hollyhocks, graceful sprays of purplish pink tamarack are a few of the flowers. Shaded green foliage provides a background. The vivid array of blossoms breathes of fairyland. Because they require no care these indoor gardens are a simple way of introducing a gay note in the home.

Household Queries

DEAR Mrs. Bargelt: Just what is meant by a nonmetallic paint? We have radiators coated with aluminum paint, but it is wearing off and we would like to paint them ivory. Can we paint over the aluminum, or must we remove it all.

J. F.

Answer: A nonmetallic paint is one which does not contain any pure metal flakes, either aluminum or bronze. You can paint with a nonmetallic paint directly over the aluminum. You will find by doing this that you have also obtained a greater dissipation of heat—your radiators will throw out a little more heat than when covered with the aluminum or bronze paint.

Question: We are intending to repaint some waxed, stained woodwork in our hall. Can we paint directly over the wax, or what shall we do?—MRS. D.

Answer: Remove all wax by sponging thoroughly with turpentine. Then wash well with washing soda and warm water: One heaping teaspoon of washing soda to two quarts of water. Dry thoroughly and go over surface, smoothing with No. 0 sandpaper. Rub parallel with grain.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: The roof of our old two story flat building is covered with tar pitch and then a layer of cement. It began to leak last winter. The pitch seemed to have cracked. What is the best way to repair it?

"KENNETH G."

Answer: The roof probably is covered with slag. I would suggest removing the old covering and laying a new one of the same type, four ply fabric with slag covering, or consulting a roofer or a modernizing firm regarding other types of available roofings.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What should we do to pitchy and knotty places in wood before starting to paint it?

"H. D."

Answer: Give the places a coat of orange shellac and let this dry at least four hours before applying paint.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Which is better, do you think, to paint a house one coat every two years, or two coats every four years? When should old paint be removed before repainting? GEORGE T."

Answer: It isn't wise to try to effect a good job of painting with only one coat. A house should be given no less than two coats at each painting and should be repainted when necessary. If the old painting is peeling or scaling remove it. Also, when the paint is checking or cracking, and producing what is called an "alligator effect," it is economy to remove it.

Member of Rose Quilt Family Is One of Largest Applique Blocks

TEA ROSE.

By Nancy Cabot.

"TEA ROSE" is another member of the charming rose family, which is gayly colored and quaintly interesting. This block is one of the large applique patterns which many women prefer and which frequently take blue ribbons at exhibitions. Old time quilters called this block "Roses and Carnations." The completed square measures 28 inches, and only 5 applique and 5 plain blocks are required for an entire coverlet. Early history of this quilt is so hazy and so many states have claimed it that quilt historians have definitly given up hope ever of placing it correctly.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Portable Electric Stove Convenient for Summertime

IF the summer cottage is wired for electricity, there still remains plenty of time for those interested in the new type of electrical, portable stove to enjoy its use. Small enough to pack and carry in the car, this stove is just about as compact as possible. It has an enclosed grill for broiling or roasting meat on a small scale. There is room for cooking two foods at the same time. Underneath one of the plates is the grill, which makes it possible for meat to be grilled, baked, or roasted, while, on top, the pot may be kept at the boiling point. There also is a raised grating on one of the plates, for making toast.

A green, painted steel stand, with space for keeping sufficient cooking utensils, is sold separately, but if included it makes this small stove a perfect combination of comfort for the housewife to use on hot days.

Dog on Wooden Box Cover Made to Sit Up and Beg

THAT the terrier as an art motif is "the top" at the present time is proved by a glance at the counter of a Chicago store, on which are displayed trivialities of all kinds, suitable for gifts and prizes. One box brings a bit of life into the body of a puppy on the lid. When the cover is raised, the dog sits up on his haunches and begs.

This tricky innovation is made possible by the design of the box. The dog is so constructed that his hind legs are fastened to the back of the lid, while his front quarters are joined with a hinge which operates when the cover is lifted. The box is attractive in light brown wood, nicely lackered.

Paper Baking Cups May Be Effectively Used on the Table

ONE of the sumplest methods of carrying out a color scheme is to use colored dishes and containers for the food. But this practice doesn't necessarily mean a great outlay for different sets of china. Paper baking cups are being made in almost every color. Several harmonizing colors are packed together in rainbow packages.

Summer Music

By Eleanor Jewett.

Robins trill a silver song
And loons call with a wailing cry
And brown larks whistle in the sky;
And gulls go screaming out to sea

Now, when the August music sounds
From every feathered little throat,
Through all the melody there shrills
The black-gowned cricket's note

The locusts and the crickets chirp
And little frogs their piping bring
To swell the chorus. All the world,
I think, is trying now to sing!

Combined Ricer and Strainer Has Multiple Purpose

A NEW style ricer and strainer combined is available for the housewife who doesn't miss a trick. It comes in three pieces—wire stand, colander, and roller pestle. It saves a great deal of time in the preparation of food. Apples, potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, and turnips may be thoroughly washed, quartered, and cooked without paring. When the vegetables are done, the colander is set on wire frame and the small pestle presses the food into a heated bowl ready for serving at the table. Creamed vegetable soups are easily prepared with this kind of ricer.

At this time of year, when tempting berries and luscious fruits lure the busy housewife into making a bit of sparkling jelly, this handy ricer will lessen time considerably if a suitable straining cloth is placed in the ricer, so that juice, free from pulp, can drip into a large bowl underneath.

Triangle Is Still No. 1 Threat to the Home

By Doris Blake.

THE greatest single problem in American home life today is—what?

What's your guess?

Money? It's a big problem. Too much or too little of it introduces all kinds of battling elements, true. But Marion S. Taylor, better known to you as the radio Voice of Experience, nominates the eternal triangle as the great American home wrecker. Some 250,000 letters to Mr. Taylor from husbands and wives confronted with the marital triangle give weight to his charge that this third person in the well known triangle represents Home Enemy No. 1.

Which brings us to the query of what you and you would do in the event of the appearance of this Home Enemy No. 1, as we choose still to call the invading person?

As a husband, what would your reaction be if you found your wife becoming emotionally involved with another man?

As a wife, what would be your first impulse should more than a suspicion of another woman present itself in your life?

If a husband, would revenge be your first motive, or nothing less than divorce serve to appease your injured pride?

If a wife, would you pack up and run, measuring your indignities in terms of substantial alimony? Or would you put on a vivid scene? Or take it bitterly, charging the usual charge, that you've given this man the best years of your life?

If the problem is as vital as reported, if it is so widespread a matrimonial occurrence, it might just be wise to sit down in a coolly calculating moment and map out a campaign against the intrusion should it ever arise.

One can't live today and be blind to the fact that there are countless men and women in this world who assume that a married man is as fair game as a single one, provided the heart is set on getting him. In this our own sex, lamentably enough, shows up worse than men.

Personally we feel that the time is ripe for intensive training of girl children in the rules that regulate recognizing other people's property. We are appalled at times by the cold-blooded manner in which young women deliberately set about appropriating some other woman's husband. The fact that a wife and children have prior claims, if called to said young women's attention, would earn you a laugh for your quaint reasoning. Nevertheless, it is this failure in moral training on the part of parents that contributes largely to the current importance of the triangle as a domestic evil.

But to get back to what to do in the event you should meet up with this Home Enemy No. 1.

First, you have to ask yourself if you have hard and fast notions about the eternal triangle. You may have to change that point of view about a wife being all bad who might get emotionally woven into one of the triangle patterns, or a husband, likewise, a good-for-nothing with no claim for further consideration.

Would you be willing to substitute another type of reasoning in the face of this possible calamity?

Would you, for instance, accept the suggestion that a partner in marriage usually gets what he deserves? Would you, say, admit to yourself that if your mate is looking elsewhere for love you have fallen down somewhere yourself? There are exceptional cases, true, in which this type of reasoning does not fit. There are both husbands and wives so emotionally unstable and of so debased a character that no angel from heaven could survive the matrimonial test with them. But until you can prove yourself absolutely guiltless you are not to fancy yourself burdened with one of these exceptional mates. They are not many, at most. The average run of wives and husbands is in the other class, mostly people yerning for the love and appreciation which, denied them at home, make them easy prey for an outsider.

OUTSTANDING SUCCESS OF PEACH SEASON

Summer desserts just don't come more successful than a fresh peach pie. With a crisp and flaky top of lattice work, and the filling richly oozing up from under, it's treatment to which this now abundant fruit responds most kindly. Even the most jaded appetite would perk up for this dessert.

Clever Gadgets for Tea Drinkers

FOR the tea hour there are a few small items of interest to aid the hostess or guest when pouring at the 4 o'clock ritual. A tricky cork, spool shaped pad, fitting securely around the spout of teapot, prevents drops of tea from straying at large upon attractive linen or highly polished table tops. There are any number and variety of tea strainers from which to select, but one worthy of mention has a small porelain receptacle with chrome crane and frame. The crane holds the strainer in place.

No lover of tea would think of being without a tea cozy with which to cover the teapot and keep contents piping hot. These articles often are elaborate affairs of quilted satin, hand painted, embroidered, etc. Clever indeed, are a group of Russian peasant doll cozies with voluminous petticoats, the under one being thickly padded to cover and keep the teapot hot. The attire of these Russian dolls is perfect in every detail to the little kerchief tied over the head from which extends a long braid of hair hanging down the back. Other tea cozies are made of two toned felt.

Bright Pottery from Los Angeles Kilns

FROM the kilns of Los Angeles there has arrived a colorful new line of pottery in colors of marine and delphinium blue, Chinese yellow, jade green, rust red, and white.

Charming effects are produced by combining these colors. One artistic combination is that of a service plate of rust color, upon which is placed a smaller plate of yellow. When soup is served, a bowl of the yellow with a rust cover makes a charming color picture. This pottery, when combined with the new line of wooden ware, is unusually smart.

There is every kind of dish to form sets for any occasion. Should the hostess desire a cocktail service of pottery, small plates with grooves to hold cocktail cups are avilable. Even a tall martini mixer may be had with a long, slender spoon thrown in for good measure. There are huge bowls for serving salads or punch to a large number of persons. Ovenproof custard cups, ramekins, casseroles, waffle sets, and tea, coffee, and chocolate pots also are available.

"If You Make an Outcry You Die!"

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

"IF YOU make an outcry you die!" Dick exclaimed sternly. "You are a black-hearted scoundrel—a dirty villain—and you shall answer for the injury you have done me and my true wife. There is a sword, sir"—and he threw the weapon on the ground in front of Maguire. "It is either you or I now. Pick up your weapon and meet me like a man, if, indeed, there is a spark of manhood in you."

A flush of rage suffused Maguire's face, and an evil gleam of hatred entered his eyes.

He picked up the sword, and the men faced each other, with weapons seized in a firm grasp.

Then came thrust and parry—and a low groan.

Maguire dropped dead

The point of his sword had caught in Deadwood Dick's hilt, and, breaking off, was hurled back in such a manner that the point of it was buried in the deputy's left eye, and, penetrating the brain, produced almost instant death.

Kneeling beside the ruffian for a few moments, Deadwood Dick ransacked his pockets of his papers, then, redoffing his disguise as Old Bum, he ran back to the camp in the heart of the basin.

With Maguire left thus, weltering in a widening pool of his own crimson life stream, little Egbert carefully folded the novel, concealed it under a pile of castoff rag carpets in a corner of the mow, cast furtive eyes about, and stole down the ladder and out of the barn into the sunshine—back into the humdrum of an ordinary world.

Little Egbert now is fifty and fat. His hair (what is left of it) is white and coarse. His eyes have lost their fire. His brain is taxed with thoughts of business, bridge, and golf. His only displays of imagination—and poor ones indeed—are those that form the basic plots of the cock-and-bull stories that he tells his wife. Egbert, who in his boy's imagination rode through the grim canyons of the Black Hills with Deadwood Dick and adventured into the very jaws of death with many another hero of the nickel and dime novels of the eighties and the nineties, now is a has-been, stolid and cold.

Memories of Those Heroes of the Paper-Backed Novels Remain with Men Who Have Not Forgotten Boyhood

And what about Deadwood Dick? What about Diamond Dick; the Bradys, Old King and Young King; Nick Carter, the superdetective; Buffalo Bill of the thrilling pamphlets; the Merriwells, Frank and Dick, and a couple score of others? That pantheon of gods—worshiped by the youth of an earlier generation? Those heroes of plain and mountain, quick on the trigger and desperate almost beyond description?

They have vanished into the limbo. The memory of them remains only with the boyhood contemporaries of Egbert, who have chosen for the sake of sentiment not to forget. It was the first of the movies—the early blood-and-thunder ones—that routed Deadwood Dick and his hard-galloping kind. The initial offerings of the nickelodeons, as the first of the cinemas were called, were so obviously wilder than the nickel and the dime novels that the printed word had no chance.

Today there are cheap paper-backed novels. But they are only rank imitations of those that quickened the pulse beat of Young America forty years ago. Or else they are poor things that lack the spark that inflames the adolescent mind. As to the reprinting of the old-time paper-backs—there is said to be a limited volume of business in that line. But as to where these reprints go, it is difficult, offhand, to say. Your boys or our boys don't see them. Collectors nowadays pay a dollar—sometimes as much as $2.50—for a rare copy of an old nickel or dime novel.

Many of the Authors of the Old Five-and-Ten Masterpieces Finished Off by the "Knell of Doom"

Times have changed indeed. The men who published the old-time thrillers are either dead, have quit the publishing business, or are engaged now in producing an altogether different type of literature. And the authors—most of them have journeyed into the mysterious great beyond. Death, or "the knell of doom," as Edward L. Wheeler was wont to write it, has finished off a sizable portion of those imaginative old scribes who turned out the sanguinary masterpieces, often at the rate of one a week—20,000 words or more in seven days. Words of action. Words of venom. And brave words, too.

Edward L. Wheeler was the man who wrote the Deadwood Dick tales. He was a big, blustering fellow who always wore a sombrero and always slapped acquaintances and strangers on the back and called them "pard." Though he talked the language of the Black Hills and points west, it was said of him that he never even once in his life ventured west of West Philadelphia. (All biographies of Wheeler say this, leaving the suspicion, therefore, that it must have some foundation in fact.)

Wheeler could handle his pen nimbly. Once, when hard pressed by his publisher, he turned out a 30,000-word novel in two days, closely approaching the record of Col. Prentiss Ingraham, wild west writer and biographer of Buffalo Bill, who under extreme stress produced a 33,000-word novel in 24 hours.

Deadwood Dick, brain child of a phony westerner, was one of the greatest of the western dare-devils. He was a gentleman of the road with a kindly heart. He was a Robin Hood, who robbed the wicked, thwarted the "ornery cusses who tried to do him dirt," and gave generously of worldly wealth and noble deeds to deserving folk. He would ride miles out of his way to rescue a maiden in distress. He galloped about the Black Hills clad all in black and wearing a black mask. He had more lives than a

Scenario Boys Try to Improve on a Classic

Cinema Spectacle Gives Ten Minutes of Dante in Modern Melodrama.

By Charles Collins.

SEEING a sign on the cinema Rialto that read: "Dante's Inferno," I said to myself: "Here is my meat. This is big league literary stuff." And unmindful of Dante's dreadful warning, "All hope abandon, ye who enter here," I passed through the portal.

The strange and erratic way of a movie producer with a literary masterpiece has been a byword for years, of course. Nevertheless I was surprised by this film's irrelevance to its advertised subject. Its Inferno is an amusement park concession of the chamber of horrors type; its central figure is not the medieval poet who recorded his fantastic vision of hell, purgatory and paradise in an immortal work, but a modern American roughneck showman.

Ten Minutes of "Inferno" Scenes.

This film's ninety minutes of melodrama and spectacle include, however, ten minutes of Dante's "Inferno" as impressively depicted by the great French illustrator, Gustave Doré. These scenes are large scale impressionistic glimpses of the damned undergoing their various punishments in the circles of Dante's infernal geography, shown [illegible] sulphurous glow of the everlasting fires, and they form a remarkable example of the movie producer's art. They deal entirely with the pageantry of the subject and evade the famous narratives, such as the love tragedy of Paola [illegible]esca and the starvation of Count Ugolino, that are imbedded in the text.

The rest of the show is concerned with the hell on earth that Jim Carter, amusement park concessionaire and ruthless grabber, created for himself. He was a good hearted rascal in private life, but a public enemy in his business methods. So his "Inferno" exhibit, built in violation of the building laws, falls in ruins on the hapless heads of several thousand customers, and his pleasure ship, at sea with a crew of untrained strike breakers, burns up in a welter of horrors. [The latter incident is obviously founded upon the disaster of the Morro Castle.]

Dante Experts Will Be Annoyed.

So I departed from the movie miscalled "Dante's Inferno," muttering to myself from the writings of the grim Florentine:

Galeotto fu el libro, e chi lo scrisse;
Quel giorno più non vi leggemmo
avante.

Or in paraphrase: "A traitor was the film and he who wrote it, and that day we looked at it no longer."

Spencer Tracy, the able actor of the rôle of hard boiled Jim Carter, began his film career in 1930 after a striking performance in the prison riot drama called "The Last Mile." Before that he had seven years of footlight experience, including an engagement with the New York Theater Guild in "Ned McCobb's Daughter."

Fred Stone's Debut in Films.

The most interesting film debutant of the current week is 62 years old and has been one of the major figures of the American musical comedy stage since 1903—the year "The Wizard of Oz" was produced in Chicago. Of course I mean Fred Stone, now a shadow actor for the first time in "Alice Adams," the movie version of Botth Tarkington's novel. He may be seen at the Palace, playing Katharine Hepburn's shabby-genteel and pathetic dad.

"Vanities" Tour.

Another of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" revues will go on tour in the fall. It will start its travels in Wilmington, Del., on Oct. 4.

SHE'S A SINGER AND HARPIST, TOO

FIO-RITO AT THE BEACH WALK

[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Ted Fio-Rito, orchestra leader and composer of popular songs, leads the revels on the Beach Walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel this summer. He has a troupe of thirty-one musicians and entertainers, and is shown here in action with Johnny Candido, singing comedian.

Last Bill of St. Louis Open Air Operetta

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 17.—One of the last of Ziegfeld's musical plays, "Whoopee," will be presented at the Municipal theater in Forest Park, beginning tomorrow, as a gala ending to a season that is expected to surpass any previous year in the history of the Municipal opera for attendance.

"Whoopee" was originally produced on Dec. 4, 1928, at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, where it ran for a year. It was the costliest production ever sent on tour by the late Florenz Ziegfeld.

With Georgie Price, comedian of the stage, screen, and radio, in the leading rôle, the largest cast of principals at the Municipal theater this season will be seen in "Whoopee."

Price has appeared in such productions as "The Kid Cabaret," "The Band Box Revue," "The Song Revue," "The Spice of 1923," "Artists and Models," "The Passing Show," and "A Night in Spain."

Little Cleopatra.

Helen Hayes will appear in a revival of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" next fall, and also in a new play. She has abandoned her idea of acting in a dramatization of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice."

THE Mohawk Drama Festival at Schenectady, N. Y., ended last night with Don Marquis' new play, "Master of the Revels," as its final production. This drama centers upon the character of Henry VIII., treated in the aspect of a great statesman, the founder of the British empire.

Charles Coburn was seen as Henry and Mrs. Coburn as Catherine of Aragon. Others in principal parts were Theodore St. John as Thomas Cromwell, Mary Hutchinson as Anne Boleyn, Curtis Cooksey as Cardinal Wolsey, John Burke as Sir Thomas More, Hart Jenks as duke of Buckingham, Henry Buckler as Thomas Boleyn, Emmett Robinson as George Boleyn, Le Roi Operti as duke of Norfolk, Susan Hall as Katheryn Howard, and Warren Parker as Edward Seymour.

Benny Fields at Vanity Fair; Cabaret Shows

Seymour Simons in the Continental Room; Chez Paree to Reopen.

BENNY FIELDS will begin a two weeks' engagement at the Vanity Fair, Broadway at Grace street, next Tuesday night. He has been a star in "Girl Crazy," "The Greenwich Village Follies," "The Passing Show," and many other musical shows.

Continuing at Vanity Fair with Fields are Al Kvale and his band, featuring Ann Rush, prima donna, and a floor show which includes Lucille Ballantine and Paul Pierce, ballroom dancers; Leslie, Ayres, and Gold; Corrine, novelty dancer; Darlene Walders, acrobatic dancer, and Erwin Lewis, singer.

- Seymour Simons, leader and writer of 100 popular songs, is the new attraction in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel. His organization contains twelve featured entertainers, including Mary Jane Walsh, singer. His other vocalists and specialty artists are Norman Gast, Nelson Bitterman, and Doc Davis.

Simons was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1917. While at the university he wrote several of the Michigan Union operas. He enlisted in the United States air service in 1917, and was commissioned a second lieutenant. After the armistice he went to New York, where he met the late Nora Bayes and wrote his first song hit for her, "Just Like a Gypsy." Subsequently he wrote two complete shows for Miss Bayes and one for Elsie Janis. Then he went to London and later to Paris.

Returning to the United States, Simons organized his first orchestra. Among the songs Simons has written are "Honey," "Tie a Little String Around Your Finger," "Breezing Along with the Breeze," "Sweetheart of My Student Days," and "All of Me," which he uses as a theme song.

Lydia and Joresco continue to head the cast of the new Continental room revue and are supported by those two outstanding Abbott dancers—Lorraine Santschi and Josephine Buckley. Hal Young, operetta tenor, is appearing in a return engagement.

- After three months of darkness, the Chez Paree will reopen early in September. Ben Bernie and his band will be the first attraction, for a two weeks' engagement. The café has been redecorated by Pereira, Senseney and Pereira, architects for Balaban & Katz, who were responsible for thirty-one corporation exhibits at A Century of Progress. An enlarged stage, a reconstructed and wider dance floor, and new electrical equipment are among the other improvements.

Ten mural decorations in outline technique on a metallic background by Raymond Katz, frequently called "Sandor," are a part of the decorative scheme. The room will also have a bar of imported blue glass separated from the café by a quartz glass partition, enabling patrons to view the show and also to hear it by means of a sound amplifying system.

- "Gypsy Pourri" is the title of George Nelidoff's latest production in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. With Leonard Keller's orchestra supplying the musical background and a new repertory of songs and dances, this production ranks high in the "Carnival of Gypsies" series.

Janina Laboda, whose gypsy songs have been popular in the earlier "Carnival of Gypsies" shows, sings the German melody "Auf Wiedersehn." Chita Chavez dances a Spanish number, and Lenore Feldeen presents a Dutch dance with Walter Kamryn.

Nelidoff himself offers the "Rogue Song." A colorful climax marks the finale of the show. The dancers perform a Hungarian czardas to "Hjere Kati" as the singers present an arrangement of the popular songs of many countries.

- Ada Leonard, special feature of the bill at the Cocoanut Grove, sings several songs and does a dance. She also appears in ensemble numbers with the Paul Batchelor ballet.

- With a dance team added to Ted Fio-Rito's troupe of thirty entertainers and musicians, the Edgewater Beach hotel is presenting lively entertainment on its beach walk. Shayne and Armstrong are the new ballroom dancers. Competition in the band for honors continues among Johnny Candido, singing comedian; "Muzzy" Marcellino, romantic tenor; Stanley Hickman, crooner; the Three Debutantes, girl harmony team, and the Fiorettes, singing sisters.

- Mary Sunde continues to head the floor show at Colosimo's. Supporting her are Renee Villon, Lorraine and Carlos, Don Enrico, Lydia Harris, and Lynn Bassory. Bob Tinsley's orchestra continues.

- Weekly amateur contests, with auditions Saturday afternoon and final judging by the public Sunday night, have become a popular event at Harry's New York cabaret. The first prize is a week's engagement at the café. Trudye Davidson, dancer, with a group of blonde chorus girls known as the "Texas Debutantes," continues in the floor show, which also includes Phil Bernard, Harry Harris, Edna Leonard, Art Buckley, Al Wagner, and Billy Meyers.

- The glee club with Horace Heidt's orchestra in the Silver Forest of the Drake hotel is introducing burlesque numbers and parodies. "John Brown's Baby Has a Cold Upon His Chest" and "Three Blind Mice" are among their popular numbers. Another novelty is a hill-billy from California, Jack Warren, who sings "Ragtime Cowboy Joe."

- Ross and Ray Lyte, a dance team who some months ago enjoyed a long run at the Blackhawk café, are back again assisting Barbara Parks and John Paul Jones in the floor show. The performance is led from the piano by Joe Sanders, the orchestra leader. The Midnight Flyers, Monday night celebrity show, is a feature on the weekly calendar at the Blackhawk.

- Glenn Lee and his orchestra, with Miss Kea Rea as featured vocalist, and the Claude Denny foursome, continue as entertainers in the Terrace Garden of the Hotel Morrison.

- The Palmer house announces that arrangements have been completed to continue the record breaking engagement of Veloz and Yolanda, the dancers, until Oct. 2.

- Riverview's Mardi Gras season began last night and will continue until the park closes. The park did not hold its carnival in 1933 and 1934 because of the World's Fair activities.

Show for Tour

BROADWAY'S leading musical comedy success, "Anything Goes!" now playing at the Alvin theater in New York, is expected to begin a tour in Philadelphia on Nov. 4. Thereafter it will journey to Washington on Nov. 18; to Pittsburgh on Nov. 25, and to Chicago on Dec. 2. This city will have it for an indefinite engagement.

The Messrs. Curtis and Hoagland have acquired from Vinton Freedley certain rights permitting them to exhibit a production of "Anything Goes!" in smaller cities that will not be touched by the original company. To this end they have engaged Oscar Shaw for the rôle created by William Gaxton. The second company has begun rehersals.

Vincent Lopez at the Palace; Variety Bills

VINCENT LOPEZ, orchestra leader and pianist, has brought his favorite tune, "Nola," and his orchestra and entertainers to the Palace theater. In his troupe are Fred Lowery, Johnny Morris, Stanley Worth, Thelma Nevins, Bliss, Lewis and Ash, Raul and Eva Reyes [whose Cuban dances have been popular in New York night clubs], and the Three Nonchalants, comic acrobats who recently completed a long engagement at the Empire room of the Palmer house.

Headlining the stage portion of the bill at the State-Lake theater is Toto, an internationally known musical clown and pantomimist, an excellent dancer. He does several musical travesties.

Other stage features on the program are: Bert Rome and Johnny Palace, comedians; Billy Silvi and Arlene, musicians; Peggy Calvert in songs by Neville Flesson; the Three Wiles, dancing comedians; Jack Lane, character impersonator; Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

Mlle. Renee Villon has discarded her "White Peacock Dance" and is seen in an "Aphrodite" number in her return engagement at the Oriental theater this week. She heads a show of musical comedy type with an additional array of vaudeville talent. Mark Fisher and the Dorothy Hild ballet appear in a dance called "Penthouse Party."

Radical Drama.

The New York Theater Union's first production of the season will be a work called "Mother," which descends from the writings of Maxim Gorky by way of a German writer named Bert Brecht. It has been staged and suppressed in Berlin.

Lose Majesty?

Fictitious Presidents of the United States will be characters in three plays scheduled for production in New York in the fall. The pieces are called "Dear Mr. President," "If This Be Treason," and "Woman of Destiny."

'Rah Rah' Boy Missing Now from College

Blase Type Seen in Boom Days Gives Way to Serious Minded Worker.

VISITS to college and university campuses this fall by students of a former era in the history of higher education in America may startle the visitors, if findings of the Carnegie foundation are correct. The foundation is authority for the statement that the once typical "rah rah" boy is no longer to be found and that the campus "country club" atmosphere of the boom days has gone into a long decline.

According to Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president of the foundation, the new atmosphere has been engendered chiefly by the depression. There is an entirely different attitude today on the part of both students and institutions.

Present Day Student Not of Blase Type.

"The student of today," said Dr. Jessup, "is no longer the blasé, sophisticated youth so prevalent at colleges during the boom years. He is a hard working, serious minded person who demands more of the college library, the laboratory and the instructors than did his brother of a decade ago.

"He is increasingly a patron of the seminar, the serious lecture, the symphony concert. He has a different attitude toward scholarship, research, athletics, fraternities and student activities.

"It is a fact that every serious minded experiment on the part of educational institutions to attain a new level of effectiveness is being met by the students with intelligent coöperation. This has been notably true at Chicago, Harvard, Minnesota and Princeton.

Colleges Must Forget Fantasies of the 20s.

"It is altogether likely that the students will do their part in maintaining colleges as 'seats of learning' if the colleges—executives and staf—can forget the educational fantasies of the nineteen twenties and face the present in a spirit of reality."

In the struggle for academic existence, Dr. Jessup said, the survivors would not necessarily be the colleges with the most money. Conditioning factors, he said, were "intelligent leadership, high morale, and the courage to be sincere with students."

Actors' Circus

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Plans for the production by Billy Rose of "Jumbo," a theatrical circus with a cast of 1,200 animals and numerous actors, takes definite shape with the announcement that Rose has signed a one year lease for the New York Hippodrome at a rental of $104,000 for the year. This is the highest rental for a theater in New York in the last five years.

The circus will open Sept. 15 with a cast including Jimmy Durante, Paul Whiteman, Blanche Ring and Donald Novis. Dance numbers will be staged by John Murray Anderson. Alfred Johnson and Norman Bel Geddes will design the scenery.

Dublin's Pride

THE Abbey theater of Dublin, with newly decorated foyer, reopened Aug. 5 with a production of Rutherford Mayne's drama on land division in Ireland called "Bridgehead." It was Dublin's first opportunity to welcome the players after their long absence in the United States.

At the close of the performance F. J. McCormick, Barry Fitzgerald, Arthur Shields, Denis O'Dea, and Maureen Delaney received many curtain calls. Mr. Shields spoke as follows:

"We had a wonderful tour of the United States, and some fine audiences, but to be received here at home by an audience like this tonight is something different, something that touches us very much."

MUST THINK OF BETTY

Betty Grable—a comparative newcomer to the films—is what Bert Wheeler thinks most of when . . . and if . . . he thinks in "The Nitwits." State-Lake.

Hollywood Happenings

Clark Gable will play, but not sing, with Jeanette MacDonald in "San Francisco," a story of the earthquake period in the waterfront town. John Emerson, husband of Anita Loos, will produce the film for M. G. M., with Gable as a big gambler and MacDonald as the small town girl who comes to the big town to sing.

Buddy Ebsen, New York dancer in "Broadway Melody of 1936," has received a contract as an actor at M. G. M., where he is hailed as a "young Will Rogers type," meaning something about how he looks, I guess, and it probably isn't flattering, no matter how much you admire Will Rogers.

Joe Cunningham, humorist, gag man, radio writer, and what-have-you-that-pays-well-in-the-writing-line, says he'd rather face the heckling or gagging of any after-dinner audience than the repartee of a 14 year old kid. "They can stop anybody, they're so fast," says Joe. He should know. He has five of his own who play with the eight Breen children, children of Joe Censorship Breen, and the repartee thrown about on the sands at the Deauville club last Sunday by members of the families seemed ample proof.

W. C. Fields has taken a gradual turn for the better after a long and alarming illness during which it seemed his large film public would never see the favorite again. His physicians now say that in two more months he may be able to think about films again.

Ethel Merman is on hand to begin work opposite Eddie Cantor in "Chute the Chutes." She will sing and clown as usual, usual for her, but unusual for any one else to be able to do.

Cast of 'In Person' Escapes Heat 'On Location'

Cool Mountain Camp Nestled Near Big Lake

Production Reverses Time Honored Rule of Doing Snow Scenes in Town.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The rule in Hollywood production activities always has been that snow scenes are made in the midst of the heat and summer scenes in the dead of winter. Nobody knows why this always has been the case, but take it from one who has watched actors struggling through killing heat swathed in furs and staggering around on gypsum ice cakes for ten years it is that way. "Way Down East" is busy doing its blizzard scenes at the moment, according to the time honored custom, which makes it remarkable that Ginger Rogers, George Brent, and Alan Mowbray have been on location for eight days up at Big Bear, 7,000 feet up, amongst the whispering pines. No hemlock that we noticed.

Three and a half hours of riding up mountain roads that would thrill the most intrepid finally brought us to the location camp, nestled beside a goodly sized lake near the summer and winter resort town of Big Bear. Heavy barbed wire fences surrounded the property, and it was easy to see why precautions were necessary, for nearly the whole town and the summer visitors as well, left their arguments over trout fishing and mosquitoes to come and watch the movie company at work.

Much Modified Whoopee Helps to Pass Time in the Wilds.

The whole troupe seemed to be enjoying the location enormously, glad to be away from the heat of the town. After working hours they made their own fun, as there is nothing else to do in such a remote place. Glen Tryon, writer on the production, "In Person," was given a birthday party by the troupe. Scouts were sent across the trackless wilds to San Bernardino and came back with a huge birthday cake which was carefully concealed in the rushes along the lake. Candles were lit and the sheet sun reflectors were pressed into service to keep off the breezes until Glen could see the cake. He was taken down to the water's edge and dumped in near the cake which he spotted when he rose sputtering from the lake. Much fooling around and the cake was rescued and eaten.

Radio night was declared over at the town dance hall and the troupe took over the place, playing host to the villagers who got the thrill of their lives when Ginger and Hermes Pan, the dance director, put on a special dance number for them. Ginger has to do two dance routines in the picture, and Pan reherses her before shooting begins in the morning and after dinner in the evening. Ginger does some scenes in the picture in which she swims right into the camera [in a technical sense, of course] and has been practicing swimming as well. It's quite something to keep your wind swimming and dancing at an altitude of 7,000 feet. Ginger is justly proud of the good condition she is in.

Principals Take Up Target Shooting for Fun of It.

Another way to pass the time has been revolver practice. Bill Seiter, the director, has a revolver, and he, Ginger, and Brent shoot at targets when they have a good light.

Seiter has been teaching George Brent how to cast in the lake which is full of rainbow trout. A big laugh was had by all when Seiter pulled in a tiny trout with a perfect cast and Brent landed a honey with an amateur attempt!

Thunder and a rainstorm have to be improvised for the story in this idyllic setting, with the picturesque mountain cabin beside the lake, and it is taking quite some equipment to do it in that remote locale where no rain falls for many months. Pipes have been stretched overhead out of sight amongst the tall pine trees and a 300 horsepower engine, brought up from the studio, will pump 2,000 cubic feet of water a minute over the quarter acre of woodland shown in the film. The lake solves the water problem.

Old Timers Brought Into Camp to Aid Men in Whittling Art.

A rage of whittling has swept the camp. All the men in the company have been whittling things out of wood, even bringing in a few old timers from the village to help them in the finer points of whittling, and they sit about and watch the lovemaking of Ginger and Brent endlessly repeated before the camera and mutter "the salaries they get fer goin' through them monkeyshines!" Honestly and truely, it doesn't look like work.

Warren William is the proud inventor of an innovation in entertaining equipment that is the envy of all Hollywood. William, who owns a beautiful estate, with a swimming pool, gardens, and lawns, is a great devotee of dining en plein air, but, like most of us, he hates ants, slopped-over coffee in the saucer, and the perpetual juggling act that is the inevitable accompaniment of trying to eat six courses off the knee. A recent party beside his pool introduced William's invention which solves all these problems nicely. It is a huge platform table mounted on the frame and wheels of a popular priced car which can be wheeled over the lawns from the kitchen at the house, or from beside the barbecue pit to wherever the meal is to be served. A hundred people can be served from this table.

Innovation Also Usable as Shaded Porch or Sun Deck.

When the repast is over nimble servants can quickly strip it and put up the awnings. Presto—there is a shaded porch which can be easily moved anywhere in the gardens. If sun baths are on the program after swimming the awnings are furled and a grand sun deck is at your service.

Guests at the buffet dinner, which introduced this new wonder and climaxed an afternoon of swimming, games, tennis, ping-pong, and polo ball, were Blanche Yurka, Genevieve and Vivian Tobin, Peggy Shannon, Vivienne Osborne, Florence Fair, Gladys Unger, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Walter Armitage, Jesse Lasky Jr., and many others.

Three Amateur Cowboys Having Fun While Irking Their Wives.

Ralph Bellamy, Charley Farrell, and Bill Gargan are a trio of ambitious amateur cowboys who are having a great deal of fun these days. Tex Austin's Wild West show, with its cowboy contests, is holding forth at the Gilmore stadium here, and three movie stars spend every available moment at the stadium learning new tricks. All three are pretty good amateurs and fair polo players, too, and will tell you about the time, in recent weeks, that they herded fifteen head of horses from the San Fernando valley down through the residential streets of Beverly Hills to the polo field in Santa Monica canyon, a difficult feat indeed. The boys get loud howls of complaint from their wives who would like to go dancing or to parties, but the social stuff can wait until the cowboy contests are over, the boys figure.

Bette Davis is having herself a time down at Balboa, where she has taken a cottage for the summer. She has a new boat, a catboat which she christened the Whippet, which she got a couple of weeks ago, and is now sailing boldly all over the Balboa lagoons and inlets. Her mother, Mrs. Ruth Davis, has been seriously ill, and Bette took the cottage to give her mother a place to recuperate.

Al Dubin Has High Powered Car Driven at Low Speed.

Al Dubin, song writer, partner of Harry Warren, is another of the safety first maniacs, of whom there are several in the film colony. His new high powered car is driven by a chauffeur who has strict orders to drive five miles under the speed limit at all times on peril of losing his job. "M-m-m, would you like to take a walk?" was one of Dubin's hits, if you remember. There is another guy like that in town, Robert Kalloch, designer at Columbia, who, by his own confession, spends his life kneeling on the floors of taxis praying to the driver to keep 'er down to 20 an hour. He's afraid to own a car of his own and wishes that autos, like fashions, would revert to the speed of the gay nineties.

On B'way Schedule.

The first production of the new season by Rowland Stebbins, who staged "The Green Pastures," will be "On Stage," a comedy by Benjamin Kaye.

OPERA SINGER IN CIVIL SHOWS

GOOD Morning!

Fox has great plans for little Shirley Temple. Mr. Eckhardt, genial manager of the Chicago exchange, was telling me about them.

"Shirley is not a freak. She's a genius. She's a dear, little thing, but she also is a really great actress. That being the case, there's no tragedy about her growing up. We'll go right along with her in the matter of stories.

"Right now we plan 'The Littlest Rebel' and 'Poor Little Rich Girl' for her. Later will come such pictures as 'Daddy Long Legs,' etc. Get the idea?"

Plans Make One Contemplate Shirley's Future Confidently.

I did. And isn't it a good one? It makes one contemplate Shirley's future with confidence and new interest at a time when stories for her seem, of necessity, to be all of one general pattern.

"Curly Top" has the Cinderella motif and is a movie that youngsters will adore. Because it takes—through the medium of nice John Boles—a dear little orphanige child and her pretty young sister and transplants them in a garden of luxury. . . .

The opening episodes occur in the orphanage. Here Elizabeth is the darling and problem of the place. She, and her young sister, who works in the kitchen for her board and keep, are the orphaned children of theatrical parents who were killed in a wreck. Elizabeth and Mary have been permitted to bring with them to the institution their pets—a trained Shetland pony and a goose. [Fun for child audiences here!]

Irrepressible Elizabeth Alters Fortune with Her Pranks.

Through some unforseen activities of irrepressible little Elizabeth, on a day when the board of directors comes to make its monthly tour of the place, she and her sister are brought to the notice of genial, wealthy Bachelor Morgan, a board member just returned from wanderings abroad. And, shortly, the orphanage knows Elizabeth and Mary no more!

While a naive little offering, "Curly Top" may be recommended as a whole family movie. For everybody adores Shirley, and she's just blossoming all over the piece. Everybody likes to hear John Boles sing, which he does, delightfully. And the supporting cast is made up of adults and children who, under sympathetic direction, pleasingly bolster up both story and featured players.

BitsaBOUTem.

Little FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW, the English lad who made good in "David Copperfield," has been chosen to play the title rôle in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." . . . WENDY BARRIE, who had set her heart on going back to her home town in England for a visit, was sadly disappointed when she found out that she couldn't get away from the studio. To lessen her disappointment she sent for her father, mother, and sister to come over here, and she has leased a house in Beverly Glen where the family will make their home.

"Money From Home," a steeplechase story by Damon Runyon, has been chosen for BING CROSBY'S next picture, following "Anything Goes." The studio decided to use this story because of Bing's enthusiasm for his race horses. . . . KATHERINE DE MILLE, young Paramount player and daughter of Cecil De Mille, has taken up aviation.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON'S next starring picture is to be "Money Man." The screen play was adapted from a story by Dashiell Hammett. BETTE DAVIS has been chosen as Mr. Robinson's leading lady in this production. . . . JEAN ARTHUR will have her first starring rôle in "If You Could Only Cook," a comedy written by Hugh Herbert. . . . When GARY COOPER returns to Hollywood after his vacation he will start work on "Opera Hat" for Columbia studio. This story, written by Clarence Budington Kelland, ran serially in a magazine.

See you tomorrow!

Business Man Wins Fame as Play Producer

SIX years ago Harry Moses was one of Chicago's business men. He was born and raised in Chicago. He lived there with his wife, Elsa, and son, Jack, and attended to his business, which was manufacturing. He was in this business for 20 years. Though he may not have been famous then, he was successful.

Mr. Moses is now a man in his late fifties. He is of medium height and solidly built. He dresses nattily, but rather quietly, often in gray. His office is not in Chicago any more, but on the fifth floor of the Empire Theater building, Broadway and 39th street. He is no longer in the manufacturing business. He is in show business. And he is successful at that also. Instead of having his name on a clothing label he has his name on a theater program, saying, "Harry Moses presents . . . ." At the moment he is the fortunate proprietor of "The Old Maid," which was fortunate enough to be awarded this year's Pulitzer Prize for drama.

With Mrs. Moses, he was much interested in the theater when he was a member of the Chicago manufacturing community. She was formerly an actress.

William Drake, a play translator and adapter, went to Mr. Moses with the manuscript of "Grand hotel." Mr. Moses liked it and his wife liked it even more. Mr. Moses, new to the New York theater, was pondering whether to buy it. Jack had just graduated from the University of Michigan and was at home with his family in New York. He pointed out that his mother's birthday was approaching and that the thing she wanted most was "Grand Hotel." Mr. Moses gave her the play as a birthday present. The play, of course, was the sensation of the year.

After "Grand Hotel" there came "The Warrior's Husband," which Mr. Moses produced. This was the play which sent Katharine Hepburn hurtling to Hollywood. On Mr. Moses' office wall today is a picture of Miss Hepburn with the following inscription: "To Harry Moses, who had the faith to give me my first chance."—Stirling Brown in the Wall Street Journal.

Fortune Gallo Philosophizes on Film Opera

Director of San Carlo Company Tells of His Pioneering Ventures.

By Edward Moore.

DURING the operation of getting his San Carlo Opera company ready for another long tour, Fortune Gallo pauses a moment to philosophize over opera and the musical films.

"I guess I can't be modest any longer," he says. "I am afraid I will have to start reminding people that I made the only full length sound film of a grand opera ever produced, and that I made it in 1930, early in the history of the talkies, just as quickly as I was satisfied that reproduction methods were satisfactory.

"That was 'Pagliacci,' and I had been waiting twenty years to make it. When I brought Leoncavallo to this country, a quarter of a century ago, as guest conductor for my company, and we got to California, the movie spirit seized him and he said at once that his opera would make a good picture. I agreed with him, but I told him I would wait until we could have sound as well as sight.

"That film still is being used. I get royalty checks every month.

Popularization of Opera Has Influence on Films.

"And I will have to point out something else, too. Since I have had the only touring grand opera company for years, and in the last few years I have given popular price grand opera in thirty to thirty-five states every season, don't you suppose that has had a great deal to do with getting grand opera into the movies?

"You know those Hollywood fellows are careful. They don't risk money until they are pretty sure they can see it, and a lot more, coming back to them. Don't you imagine the public's reaction to my artists did a lot to make the producers realize that opera in films would make a hit with a great many theatergoers?

"So instead of movies aiding opera, as we keep seeing printed here and there and everywhere, it really is the opera that has aided the movies.

"You notice something else about those movies, too, that I could have told them a long time ago. They are using American singers. Practically all of our company are Americans, in spite of the foreign names that some of them have.

Realizes Public Appreciates Opera at Popular Prices.

"I wouldn't have gone to grand opera at popular prices if I hadn't known that was what people wanted, just as the movie producers see now that their patrons like it, too. I paid Bori, Martinelli, and Ruffo $9,000 to sing 'La Boheme,' and $9,000 more to sing 'Pagliacci' in Havana in 1923, and the receipts were $50,000, but those days are gone forever. For my season there I had Bori, Martinelli, and Ruffo, and Marie Kouznetzoff, Marie Rappold, Anna Fitzu, Bianca Saroya, Mario Valle, Stella DeMette, Sofia Charlebois, Tamaki Miura, Tito Schipa, Richard Bonelli, Manuel Salazar, Marguerite D"Alvarez, and Josephine Lucchese.

"But never again! I please more people now, and I don't have so many headaches."

Mr. Gallo's Company to Have New Equipment in Scenery.

It is said that when Mr. Gallo and his company approach the Auditorium in October operatic patrons will find a new equipment of scenery for the season. The builders and painters have been busy with reconstruction for the general repertoire, and new construction for such works as "Tannhäuser" and "Thaïs," which have not been in his habitual list, but are spoken of as probable additions. Who will sing in them, or in any of the others, still remains in the silence.

After the San Carlo company has finished its engagement the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe will come to the Auditorium for a briefer period. Hopes also are being held out that "The Great Waltz" also will be among those present, but this probably will not be until after the holidays.

Theater Critic Resigns as a Film Prophet

Gloomy Forecast Made 20 Years Ago Altered by Movies' Triumph.

By Burns Mantle.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special.]—I had hoped to be a prophet and with the prophets stand. Twenty years ago I stood upon these same motion picture lots, watched them building covered stages and making three-fourths of every movie under artificial lights, and wrote home to the folks that in five years there would be little left of Hollywood.

The motion picture capital of the world was about to succumb to economic pressure and the progress of science, said I. It having been found that a steady sunlight was no longer necessary to the filming of even exterior scenes, which could be as cheaply built as located, there was no reason why the picture makers should not move their apparatus closer to their sources of supply, which were all in the east.

Critic Resigns as Prophet After View of Movies 20 Years Later.

I come back twenty years after and find covered studios spread over acres of ground, but the industry of picture making is more firmly intrenched in Hollywood than ever before. I resign as the prophet. There is no reason, the picture makers still tell me, why eastern studios should not be able to do all that California studios do. No reason why it should not be possible to find in the east plenty of good weather and as great a variety of attractive locations for needed exteriors. They even admit that eastern locations would save them thousands of dollars. But I suspect them of talking without conviction.

Neither they nor the actors who work for them really want to get back to Broadway, save for occasional visits. The sunshine of the country has gotten them and holds them. Another twenty years may see a change. The coming of television may have something to do with it. But for the present Hollywood still is the picture capital of the universe with a proud and contented citizenry.

Familiar Pilgrimages to Suffice May Be Made in Single Tour.

I made the familiar pilgrimages, but was satisfied with a day of them. If one sees three of the four Marxes performing in front and in back of the lights for "A Night at the Opera," with George Kaufman [who swore lustily that Hollywood would never get HIM] standing by with suggestions and new lines; if one sees the perfect torsoed Johnny Weismuller swimming through a cement floored lake with a three day old baby deer on his shoulder which Tarzan is, presumably, saving from a forest fire; if one meets Jack Benny loafing between the takes of a revue that spread all over the lobby of a Miami hotel, and watches Edmund Gwenn gossiping in pantomime with Lucille Watkins during a shot at "The Bishop Misbehaves"; if one meets Robert Benchley coming jauntily from his afternoon's half hour joust with hard labor, and meets John Emerson at the cafeteria and is going to dinner with Edgar Selwyn so one may see the new swimming pool he has built back of his Georgian cottage to please the Ruth Wilcox who is Mrs. Selwyn, that seems to cover with fair completeness a Hollywood afternoon.

Embargo in Agua Caliente Dampens Ardor of Sightseeing.

And if I add that at the edge of the Selwyn pool I found Margaret Perry, who had motored out from New York after "Ceiling Zero" closed, and Edmund Goulding, who still is at the business of writing scenarios, and Peggy Fears, who is doing her bit to give the newer pictures color, and Carmel Myers, who was prominent in the silent screen days, that should convince that one day's pilgrimage is sufficient for a touring New Yorker of modest social ambitions.

There was not much of Agua Caliente that they could show me in the south. The order had just come from the reform president that gambling must cease, and to bring the question quickly to an issue the proprietors of the resort had closed it up tight. No games, no hotel! And 15,000 Mexican employés went on relief.

We got as far as the gate and had a peep at the grounds and the race track. But there a large Mexican gentleman, with several badges of authority, stopped us. I explained that I had come all the way from New York, that I had many friends who had lost many dollars at the games in Agua Caliente, that writing for the newspapers was my business, and that I should like to be able to visualize this far-famed resort in future references. To all of which he listened respectfully and then said, quite sharply:

"See Chif Poliss!"

"And where?" I asked, "will I find the Chif Poliss?"

"In barn," he said. "He come soon."

I waited and repeated my story to another and larger Mexican, with larger badges of authority to prove he was the "Chif Poliss." He also listened attentively and then waved me aside with a curt: "For two, three days, nobody see. Embargo!" And that definitely was that.

Passadena Playhouse Triumphant Success Against Great Odds.

It is a little thrilling to come upon the Pasadena playhouse after many years of reading of its achievements. It is, I suspect, the greatest of the community theaters that have been developed from those temporary defeats of the legitimate theater born of the depression and the growing popularity of the motion picture.

To add to the thrill I found the Playhouse company, a competent band of home trained professionals, engaged in giving all ten of the Shakespeare chronicle plays, a history of the English kings from John to Henry VIII. This is the first of what Gilmor Brown, director of the playhouse, hopes may become as important an annual drama festival as those held at England's Malvern and Stratford.

The fact that this community playhouse had the courage to attempt the chronicles was startling [they have never been done in sequence before], but the added fact that they actually were producing a profit at the box office fairly took my breath. I had just come up from San Diego, where the old Globe theater and its tabloid Shakespeare is the single paying concession at the fair. Surely this was a strange, new country, theatrically, that I had come to visit!

Days of Struggle Forgotten in Aftermath of Success.

The citizens of Pasadena tell proudly now of their community theater. It always is so after the fight is won. Those days of struggle when the determined Brown, who had drifted into Pasadena with a troupe of discouraged professionals, decided to pitch his stage there and make a fight for the living drama in the very heart of the cinema country, are now no more than casual paragraph links in the history of a playhouse that began as a doubtful venture and became something like a national inspiration.

They had plenty of discouraging setbacks, but they had a bit of luck, too. It is grand to hear them tell of the day when, after building the new playhouse and going into debt for $180,000, an interested patron walked calmly into Mr. Brown's office, made casual inquiry of his plans and hopes for the future, and begged the privilege of paying off the debt. She was Mrs. Fannie E. Morrison, and practically all the theater minded folks of southern California call God's attention to her in their prayers.

I had been up and down Mount Wilson with the proprietress of a sturdy car that runs wonderfully whenever its mistress remembers to put water in the battery. The fact that she had neglected to do this the last 25,000 miles resulted in delaying us somewhat, and I saw only the second half of the community players' production of "Henry VI.," part II.

Enough, however, to recognize that it was competently read and interestingly cast, with no tinge of amateurism in any division. The stage is modified Elizabethan and lends itself nicely to Shakespearean requirements, with dimmed lights to take the place of scene curtains.

Afterward the Charles Prickett who is the Gilmor Brown right hand, and has been from the first, led me through the playhouse, past the workshop where student actors give performances of student playwright scripts under the leadership of student directors each week-end, past a play library of expanding size, through a greenroom where subscribers have tea with the players on occasion, past a costume room in which the town's leading society women are proud to say they have sewed on costumes for playhouse productions, over balconies to a palm shaded patio fitted with refreshment tables for the intermission trade. It is something to see, this community theater. And something to admire.

Tomorrow I start flying home. Through the air to Albuquerque, over the Boulder dam and the Grand canyon. On to Amarillo, Wichita, and Kansas City, taking a new plane there for Chicago. And all that, God being good, in fourteen hours or thereabouts. I never thought to see the day I could travel from New York to California and back without dreading the trip. It can be done.

Will Rogers, the Cowboy Humorist—His Life Story

How He Became Idol of American Public

By CHARLES COLLINS

"Shucks! I was just an ol' cowhand who had a little luck. Why all this here fuss about me?" Will would say. But to the American public the late Will Rogers, beloved humorist, was an idol. This intimate story of his life, therefore, is a tribute to his popularity. It will be continued in the Daily Tribune in tomorrow's editions and for five days thereafter. Don't miss an instalment.

WILL ROGERS, whose picturesque and unique career came to a tragic end Aug. 15 in an airplane crash on an Alaskan tundra, was the most famous American humorist of this generation. More than that, although his life was unusual, he was probably the most typical American character in the public eye.

He had no imitators or rivals; he stood alone as an extraordinary and incomparable jester for the millions; and yet he was, as a type, the average American, as that theoretical figure likes to imagine himself. Uncle Sam himself, if incarnated, would be less true to the country's racial tradition. One sees very few human Uncle Sams walking the streets or tilling the fields of this nation, but one can find little Rogerses by the dozens, the hundreds, the thousands.

Rogers, the national figure, was the plain homespun American, magnified hugely by his fortunate access to all the means of communication that are available in this era—the motion pictures, the talking pictures, the radio, the newspaper syndicates, the book publishing business, and the stage. With all these developments of modern technology at his command, he became much more of a household word than a far greater humorist of the past to whom he bore a slight resemblance—Mark Twain.

He had those qualities that made every one like him—a homely, rustic, and appealing exterior, and a sense of humor that was keen as a knife's edge. The corncob pipe and backwoodsy string tie were just two of the many little touches that put Will Rogers over in a big way before the American public.

Will Rogers with his wife and a son, Will Jr., the last named in the uniform of a Culver cadet. This photograph was taken in 1928.

It was as a lariat artist that Will Rogers first began to attract attention. As he whirled his rope he chewed gum and "wisecracked," chiefly about American politics.

To begin with, he had the so-called wild west in his background—an environment which figures in the daydreams of the average American male. He sprang from the agricultural population of the trans-Mississippi prairies—the lower middle class of the soil—like a great mass of his fellow citizens who resembled him closely in appearance, point of view, and sense of humor. He was homely and droll; he was a family man; he was good to his folks and democratic among his neighbors; and there was nothing he liked better than to talk politics with a burr of satire on his tongue.

Possessor of Mind Keen for Seeing Absurdities.

He spoke the language of the great plains, like a man who had nothing more than a dash of little red schoolhouse education, and when he cracked a joke it was the sort of remark that the average American might have made if he had had a a humorous inspiration.

The only thing that made Will Rogers different from his fellows, aside from the facts in his almost fabulous career as an entertainer, was the streak of genius that marks a man for fame if luck is on his side. He had an exceptionally keen mind for seeing the absurdities in the national life and a hair-trigger tongue for expressing his droll observations. He thought like a cartoonist, and produced his humorous ideas with quick, sure, unpretentious phrases.

Will Rogers' profession was talking about topics of the day, with major emphasis on politics. Here, again, is found his resemblance to the newspaper cartoonist. "I don't know nothin'," he frequently said, "except what I read in the newspapers." He won national, even international, recognition as a philosopher for the masses by reading between the lines and speaking his droll mind frankly about what he saw there.

He died in hearty, active middle age (he would have been 56 years old on the 4th of next November), but he had ranged so widely in his activities that he seems to have lived several lives. One index of his fame in the motion picture field is the fact that last year, when Hollywood salaries were investigated by the NRA code authority, he led the list of income earners. The top salary for the preceding year was $315,000, and although names were not published it was generally agreed that this Monte Cristo of the movies was Will Rogers.

Nevertheless he always refused to call himself an actor—with a quizzical twinkle in his deep-set blue eyes, of course.

"I'm not smart enough to act," he declared.

He meant, of course, that he did not try to originate character, and had not been trained in that field. He didn't have to try; he merely acted himself, and the public roared its approval. It is said that he never tried to memorize the dialogue of his rôles with any degree of accuracy. But he inevitably said the right thing, in the typical Will Rogers way, on the spur of the moment.

Face and Voice Known Over the Entire Land.

He had a fortune and world fame. He was a household word in the land. His face and voice were known affectionately wherever the American people have access to motion pictures and the radio. He had hobnobbed on intimate terms with the great and the near-great. He had published about a dozen books and numerous magazine articles. He had been lightly mentioned as a candidate for the presidency of the United States; he had been seriously mentioned as a candidate for the governor's chair in Oklahoma; he had been elected mayor of Beverly Hills, Cal.

How did all this come about?

Merely because a ranch hand in Indian Territory, apparently no different from any other bunkhouse and chow wagon worker, had a gift for making comical remarks as he performed the routine tricks with a lasso which almost every cowpuncher knows. Will Rogers' start in life was making the boys laugh behind the corral.

His father was Clement Vann Rogers; his mother's maiden name was Mary Schrimpser. They were pioneers in Indian Territory, and, like many other settlers in that region before it attained statehood as Oklahoma, they had a strain of Indian blood in their veins. On both sides of the house the Rogers family was part Cherokee. The exact degree of racial mixture is not known, but it is safe to assert that Will (baptized William Penn Adair) Rogers did not inherit his sense of humor from the aborigines. That was clear Anglo-Saxon of the American colonial stock. Moreover, this Indian strain did not manifest itself in his appearance. His blue eyes, which had the plainsman squint; his brown hair, streaked with gray in recent years; and his homely, amiable features told a story only of Anglo-American inheritance. He looked so much like the average American of Texas and Oklahoma that his face could have served as an illustration in a survey of national types.

After Oklahoma became a state one of its counties was named Rogers after Clem, the father.

After Oolagah, Indian Territory, became Claremont, Okla.—many years after—its six story hotel was named the Will Rogers, because that town was the humorist's birthplace.

More Fame than Man on the Cigar Box.

When he helped to dedicate this structure Will Rogers made the boast that it contained more bathrooms than Buckingham palace. He also added:

"When I was a kid I used to envy Gen. Grant and Jesse James because they had cigars named after them. But, shucks, I got it on 'em now."

With a grin on his face, a wad of gum inside his jaw, and a cowpuncher's rope in his hand, Will Rogers started on the trail that was to reach the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. He didn't know where he was going, of course; his memoirs include no tales of high ambitions surging in his breast. He undoubtedly thought that he was going to end up like the other fellows in his county, raising cows and alfalfa in Oklahoma.

He could hold his own with the cleverest of them. And he was acquainted with all of the bright minds of the land. Here he is with Irvin Cobb, the story writer.

He spun his rope in circles over his head and around his body so often that he became better than the other rope twirlers behind the corral—a little better, not much, because the rope tricks came easy to these cow country lads. People began to tell him that he was good enough to be in a show; and the boy Rogers, who liked to hear the folks laugh at his jokes (which were not called wisecracks then) thought that might be an easy way of making some money.

Skilled as a Rider and a Rope Whirler.

In that period the wild west show was a flourishing institution—a branch of the circus business. Among the impresarios who followed the tradition of Buffalo Bill with profit was a certain Zack Mulhall, who recruited his rough riders in the southwest. Young Will Rogers sought out this rodeo-master and applied for a job in his troupe. He could ride like any western ranch hand and was an expert at rope tricks. He failed to tell Mulhall that he was also a humorist, but that wasn't necessary. The Mulhall performers were hired to be seen and not heard.

So Will Rogers left his native haunts with a horse to ride, a rope to twirl, and a guarantee of three square meals a day in the chow wagon of a wild west circus. He was sure of having a good time and seeing the world, and that is all he desired.

The Mulhall tour thrived, reaching its high point in an engagement at Madison Square Garden, New York. This was in 1905. Destiny then reached out and touched Rogers, 26 years old, on the shoulder. Appropriately enough, the goddess of fortune took the form of a wild steer.

This animal broke out of its pen while the audience was assembling, and began to cavort about in a way that menaced the innocent bystanders. Will Rogers happened to be close at hand with his rope and he threw and hog-tied the unruly critter with great calm and intrepidity.

The press agent of the show exploited the incident in the newspapers. Rogers broke into print, for the first time in his life, as a minor hero who had—maybe—saved several men, women, or children from being gored and trampled by a ferocious beast.

Perhaps that press agent, exaggerating a simple and not particularly dangerous performance of duty as a deed of heroism, was the man who made Will Rogers' fortune. His name, however, is forgotten.

One of the horde of theatrical middle-men who inhabit Broadway saw in the incident an opportunity to increase his fees. Will Rogers was in the public eye at the moment, and he could do rope tricks. Why not, then, a vaudeville engagement, or at least a tryout, for this shy and ingénuous young man from the west? The variety theaters always were seeking for new material, and this rope-twirler might be a welcome change on the acrobats who inevitably opened the bill.

So it came about. The vaudeville agent got a booking for Rogers, who blushingly signed on the dotted line. For the second time he said nothing about his innate talent for talking to people and making them laugh. The agent had no knowledge of the fact that he was helping the American spirit to give birth to a popular philosopher.

New York Roof Show Scene of His Debut.

Hammerstein's Roof Garden, New York, was the scene of Rogers' debut as an entertainer. The management of this variety theater specialized in the exploitation of celebrities of the day; almost any one who had a temporary news value, whether for prominence in a scandal or for jumping off Brooklyn bridge, would get a week's engagement there. Its audiences were blasé to such transient performers. They refused to get excited over the fellow in cowboy pants who had lassoed a runaway cow over at the Garden. His rope tricks failed to arouse their enthusiasm.

After several performances it seemed as if Will Rogers' debut before the footlights was a failure. The manager of the theater thought as much; he told the embarrassed rope artist that his act was "pretty punk"—not long enough, for one thing; not fast enough, for another.

Will Rogers chewed his gum sadly back stage and said nothing. He began to feel homesick for the folks back home.

Advised by Blackface Star to Stay on Job.

Prominent on that program was the blackface team of Moran and Mack, famous vaudeville headliners—two of the many ancestors of Amos and Andy. Charlie Mack liked the young westerner and strolled into his dressing room to give him a word of cheer. He found Rogers packing his trunk.

"I'm goin' back to Oklahoma."

"Has the manager said you were fired?"

"Not yet."

"Well, stick around, boy, until Saturday. Only three more days till pay day."

Rogers stuck around, going through his routine as usual, and feeling a little more relaxed, a little easier in his mind and happier, at the thought of going home. In imagination he felt himself back among the Oklahoma folks who talked his language and laughed at his little jokes.

On Friday night he said something to his audience for the first time during his engagement. It was just a remark about an item he had read in the morning newspaper. The crowd laughed. A little later he drawled out another observation on the news of the day. The laughter that followed was a veritable roar.

Will Rogers had started to talk in public and the manager of the theater came running back stage to tell him——

Paper-Backed Thrillers of Yesterday Now Mere Curios

Deadwood Dick and His Breed Ride No More

cat. He was forever (until his several series finally came to an end) being lynched, murdered, or slain by the officers, only to reappear and carry on his depredations.

Deadwood Dick, who, in Wheeler's own words, was "a strikingly handsome man, with a peculiarly fearless expression of countenance, a stern yet pleasant mouth, a prominent nose, piercing black eyes, and long, waving hair of jetty blackness," toted about with him or had cached at a convenient spot not only his black mask but all sorts of other disguises. He could transform himself completely in the wink of an eye. And he never was at a loss for words. A sample, in the true Wheeler style:

"I am going straight to Leadville and give myself up to the justice grabbers and let them hang me and have done with it. They will never get over their antipathy for me until they see me dangling in mid-air beneath a tree limb. After that I am not afraid of them, for they cannot hang a man but once, and that satisfies the law for all previous misdemeanors. I have but to hang, and then I can laugh at them all, for I shall be a free man—free to go where or do whatsoever I choose."

These lines reveal Dick not only as glib of tongue but as one utterly devoid of fear of the law. What was one hanging more or less to this debonair desperado of the Dakota gulches, who seems to have possessed the miraculous power of raising himself from the dead?

That Dick was a square-shooter with the women and true to his own Calamity Jane, is revealed in this excerpt:

"No, no, Nellie! I cannot do that . . ."

He kissed her tenderly, and gently put her off; then glided down the stairs, with these words ringing in his ears:

"Come back, Dick! O, do come back!"

But he could not go back—no! for his mind went back to Calamity and their peaceful valley home, where he yearned to be once more, in the anticipation of a little Deadwood Dick to brighten their after lives.

Deadwood Dick adventured through scores, through hundreds of paper-backed novels. He appeared in the Deadwood Dick series and in several others throughout his long career. He was a dime hero, and later a five-cent hero, and he stuck to it until every possible situation had been exhausted and every possible deed accomplished. Diamond Dick, a similar figure of fiction who appeared on the scene later as the hero of the Nugget Library, never attracted the widespread favor that was accorded Deadwood Dick. Diamond Dick was written by various authors, all, it is said, writing under the name of W. B. Lawson.

The dime novel, from which the nickel novel was evolved, was originated by Erastus F. Beadle of Otsego, N. Y. In June, 1860, Beadle published in New York City a complete novel to sell for ten cents. It was "Malaeska, or The Indian Wife of the White Hunter," written by Ann S. W. Stevens. It was an insignificant little pamphlet of 128 pages of rag paper. Three hundred thousand copies of it are said to have been sold the first year, and it was translated into five languages. Another dime novel, also published in 1860, was Edward S. Ellis' "Seth Jones, or The Captives of the Frontier." Seven hundred and fifty thousand copies of "Seth" were sold the first year, and it was translated into seven languages. The Civil war was raging then, and whole trainloads of dime novels were shipped to the soldiers at the front, who eagerly devoured their contents by the light of flickering campfires.

By 1866 dime novels were being read by the millions. Beadle, who had retired from his brothers' company of Irwin P. Beadle & Bros. that year, organized the publishing house of Beadle & Adams, an institution that carried on for thirty years. It was to the house of Beadle & Adams that William Gilbert Patten of Corinna, Me., submitted his first two stories—stories that brought the young author the handsome sum of three dollars each.

Beadle & Adams launched young Patten on a literary career. He wrote for that house under the pseudonym of William West Wilder, or "Wyoming Will." He admitted in his memoirs, published four years ago, that he had once passed through a corner of Wyoming prior to his adoption of that pen name. Patten, under the name of Burt L. Standish, however, was better known as the author of the Merriwell stories. In 1895, when Street & Smith, a New York publishing house founded in 1855, were looking about for a writer to do a series of novels about a young college hero—wild west had begun to fade a bit at that time—they pounced upon Patten for the assignment. He did not know anything about college, especially about Yale, the previously selected alma mater of Frank Merriwell. So he visited Yale on occasions to acquire his background.

The first Merriwell novel, "Frank Merriwell, or First Days at Fardale," appeared April 18, 1896. It was 20,000 words long, and Patten got $50 for it. From then on for a while he turned out a novel a week for $50 a novel. Later his salary rose to $100 a week, and finally to $150. Merriwell was the leading character of the Tip Top Library, the circulation of which before long was hitting 75,000 copies a week.

Frank Merriwell, ideal of thousands of boys of the nation, attended Fardale academy, where he starred in virtually all forms of athletics and took part in more adventures than ordinarily befall a dozen boys. He went to Yale, where he continued to shine in baseball, football, and other sports, and became the principal figure in adventures even more amazing than those at Fardale. Finally Burt L. Standish (William Gilbert Patten) took his hero out of Yale and put him to work on a railroad. This was not so exciting, so back again to New Haven went Frank. He was graduated at last and finished off as a hero of adventures.

Frank Merriwell had been an only son, so when it was decided by author and publishers to introduce a younger brother, Dick, to carry on the series, it was found necessary to invent a secret marriage in the past on the part of Frank's father in order to account for the appearance of the mysterious Brother Dick. The younger brother never attained the heights achieved by Frank, never was quite so popular with the young readers, and never "clicked" like the first of the family. The stories about Dick were written for a few years by the original author. Later Patten dropped the series. Several others from time to time attempted to carry it on, but had little success.

Action was the keynote of the Merriwell novels, just as it was of the Deadwood Dick and Diamond Dick series, but the language, while just as sharp and stinging, was not as a rule so full of coarseness as that of the regular western type stories. The Merriwells had villains to contend with, naturally. There was Bart Hodge, the tough guy who finally reformed, and Porfias del Norte, the wicked hombre encountered by Frank in the west.

Of all the heroes of nickel and dime novels perhaps none had a greater following at the peak of his popularity than Buffalo Bill. He was a character in real life, as everybody knows—William F. Cody, scout, Indian fighter, buffalo hunter, and showman. It was the novel as much, perhaps, as the wild west show that built up the world-wide fame of Buffalo Bill. His original biographer was Col. E. Z. C. Judson, who wrote under the name of Ned Buntline.

When Judson and Cody broke up their partnership in the novel business, following a disagreement, the stories were continued by the previously mentioned Colonel Ingraham, the most picturesque figure of the paper-backed novel industry.

Ingraham's specialty, as one might guess, was the wild west novel. A former Confederate soldier, a veteran of the Austro-Prussian war, an adventurer in Mexico, Africa, and our own west, and a lover of thrills, Colonel Ingraham had the magic touch for creating the atmosphere of the woolly west and knew the language of the western bad men and sherifs. To him was credited the sample introductory line, the pattern of the standard dime novel introduction:

Crack! Crack! Crack! Three more redskins bit the dust.

Ingraham wrote many novels besides those featuring Buffalo Bill. He wrote not only under his own name but under names such as Dr. Noel Dunbar, Col. Leon Lafitte, and Maj. Dangerfield Burr. Ingraham wrote Buffalo Bill stories for Beadle & Adams until they went out of business, then shifted to Street & Smith, catering to a gradually diminishing clientele until 1904, when he was taken by death.

Though Cody had had adventures a-plenty in his real life on the western plains, they were tame in comparison with those created for him in the imaginations of Judson and Ingraham. Buffalo Bill, it has been said, scarcely could recognize himself in most of the thrillers turned out by that pair of authors.

Deadwood Dick, Diamond Dick, the Merriwells, and Buffalo Bill by no means had a monopoly on the young readers of the eighties, nineties, and early nineteen hundreds. There were dozens and scores of other favorites, many appearing first in dime novels and later continuing their astounding exploits in the nickel variety when that last named type of novel came upon the scene to meet a demand for cheaper but equally good literature.

There was, among others, Denver Doll, the girl detective, a creation of Wheeler, the author of the many Deadwood Dick stories. And Nick Carter, the Sherlock Holmes of the paper-backs, who was originated by John R. Coryell and whose exploits were continued through series after series by the swiftly moving pen of one Frederick Dey, who wrote under the name of Frederick Dewey. And Jack Harkaway. And Old King Brady and Young King Brady. And Claude Duval. And Dare-Devil Dan. And Frank Reade Jr. of the marvelous inventions. And many others, not to omit the Missouri outlaws, Jesse and Frank James, who were made the principals of many a tale by this or that writer.

As to the authors of these stirring yarns, each of whom had his own special style and his own command of short, snappy words, there was a wide assortment. They wrote both under their own names and under pseudonyms. Many were men who had lived lives of adventure before turning to novel writing, an occupation that provided meager returns for the time and effort expended. There was, for instance, Harlan P. Halsey, who wrote exciting detective tales under the name of Old Sleuth.

Patten in his memoirs recalled the names of many of the writers of those old dime and nickel novels. There was Joseph E. Badger, a prolific writer of dime fiction of the western brand; Oll Coomes, who wrote Indian tales well spiced with quaint humor; Arthur C. Grissom, who wrote under the name of Albert Cecil Gaines; T. C. Harbaugh, whose pseudonym was Capt. Howard Holmes; and the two Beadle & Adams foreign-born authors, Capt. Frederick Whittaker and Capt. Mayne Reid. Back in 1866 Reid received the sensational sum of $700 for his novel "The White Squaw." It contained 55,000 words.

"If anyone wonders," wrote Patten in his memoirs, "why so many of Beadle's authors resorted to pseudonyms for some of their yarns while permitting their real names to appear on others, let him consider the great number of novels they were knocking out. It wouldn't do for the name of any writer to appear too often on the list, as that would indicate hasty, and therefore careless, work."

Hasty and careless, indeed! Is there any appearance of haste or carelessness in a line such as the one at the beginning of this article?

"If you make an outcry you die!"

CHAPTER I.

BLUE-EYED BILLY.

"PARDS, I are the great American horse-catcher, mustang-rider and Bronco-Breaker o' ther Texas wilds, and I wears ther champ'yon badge on my somb'ro, as yer all kin see.

"I has heur a lot o' angil ponies fer ter sell, an' ther price are 'way down, an' they goes cheap, so who says buy?"

The speaker was an out-and-out Texan herder of mustangs, and he rode into an encampment one Sunday afternoon, where a wagon-train westward bound, had halted for a rest of a day, not so much to keep the Sabbath holy, as to make it a time for repairs to the vehicles and harness, and to give the tired animals a chance to recuperate.

There were in the train half a dozen wagons, drawn by four mules each, a couple of ambulances, some twenty human beings, and two-score head of cattle.

The herder had ridden up to the camp mounted upon a snow-white stallion of wondrous beauty of body and limb, and with a mane that fell to his knees almost, and a tail that dragged along over the prairie grass.

The animal had on his back a Mexican saddle of great value, for it was covered with Mexican pesos, had housings of panther and wild-cat skins, stirrups that were inlaid with silver, and the broad horn was rimmed with solid gold.

The bridle was of silver links, and the huge Mexican bit was of the same precious metal, and the whole paraphernalia was worthy of a king.

The rider was a man of herculean build, with great broad shoulders, and a face that was tanned to the hue of leather, and was reckless and cruel.

He was dressed in buckskin, even to moccasins, and wore a sombrero that was encircled by a gold cord, made to resemble a lasso, and the brim was bent up in front, and held there by a massive gold pin, a miniature mustang, lassoed out by a small chain of gold at the end of which was a stake-pin, stuck in the hat, giving the idea that the animal was lariated out upon the prairie.

The eyes of the gold mustang were large diamonds, and the red nostrils were rubies, making the trinket one of great value and beauty.

Behind this strange horseman, with his elegant trappings, came his herd of ponies, some of them saddled and bridled for use, and all of them thoroughly trained.

As he drew up at the camp, his herd halted near, and the guide of the train called out:

"Come, pards, here's ther Bronco-Breaker, an' yer kin git a animile ter suit yer, ef yer hain't already suited."

The train people quickly gathered around, and were greeted by Rio Grande Rob, the Bronco-Breaker, with the words that open this story.

"Come, youngster, you look like a boy as has grit, an' you oughter freeze ter a mustang as has ther same mater'al ter carry yer, an' thet roan thar with the Texas saddle are ther animile," continued the Bronco Breaker, addressing a youth who had come forward with the others, and by whose side stood a dark-faced, handsome woman, with the air of a queen.

The youth was not more than fifteen, small, wiry in his build, and his movements were quick and nervous.

He was dressed in buckskin leggings and hunting-shirt, the former being stuck in top-boots, in the leg of which, on the outer side, were holsters, one containing a knife, the other a revolver.

He wore spurs that had the look of being gold, and in his belt were a pair of revolvers and a bowie, with an ivory handle, that had been exquisitely carved to represent an Indian chief in all his feather and buckskin garb.

The boy's face was almost girlish, except for its look of recklessness and resolution, for his complexion was clear, though dark, his teeth white and even, and his eyes large, sky-blue, fringed with the longest lashes, and in strange contrast with his hair, which was as black as ink, and hung in curls far down his back.

The woman by his side was evidently his mother, and in spite of being in homespun, and with a camp of emigrants, there was about her an air of refinement and stately dignity that was very imposing.

Like her son, she wore a broad-brimmed sombrero, and in a belt around her waist was a gold-mounted revolver.

Looking Backward at Chicago of the Elegant Eighties

Era of Hand-Gilded Rolling Pins Is Recalled

Put away the little coal hod that our darling wants to paint,
For she fain would decorate it with devices queer and quaint;
Hide the dustpan and the washtub, and likewise the garden hose,
Or Matilda will adorn them with the lily and the rose.

When our Bridget, in the morning, gets the wooden chopping bowl
To concoct the breakfast corned beef hash, it vexes of her soul
To find a wreath of roses where she most would cut and slash,
So she scrapes it off, for fear the paint might penetrate the hash.

On the household rolling-pin is tied a pretty yellow bow,
And its lilies of the valley oft commingle with the dough,
While the new potato masher and the kitchen pans and pots
Are magnificent with butterflies and sweet forget-me-nots.

All our articles of furniture, the ancient and the new,
Are resplendent quite with drapery and bows of brightest hue;
In the house we look about with mingled sorrow and amaze,
For Matilda is afflicted with the decorative craze.

—From a Woman's Magazine of the Eighties.

By HERMA CLARK

WHEN you bought or built a new house in the elegant eighties you didn't call in an interior decorator to help you furnish it. You watched what your friends were doing; you shopped in the best furniture stores, and you racked your brain to devise something new for the house. For the interior decorator, as we understand the term today, was not in existence, unless we except an artistic member of the staf of one of Chicago's large furniture stores, who did designing in a small way. But few indeed were those who could afford to employ such an adviser.

Oscar Wilde, in England, was telling people how they ought to decorate their homes, but his affectations did not incline the new world to accept his pronouncements. Wilde represented the esthetic movement satirized by Gilbert and Sullivan in the comic opera "Patience" and was always identified with the hero,

A greenery-yallery,
Grosvenor gallery,
Foot-in-the-grave young man.

Sometimes the housewife, furnishing her new home, was inventive enough to produce a new form of art for it. For instance, someone gilded a rolling-pin, screwed hooks into it, tied a bow on each handle, and hung it up on the wall as a repository for shoe buttoners.

No one knows who started the idea, but it spread over the country until few homes were without a sample of this new art. Manufacturers of woodenware worked day and night turning out miniature kitchen utensils to be decorated by the home artist. As Christmas gifts they were grand, exemplifying the truth of the scriptural text, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Potato mashers, painted or gilded, and ornamented with a bright bow of satin ribbon (a potato masher became an object of art when a satin ribbon was tied to it) were used for bedroom ornaments. They were more or less useful, for you could hang your rings on the attached hooks when you went to bed. A motto often painted on the transformed potato masher was "Rings and Things."

Sometimes the decorative craze spent itself on a wooden chopping bowl whose concave side was painted with a view of Niagara falls. This was set in the yawning mouth of the fireplace in summer and was a nice conversation starter. The caller would begin, "Well, I see you've got someone in your house who does hand painting." And mother would admit that Pansy Belle was trying her hand at art, and the family thought it looked real nice.

Sometimes chopping bowls were lined with red velvet on which a design had been embroidered, such as an ear of corn—corn that stood up, so you could feel the kernels. A triumph of art, that was.

A child's school slate was often used as an object to be beautified. The red felt edging was gilded, and on the slate itself might be painted a row of tipsy sparrows, or two owls with a crescent moon behind them.

The butter ladle of our dairying ancestors was painted, tied with a bow, and hung on the wall. Nor did the frying pan escape. It was used to contain a scene of winter delights. The small coal shovel lent itself nicely to such decoration. Sister depicted on this an old mill, the roof of which, powdered with mica, gave a realistic touch of ice and snow.

"Banners," to be hung on the wall, formed another angle of the craze. On a background of red plush were painted or embroidered water lilies, sunflowers, or goldenrod. Oscar Wilde was responsible for the sunflower craze.

Did you need an umbrella stand in the elegant eighties? You got a round drain tile and painted it a light tan, for background, on which you superimposed a design of goldenrod or daisies. But maybe you didn't need an umbrella stand. All right! Use the hand-painted tile for holding a large bunch of cat-tails, placing it in a corner of the parlor. Artistic? Well, rather! Wish Oscar Wilde could see how Pansy Belle made home beautiful with simple articles like that.

Fluff of Milkweed Used for Decoration

On every picture in the parlor a "drape" must be hung. A picture frame without such an accessory looked quite naked. From the pod of milkweed you got a fluffy substance which you put into a net bag, tied with ribbon, and hung over the corner of the frame of a picture, a chair, sofa, or sideboard. For don't forget, a cardinal principle of interior decoration was that every article of furniture must wear a sash or bow of some kind.

The china shade of your kerosene lamp was attired in a silk petticoat. Your mantel shelf was covered with a lambrequin made of macramé cord. Through its meshes a bright red ribbon was run, and it looked quite gay, the long fringe hanging a foot or more below the shelf. Of course, if you preferred you could drape the shelf with a piece of felt which you had embroidered or painted with a design of goldenrod or daisies.

One author goes on to state that he has recently fitted up two dining rooms in which this style of decoration (the motto) has been worked into stained glass. Among other proverbs, the architect selected "Hunger is the best sauce," "Welcome is the best cheer," and "Eat at pleasure, drink by measure." The latter saying hints that sometimes a guest took a wee sip too much.

While it is not in accordance with present-day taste to offer these sayings in stained glass or the walls of homes, to be read by guests, legendary decoration has always appealed to me strongly. The home of Judge Mark Skinner, which stood at the southwest corner of Rush and Ontario streets, had an interesting motto above the fireplace in the great hall. It was, if memory serves, "East, west; hame's best." And a west side mansion, that of Thomas Chalmers, father of William J. Chalmers of Chicago, pictured in stained glass in a window on its staircase a Walter Scott incident, with the legend:

Drink, weary pilgrim, drink and pray
For the kind soul of Sibyl Gray,
Who gave this cross and well.

This window was later given to the Presbyterian hospital, where it now may be seen in the chapel.

The celebrated artist Whistler decorated a magnificent dining room for a London man named Leyland in the year 1878. Known as the "peacock room," or the "harmony in blue and gold," the only design employed was that of the peacock, either the bird himself, or his plumage, or his eye. The room, thirty by twenty feet, had a height of fifteen feet. From eight sections of the ceiling as many lamps depended, and each lamp was treated as a center, from which spread a pattern invented from the peacock's eye. It is said to have been beautiful. Few but a Whistler could undertake such a project and come off successfully, but critics of the eighties praised it.

Most of the furniture bought at this time was vaguely called "Eastlake," though Sir Charles Eastlake, director of the National gallery in London, wasn't really responsible for the artistic crimes committed in his name. He lived in the time of the Gothic revival in Europe and wrote enthusiastically of it, wherefore his name was given to any furniture or architecture that was much carved or had a pointed design.

The bracket scroll got busy at this time, making almost everything ornamental for the home in wood. Little brackets for the corner of the room—some of them rather good—were made by boys and men.

Ornate Brass Beds Make Their Appearance

The present-day interior decorator wisely tries to create an environment in which the occupant is at home, and again in this day many women are learning the art of decoration, out of fashion for a time. Quilts, bedspreads, rugs are all being made by loving hands, so that much of the spirit of joy and pride in the making of a home has come back.

The furniture of the eighties was most often golden oak, which supplanted the mahogany and rosewood and walnut of the antebellum period. Housewives sent to the attic the lovely old pieces grandma had gone to housekeeping with, and the much-carved oak or bird's-eye maple or birch replaced this. Because it was new, it delighted the owner, even though its shape was not so pleasing. Brass beds began to appear on the scene. Housekeepers were told that these were sanitary, and they believed that not to own a brass bed was to be behind the times. How ornate some of those brazen beds were!

The folding bed reared its head in this decade. It was not so well balanced as the disappearing bed of today, and sometimes swallowed up its occupants in a disconcerting manner.

The lighting arrangements of the eighties were not beautiful according to our modern ideas. Electricity had not yet made its way into the home, for only the very rich could afford the necessary dynamo in the basement, though public buildings were now equipped with the new form of lighting invented by that young Mr. Edison.

Gas chandeliers hung in the center of almost every room, most of them ungraceful in design, of lightweight brass, with two or possibly four branches, at the end of which were perched glass globes. Kerosene lamps were still used for reading, as it was impossible to conduct gas to a table lamp with entirely satisfactory results. Sometimes rubber tubing was used for this purpose, but it often sprang a leak and gave trouble.

Photographs Reveal Homes of the Eighties

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Henry Frederick Fuller of Chicago we are able to show some rare photographs taken by her husband, the late Henry F. Fuller, revealing the decoration and furniture of some Chicago homes of the eighties. We do not see in these photographs any of the kitchen utensils decorated for ornaments, but we find furniture and pictures very much draped, after the most approved fashion of the time.

The Fuller family lived at 470 North State street (old number), the site now occupied by an apartment building numbered 1320 North State parkway. Henry Weld Fuller, the father, had founded a wholesale drug firm in the fifties and had prospered with the young city. He was a man of distinction in appearance, character, and intellect. His brother was Melville W. Fuller, chief justice of the United States Supreme court. His wife was literary in her tastes, and the musical and literary people of their time often gathered at this North State street home for entertainments. This house, photographed by Henry Frederick Fuller, is shown in an illustration.

The son, Henry Frederick Fuller, was a man of phenomenal versatility. He was a graduate of the old University of Chicago; attended Western Theological seminary in preparation for ordination as a priest of the Episcopal church, a purpose he relinquished; studied law at Hamilton college, winning prizes for his proficiency; was a pupil of Clarence Eddy, great Chicago organist, and of Sir John Stainer of England; was an excellent painter in water color and oil, which he studied for three years. Some of his musical compositions were published before he was eighteen and include many hymns and religious pieces for violin and organ.

He was a genealogist of repute, had taken out patents for several inventions, and was a member of several scientific societies in America and England. Added to all these interests was a delight in photography, to which he devoted much time.

Photographs by the young photographer that appear here bore no legends, but some of them have been identified. One shows the Fuller tandem, with groom and coachman, ready for a spin down the avenue. Perhaps it was about to depart for the Washington Park race track on a Derby day. The sight of the horses and driver will recall to older readers memories of the "hippic age," as Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, formerly of Chicago, calls the era of the horse. Mr. Chatfield-Taylor married the beautiful Rose Farwell, daughter of Senator Charles B. Farwell of Lake Forest, and they became the parents of Wayne Chatfield-Taylor of Lake Forest and of Mrs. Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor Whitman of Boston. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, now living in Montecito, Cal., was a lover of horses as well as a writer, and some years ago, in a chapter he contributed to Miss Carolyn Kirkland's "Chicago Yesterdays," he wrote sadly of the changes brought by the coming of the automobile.

"The chugging motor car," he said, "which has supplanted the horse-drawn vehicle, bears the same relation to a well appointed drag that an ocean tramp steamer does to a clipper ship with a 'bone in her teeth.'"

They Drove Horses to the Horse Races

Arthur Caton (first husband of the present Mrs. Marshall Field Sr. of Washington) drove a Brewster drag and a team of bays when he attended the races; R. Hall McCormick, father of the present Robert Hall McCormick, drove a London-built drag; while Mr. Chatfield-Taylor, himself one of Chicago's fashionable young men, sported a Kimball drag with yellow wheels. It was not the easiest task in the world to "tool" this vehicle properly; to flick the leader with the whip and then "fold" it neatly. If the eyes of the sweetest girl in the world were upon you, as she rode by your side, it was doubly difficult.

Among the interior views shown is a bedroom partially identified as a room in the home of the Chatfield-Taylors in Lake Forest. A parlor in the home of Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor's father, Senator Farwell, shows the approved lambrequin on the mantel, which is crowded with small photographs, the fashion in the eighties. In the foreground on the floor is a pillow to be stumbled over in the dark. Pillows were ubiquitous in the homes of yesterday.

Another Lake Forest interior shows the master of the house, John V. Farwell, with his two grandsons, the young Tuttles. Mr. Farwell, father of the present John V. Farwell of Chicago, was a stanch churchman, interested in the Young Men's Christian association and other religious and benevolent organizations. He is seen appropriately reading "The Record of Christian Work." Again the fashion of draping the mantelpiece is to be noted, with photographs in profusion standing about.

No page of pictures of life in the eighties would be complete without a representation of bicycle riders, and we are able to show two young Chicagoans standing by their high wheels with all the pride of the Arab with his blooded horse. One of them is Burley B. Ayers, an ardent member of the League of American Wheelmen; the other, Henry Frederick Fuller, who made some of the photographs seen on this page, for the bicycle was a hobby of the versatile Chicagoan.

What's New in World of Airplanes and Air Transportation

Commercial Flying an Exacting Profession

By WAYNE THOMIS

COMMERCIAL flying today is a profession less than ten years old, and the airmen who pilot the planes over the country's 29,000 miles of federal airways are all members of the first generation of professional transport flyers.

Have you wondered about these men, about their training, their physical condition, what part age plays in their flying? Have you speculated about their personal histories, about what their futures may be? Some of these questions are answered in this story about a few of the pilots, chosen as typical of all.

The senior transport flyer of the country, stocky, tanned, a lover of big, black cigars, is E. Hamilton Lee of United Airlines. His comrades say he has flown more than any man in the world. His log books record 15,000 hours in the air, but Lee says he flew for years before he began keeping his log.

Lee was born near Minneapolis in 1892. While in his teens he saw a barnstorming circus flying the Wright pushers of the 1910 vintage. Bitten by a desire to fly, Lee in 1913 took his first lesson from a Minneapolis man who owned a Curtiss pusher.

The most vivid memory of that flight, Lee confesses, is the fact that he paid for it at the rate of $75 an hour. He says he took two hours' instruction and then ran out of funds.

Coming to Chicago the following year, he joined a group of would-be flyers at the old Checkerboard field in Maywood. Most of these novices were teaching themselves to fly, and "Ham," as he was soon called, joined them. The process was simple. Having rented or purchased an airplane, the pupil began his training by taxiing along the ground. Soon he was making straightforward flights ten feet off the ground. Then he learned to make longer flights, and finally turns were learned by the trial and error method.

When the United States entered the war "Ham" Lee became a civilian instructor in the army air corps. After the armistice he joined the postoffice staf in pioneering the air mail routes, and since then continuously has flown the transcontinental airway between New York and San Francisco.

Edwin C. Musick, captain of Pan American Airways Sikorsky S-42 which has been making pioneering flights over the trans-Pacific airway, is probably the most experienced ocean flyer in the world. He has been flying boat type airplanes since 1925, most of the time over Florida waters or the Caribbean sea. With more than 10,000 hours' flying to his credit, he now is the chief pilot for the Pan American system.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1894, Musick was 19 when he learned to fly in a commercial aviation school in Los Angeles. Three years later he joined the army air corps as civilian instructor. Part of his service was at Miami, Fla., toward the end of the war, and after the armistice he continued flying there.

When Pan American Airways was formed in 1927, Musick was one of the first pilots hired, and he piloted the first American trimotor airplane—a Fokker—from Key West to Havana, a 90-mile hop that was the first route of the now gigantic 32,500-mile network.

Eyer L. Sloniger, one of American Airlines' veteran pilots, was another of the war-trained flyers. Leaving the University of Nebraska, where he was studying, at the entrance of this country into the war, he trained with the army air corps in Texas and spent eight months in active service in France.

Returning to college after the war, he barnstormed to pay his tuition. In 1921 he went to Mexico and was one of the first exhibition pilots to fly south of the border. In 1925 Sloniger went to China, where he mapped an air route through the central part of the country, having many difficulties with the dust storms of the Gobi desert.

Others of the air veterans are D. W. ("Tommy") Tomlinson, Transcontinental Western Air, navy trained, but with ten years' experience in flying passengers (he set five world records with a Douglas DC-1 liner in New York recently); Charles Peeples, army trained, who now has 12,500 hours on United Airlines' logs; and W. D. ("Bill") Williams, now chief pilot of United midwestern division, who was an army pilot in the war.

"These men are among the best flyers of aviation history," says Walt Addems, United's chief pilot for the eastern division and himself one of the army-trained airmen flying the mails and passengers since 1922. "More than merely knowing how to handle their ships, they know weather, engines, the country over which they fly, and radio, and they use all their knowledge in making the decisions which arise on every trip."

Now, he continues, they are passing their knowledge along to the second generation—the mates and co-pilots who have been flying with the lines only a few months.

"These old-timers can pass along their experience to an intelligent young pilot very quickly. Things it took us—the older men—years to learn are taught to the newcomers in weeks. A co-pilot who flies with men like "Ham" Lee or Jack Knight, who flew the first night air mail in 1921 and has been flying ever since, has an opportunity to learn by observation what we had to pick up alone and through our own deductions.

"We like our new pilots to be college-trained men. We find their minds are generally better able to grasp the problems they meet in transport flying. Then we want steadiness, no reckless tendencies.

"What we are doing, of course, is preparing for the future. The splendid material we now have is getting older. We don't just know what the age limit for flyers will be—the oldest pilot we now have is in the upper forties—but we must be prepared. So we try to get intelligent, trained men to mold in our own way."

A typical young man is Harry R. Canaday, junior flight officer of Pan American Airways' trans-Pacific Clipper. He is 27 years old, was born in Des Moines, Ia., and is a graduate both of the naval academy at Annapolis and of four years of navy flying, two of which were with a squadron stationed on the airplane carrier Saratoga.

Canaday has 635 hours on his log, is a licensed airplane and engine mechanic and a licensed radio operator, as well as holder of a commercial pilot's license.

Two other young pilots typical of the men who are training now for the future of commercial air transportation are Gerald H. Woolweaver and Emerson A. Austen of American Airlines.

Woolweaver is 28 years old, a native of Dundas, O., where he got his flight training in commercial schools. He joined the air line three years ago as a co-pilot and now has 1,200 hours on his solo log. Today he is flying between Chicago and New York.

Austen learned to fly in the U. S. naval reserve station at Great Lakes and at Hampton Roads, Va. He is 27 years old, has 1,520 hours after four years of commercial flying. He is a graduate of a civil engineering course at Washington university, St. Louis, Mo.

The air lines consider their pilots their biggest assets, pointing out that each flyer when he takes out a group of passengers is responsible for the safety of every person aboard, for the air liner, which is valued at from $60,000 to $100,000, and also for the good will of the nation toward air transportation. It is on this theory that the lines make every effort to maintain their men in the best spirits and in perfect health, and constantly supplement their training.

All first pilots must hold, in addition to their commercial licenses, scheduled air transport ratings. The department of commerce regulations for this rating demand that the pilot have 1,200 hours of solo time within the eight years prior to application for the rating, with at least 500 hours of that in cross-country flying. The department also demands that 75 hours of the 1,200 be night flying, at least half of which is cross-country.

The pilot must be able to pass tests in instrument flying by taking an inspector into the air and from under a hood bring his airplane to a normal flying position from moderate banks of 180 and 360 degree turns either right or left and from minimum glides and maximum climbs. He must approach stalled attitudes of flight and must recover from these, as well as skids, slips, spirals, and banks in excess of 45 degrees. In order to retain this license, which must be renewed each six months, the pilot must have at least 25 hours of transport flying and 2 hours of instrument flying within the period.

The air lines, however, set much stricter regulation for their pilots. Chief Pilot Addems explained that United Airlines flyers must have two hours of instrument flying a month, and constantly pass inspection tests during which they fly for the chief pilot of their division. Other lines have similar rules.

"You will note that in none of these tests are transport pilots required to do aerobatics," Addems said.

"We do not believe any conceivable emergency could arise in which such knowledge would be useful. Our pilots fly often enough to have perfect control of their ships for emergency landings if these become necessary. We prohibit stunts because of the effect such maneuvers would have on passengers. We want no stunt flying, and if something goes wrong in the air we want our pilots to land rather than go on.

"One thing we don't have to do, and that is to keep our pilots alert. All of them have been flying long enough before they get into the company to know that is the first requirement. A good pilot is instinctively alert, and our men have nothing to do but to fly and watch weather and their machines."

The physical and mental condition of the pilots is under the care of company physicians, who give each flyer tests at least once a month, although the department of commerce demands such tests only four times a year.

These physicians not only are concerned with the physical condition of the men but also serve as psychiatrists. They inquire into the domestic affairs of the men and their financial conditions and determine if they have any worries which may detract from the fierce concentration which sustained flying demands.

At first this was resented by the pilots, but lately the men have realized it is a protection for them as well as the lines. Part of this change in attitude is due, perhaps, to the tact of the physicians. Those in charge of such examinations for several of the air lines flying between Chicago and New York are Drs. Herbert Fenwick and Herbert Wright. Both are flight surgeons of National Guard squadrons and both are experienced pilots themselves. Dr. Wright is stationed at Cleveland and Dr. Fenwick in Chicago.

One of the physical tests given pilots is called a Snyder—that being the name of the doctor who worked it out shortly after the war. The results give a numerical value to the pilot's condition, perfect being 18 and the minimum to continue flying 9.

The tests are based upon blood pressure and pulse count. These are taken after a ten-minute period of perfect relaxation and then again imediately after a measured amount of exercise. Finally the doctor determines the length of time for the heart to return to normal beat after the exercise. These various factors are compared with the chart shown in one of the accompanying illustrations, and the result is determined.

Vision, of course, is most important. Muscular accommodation of eyes, proper depth perception, and proper sight are tested at each examination. The doctors say that age generally does not detract from a pilot's eyes, since the general effect of age is to make humans far-sighted. So long as vision is not distorted, far-sightedness is not detrimental.

Dr. Wright says he believes that some of the men flying the lines today will be just as capable when they are 50 years old as at present. He says that just about that age a pilot is reaching the period when his judgment is perfect and his past experience makes him invaluable.

The doctor believes that these men, like the grizzled captains of ocean liners, probably will command some of the giant transport planes of the future, but will not be required actually to fly the ships. Dr. Wright says that their experience with weather, with airplanes, and with commercial flying in all its phases will fit them to command younger pilots who will be charged with the responsibility of landing and taking the big planes off the ground.

Science Bares Mineral Treasures of Earth

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

IT HAS always been a rather annoying fact that so many of the good things that men desire, such as gold, well water, and petroleum, are hidden far below the surface of the earth. It is true that certain deposits of valuable minerals are located close enough to the surface to make their presence known. However, most of such easily accessible deposits are nearing exhaustion, particularly in the cases of gold and oil, so it is now necessary to look deeper for further supplies.

It is a rather hopeless thing to try to explore the earth's depths by digging a lot of holes at random. The odds are very much against ever running into anything worth bringing to the surface. So men have always been dreaming of having some sort of indicator that will point out the correct places to start digging.

For thousands of years the divining rod has been used for this purpose. In its present-day form this instrument, known also as the witching stick or dowser, consists of a forked stick shaped something like a wishbone. It has not been very successful in recent years in locating minerals, but it is still fairly extensively used, particularly in certain rural districts, to indicate the best place to start digging a well. The reason for its continued success in this limited field is not definitly known. It may be that it is especially sensitive toward water, or it may be that water can usually be found no matter where a well is dug.

Divining rod technique is a highly specialized form of human endeavor, and comparatively few persons possess the gift. The operator, usually in exchange for a small fee, grips the ends of the forked stick and holds it with the juncture pointed away from him. He then walks over the surrounding countryside, and whenever he passes over a place where a well should be dug the rod points itself downward.

Needless to say, the divining rod has been the subject of considerable scientific investigation, but no very good reason for its action has been brought forth. The problem is complicated by the fact that the operators themselves are unable to tell what makes it point down. It seems that the divining rod profession is one that cannot be learned, but requires a special talent.

The only reason that the scientists can see for the phenomenon is that the operator himself must make the stick point down. But they cannot say definitly whether this in turn is due to some subconscious psychic impulse or whether it is the result of ordinary human rascality. No doubt it depends upon the ethical standards of the particular divining rod man in question.

The earth's mineral wealth is not scattered at random through the crust, but usually occurs in certain definite layers. Unfortunately, however, these strata happen to be badly twisted and wrinkled, so that it is not obvious at what depth minerals will be found at a particular location, or even whether they will occur there at all.

Within recent years there have been developed a number of geophysical methods for exploring the earth's crust. At present they are by no means complete in themselves, but are quite valuable as refinements for the geologic methods. They are based upon the fact that while light cannot penetrate the ground and enable us to see what is below us, the rocks are easily penetrated by other radiations, such as sound and electrical and magnetic forces.

These methods are especially valuable in prospecting for oil or sulphur, because of the peculiar manner in which these two materials occur. Oil, being a liquid, occurs in paying quantities only where it is bottled up, geologically speaking. That is, it is nearly always found in layers of porous sandstone, along with salt water, lying between layers of nonporous limestone which keep it from leaking away. Since these layers are slanting, and since oil is lighter than water, the oil collects in pools in the uppermost part of the sandstone layer, which may be an anticline (an inverted V-shaped fold) or a fault (see Figure 1).

The great sulphur deposits of Louisiana and Texas are found in the cap rock covering salt domes. The latter are cylindrical subterranean mountains of salt, which occur in totally unpredictable places. It follows, then, that the best place to look for oil is in a buried limestone ridge, while the best place for sulphur is a salt dome.

Both of these may be located by means of their effect on gravitation. The earth's gravitational force is the total effect of every cubic inch of the earth acting upon a body. The effect of a single cubic inch is greater the denser it is and the closer it is to the body. Accordingly, if there happens to be a large mass of some unusually heavy or unusually light material a short distance below the earth's surface, we should expect to find the gravitational force correspondingly greater or less at that point.

Limestone is heavier and salt lighter than the shales that compose the bulk of the earth's crust. A pronounced limestone anticline or a salt dome are large enough to affect gravity by a few ten-thousandths of a per cent. While such a variation is quite small, it can be accurately measured by means of a precise pendulum designed for that purpose. The greater the variation the closer the anticline is to the surface. Thus if we make a number of gravity measurements along a straight line on the surface, and make a graph of the variations from normal against the positions of the measurements (Figure 2), we obtain a curve that not only locates the anticline but also shows its approximate shape.

Old illustration depicting the use of the dowser, or divining rod. For centuries faith has been placed by many in this method for the discovery of under-surface water and minerals. Just how accurate it is is a matter of dispute.

By means of another instrument it is possible to measure the deviation of gravitational force from the vertical. Now, an object in the neighborhood of a salt dome is attracted more strongly by the surrounding shale than by the lighter salt, and consequently the gravitational force exerted upon it is not exactly vertical, but is turned slightly away from the dome. Therefore, if we draw on a map a number of arrows showing the direction and magnitude of these horizontal deviations, we find them all pointing away from the salt dome, and greatest in size around its edge (Figure 3). Conversely, if we find them all pointing toward a common center, we know that there is a large mass of some heavy material hidden there.

The earth, as everyone knows, is a huge magnet whose field surrounds us. The direction of a magnetic field is the direction spontaneously taken by a magnetized needle freely suspended in it, and it is a known fact that the direction of such a field is distorted in the immediate neighborhood of a magnetic material such as iron.

Now, if we measure the direction of the earth's field in a number of places and find that it deviates from normal in a certain area, we know at once that a considerable amount of some relatively more magnetic material is buried there. If this deviation is quite marked, the hidden material may be a certain kind of iron ore, or it may be a magnetic sand that frequently contains gold. If the deviation is very small it is probably a substance only slightly more magnetic than shale, such as limestone.

A wide variety of electrical methods have been used in prospecting, with varying degrees of success. It would be impossible to describe all of them, but one can be mentioned as an illustration.

An electric current is passed through a circuit on the earth's surface. Its field sets up secondary voltages in any conducting medium below it, much the way the current in the primary coil of a transformer excites a current in the secondary. This induced voltage is detected by means of a sensitive instrument. Such a voltage usually indicates the presence of salt water, the significance of which in petroleum geology has been mentioned.

All of the above methods show the existence of uneven masses of matter, but are useless in getting evidence about level layers of different rock. Such information is best gained by means of sound waves. The sound originates from a dynamite blast on the surface and is detected by means of a number of portable seismographs located at various distances away, which measure accurately the small time interval required for the sound to travel to them.

The simplest case of such a use is shown in Figure 4. A surface waye travels from A to C directly. Since its distance and time are known, its speed can be calculated. A wave traveling along AB strikes the limestone stratum and is reflected up to C. The time for this journey is measured, and since the speed already has been found, the depth of the reflecting layer can be calculated.

A more complex effect is observed at points farther from the source of the noise (see Figure 5). The sound strikes the limestone layer, travels along its surface, and is then reflected upward to a number of different recording instruments. Now, sound travels about four times as fast in limestone as it does in shale, so that the underground wave reaches the farther observers before the surface wave does, since the former, by its greater speed through the limestone, more than makes up for the time lost in traveling a greater distance.

Then if we graph the times taken by these two waves to reach a series of observation points against the distances of these points, we obtain a curve similer to that of Figure 6. The curve of the surface wave, AB, shows that the time is proportional to the distance, and gives us the speed of sound through the surface layer. The curve of the refracted wave, CD, is not so simple. Its slant and position depend, in addition, upon the speed of sound through the lower layer, and also upon the depth of this layer. These two factors can be determined by a mathematical analysis of the curve.

Scientific Queries Answered

Address questions of scientific nature to Dr. Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Question: Recently I saw a new kind of sponge, said to be made from wood. How is this done?—C. B. B., Chicago.

Answer: Wood pulp is treated with lye and carbon disulphide to give a viscose solution, a sirupy liquid that can be hardened by contact with acid solutions. By passing viscose through a fine hole into a hardening bath, rayon is formed. Cellophane is formed by passing it through a slit. The wooden sponge is made by mixing the viscose with crystals of a water-soluble substance and then treating the mass with dilute acid. This hardens the viscose and at the same time dissolves out the crystals, leaving a spongelike solid.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Here and There Among the Dogs

ALTHOUGH most any time is interesting at a dog show, there are two particular periods in a one-day show that ought to have a special appeal for the average dog fancier.

One is the start of the show, when automobiles hurry in with the entries, handlers and owners lead their dogs into the building, the veterinarians examine the dogs, and all are busy benching and grooming their charges for the first call of the judges.

You can see all this excitement and hustle (comparable in some respects to the first moves in getting a circus ready!) this morning at the Northbrook Kennel club show, which is being held in the Curtiss-Wright airport near Northbrook, Ill. This is a one-day show, so you will have to go today if you want to look at several hundred blue-blooded dogs on exhibition.

We like the start of a dog show because of the excitement that attends this event. Of course, it isn't a very friendly time at a show. Nearly everybody is too busy getting dogs ready to be taking much time to visit. One of the breeds that is of especial interest to us at a dog show invariably is judged during the first hour of the show, so we know how many of those showing dogs are too busy just as soon as they arrive at the show to do much visiting. Before a dog goes into the ring there are a number of things to be done to it, including the last-minute grooming. Therefore the first hour of the show is invariably a mighty busy one.

After dinner (in the evening) is another time at a dog show that has an especial appeal to us. As the show progresses and the field of winning dogs narrows, the choosing of the best terrier, the best working dog, etc., brings an air of real excitement to the show. Even though you do not know many of the handlers or owners, you have your favorite breeds that you want to see put up by the judge. So the evening hours are the really exciting hours for all dog fanciers who are interested in the final judging.

Last year at the Northbrook show we found the judging to pick the best terrier mighty exciting, because we knew several of the owners who had dogs in the final parade before the judge. If you are at the Northbrook show this evening be sure and get a seat around the show ring to watch the terrier judging, because the competition always is very close and the applause of the crowd cheering its favorites gives you quite a thrill. A Chicago-owned wire-haired terrier (Harlow Brentwood Surprise) won last year, beating a very fine Scottie, and it was well worth watching Surprise prance back and forth across the ring, obeying every suggestion of her handler.

This evening at the Northbrook show should bring out a good looking group of Sealyham terriers, including quite a puppy class. There are special cash prizes for the puppy winners this year. Last year it was around 9 o'clock in the evening (if my memory is correct) when the Sealys, all combed and chalked until they looked as if they had stepped right out of a bandbox, trotted into the ring. This year visitors ought to see not only a good string of puppies making their debut in the show ring but some high class grown dogs of this breed competing for honors. In addition to Chicago-owned dogs, Sealy owners from other cities in the middle west are bringing their dogs to the show to try to take honors from the local breeders.

Chicago dog fanciers who are not familiar with the boxer, a German breed, should have a chance to see this dog at today's show. There are a couple of Milwaukee kennels that invariably enter quite a string of boxers.

One point which the average show visitor does not appreciate when he sits at the ringside and sees the dogs assume various poses, so that the judge may look them over carefully, is the training behind the good manners of the show dogs. To get a dog used to the crowds, to teach it to mind its own business in the show ring, to teach it to walk correctly on a leash, and to teach it to stand and pose when ordered, are not accomplished in an hour and a half or two hours. It takes a lot of time, patience, and schooling to train a dog for the show ring. And even after all the training, some dogs turn out to be poor "showers."

Because training for the show ring requires a dog owner to spend considerable time with his dog to make it obey, showing a dog in a dog show brings its rewards even if one never does win. The animal is bound to be benefited by the schooling it receives.

DOG NOTES

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the physician who has won fame in connection with the Dionne quintuplets, is a booster for the wire-haired fox terrier. He is the owner of a dog of that breed, appropriately named Talaurora Medico.

The dachshund, generally considered only a house pet in this country, is going to prove that he is a useful hound on Sept. 22, when the first field trials for dachshunds ever held in America will take place near Far Hills, N. J.

The dachshund is a sporting hound, combining the ability of the terrier to dig into the earth after its quarry and the ability of the true hound to follow a scent. It gets its name from its original use of hounding the dachs (badger). The fact that the dachshund is a hunting dog has not been realized by the average American owner, and for that reason this field trial will do much to clear up the status of the breed.

The field trial will run on live rabbits or hares, and the qualifications to be considered by the judges are good noses, courage, keenness, perseverance, obedience, and willingness to go to earth. Dachshund owners wanting more information on the trials should get in touch with George McKay Schieffelin, secretary of the Dachshund Club of America. His address is 597 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Paris Aristocrats Remain Amateurs—Even in Death

Story of the Famous Jocky Club

Watching the horses on the homestretch! Members of the celebrated Jocky club of Paris at an exciting moment at Longchamps. The Jocky club was founded in 1834, an outgrowth of the Society for the Encouragement and Improvement of Horse-Racing in France, established in 1833.

By EDMOND TAYLOR

Paris, France.

IF YOU walk from the Rond point of the Champs-Elysées along the Avenue Martignon past the newly established official residence of France's premiers, French equivalent of No. 10 Downing street, you will pass, probably without noticing it, an unpretentious hôtel particulier which is one of the most curious institutions of which the Third republic boasts.

Not that the Third republic is much inclined to boast of it, and it is still less inclined to boast of the Third republic, for the institution in question is the Jocky club, more familiarly known as the Jocky, which, despite its plebeian-sounding name, in the most aristocratic organization in France.

The Jocky was founded considerably before anyone had thought of the Third republic — the club celebrated its centenary last June—and to most of the members the present régime is an unfortunate aberration whose manifest vulgarities serve only one useful purpose—to render still more grateful to high-born lungs the rarefied atmosphere of the quiet hôtel particulier in the Avenue Martignon—at the corner of the Rue Rabelais, to be exact.

The relations between the two institutions, the Third republic and the Jocky club, nicely symbolized by accidental proximity of their hotels, have not been so much cold as simply casual. The members of the Jocky have with few exceptions throughout the last sixty years stubbornly held aloof from the life of the Third republic. The only thing they will do for the republic is to die for it.

Insist on Dying After Own Fashion

This they do quite readily on occasion. The 72 members killed in the World war testify to this. Only in dying, as in everything else, the members of the Jocky insist on doing it after their own fashion. And this brings out, incidentally, the quality of the Jocky which renders it unique in France, if not in the world.

Paul Bourget, writer and member of the French academy, once declared that the Jocky club was one of the three pillars of European civilization, the others being the Academie Française (naturally) and the Prussian general staf (surprisingly). It is not quite certain that the Jocky would accept the rôle thrust on it by Bourget, but it is quite proud to be one of the stanchest pillars of pure amateurism in all fields, and in this rôle it stands alone.

Whatever the Jocky does, it never loses its perspective. The object for which the Jocky was founded was technically the encouragement of horse-racing, but more properly the cultivation of the elegancies naturally associated with horse-racing. The members never have lost sight of this goal and never have allowed themselves to be diverted from it by anything, not even horse-racing, and especially not by the business of getting killed for France, which is considered an allowable, even praiseworthy, activity for a member, provided he does not lose his amateur point of view.

This amateur point of view is most strikingly illustrated by the great marble tablet unveiled in 1924 at the foot of the ceremonial staircase in the Rue Rabelais hotel. On it in letters of gold are inscribed the names of Jocky club members fallen in their country's wars, from the Crimea to the Riff.

Nowhere else in the world, probably, is there such a roster, a veritable "Who's Who on the Other Shore." Of the 82 names on the list only ten lack titles, three being foreigners, while out of the ten only two or three can properly be called commoners. For the others, though lacking titles, carry before their names the "de" which in France is the badge of nobility.

Proud Names on Club's Death Roll

Among the names, especially among those killed in the World war, are some of the proudest and most historic in France: Charles d'Albert, Duc de Luynes (1870); Comte Georges de la Rochefoucauld, Prince Henri de Polignac (1915), Duc de Rohan (1916), Reille-Soult, Duc de Dalmatie (1917), Comte Louis de Clermont Tonnerre, Prince Jean de Broglie (1918), Duc Pozzo di Borgo.

Very few of the names on the Jocky club lists of fallen members, at least of those killed in the World war, were high officers. Most of them were lieutenants or captains who received commissions during the war but who had served their terms of military service as conscripts in the ranks, either because they were looked on with suspicion as notorious royalists or simply because they did not care to serve the republic in any post of responsibility.

Many who could have received commissions had they wished enlisted in the war as privates, usually becoming noncommissioned officers in a few months. Thus it is that the mortuary tablet of the Jocky club is very scarce in generals, colonels, and majors, but contains the following assortment of corporals and sergeants: Marquis de la Baume Pluviel, Comte Louis de Rochefort, Jean de Dieu Reille-Soult de Dalmatie, Comte Gustave Puiseny, Comte Jean de Nettancourt Vaubecourt, Comte Emanuel de Castija, Comte Louis Vigier, Comte Hubert d'Aramon, Marquis de Plumartin, Comte Herve de Bernis, Comte Pierre de Pinodan, Marquis de Champagne.

Ultimate Expression of Amateurism

This probably is the ultimate expression of the amateurism which is the Jocky's dominant note. And its conservatism is indicated by three names near the bottom of the list, three British officers, followed by the mention, "temporary members."

The last name is Henri de Lespinasse de Bournazel, killed in a skirmish with Moroccan tribesmen in February, 1932. The Jocky is quite proud of this name, not because its bearer was any more blue-blooded than many others on the list, but because his death was so completely in the Jocky club tradition. At the time of death he wore a red tunic which he persisted in showing to the enemy, although he was in a very advanced position under heavy fire. He withdrew from his advanced position only on formal orders from his general and ten minutes later fell with twenty bullet holes in the red tunic.

The Jocky club was born of the Anglomania that gripped France in the reign of Louis-Philippe. Horse-racing had been introduced as long since as 1776; for a while it bloomed in growing popularity; then the revolution laid upon it a coldly withering hand. The restoration came, and a body of young chevaliers, headed by an Englishman of the name of Bryon, set themselves to breathe fresh life into the sere plant. In envious emulation of England they founded, toward the end of 1833, the Society for the Encouragement and Improvement of Horse-Racing in France. For six months or so encouragement was bestowed and improvement effected. But the young chevaliers remained dissatisfied. They had their horse-racing, falling short, indeed, of the English sport—still they had it. They had their center of convivial gathering—the tir aux pigeons of Bryon. But they lacked a club, and so in June, 1834, the Jocky came into being.

All the gilded horsey youth of France flocked there. One of the conditions of entry, denoted by membership of the Society for Encouragement, was enthusiastic interest in horse-racing. In spite of the enervating demands of club life, the robuster claims of the racing field were not forgotten. Thus in 1836 the Prix du Jocky Club was instituted — the English Derby of France. The races at Longchamps began two decades later. Taking his empress there, Napoleon III would sail her in his yacht down the Seine, and, having disembarked, he would conduct her to the paddock along a richly woven carpet. As the years went by the club successfully withstood threats to its existence. The revolution of 1870 barely touched it. The commune momentarily engulfed it in 1870, but there were no signs of decay.

Mention should be made, too, of those early founders of the club whom time has invested with a halo of gay insouciance, of prodigal bravado. The first president was Lord Seymour, English by birth. He never returned to his native land. He had a compatriot named Potter, a great hand at whist, who on winning days would leave on the table beneath the flickering candles a crinkled thousand-franc note. There also were the Duc d'Orleans; Demidoff, the son-in-law of Jerome Bonaparte; Prince de la Moskowa, son of Marshal Ney; Duc de Morny, the creator of Deauville, and others.

Rich Plebeians Occasionally Admitted

Occasionally a wealthy plebeian was let in, for how could aristocracy hope to thread unaided the financial mazes? The Chausée d'Antin had to be called in to support the Faubourg Saint-Germain. Charles Laffitte was there, as skillful in business as in play; Casimir Delamarre, too, regent of the Bank of France; and, somewhat lower down the scale, a wood merchant named Rieussec.

But the French bourgeois frowned upon the Jocky. Horse-racing was somewhat scandalous. He listened with undisguised abhorrence to the tales of the nightly dissoluteness of the gants jaunes. How they did gamble! The speed of horses, the virtue of women, the duration of ministries, the solvency of bankers — what did they not bet on?

Club Remains Oasis of Titled Elegance

An evening scene at the Jocky in the days of Napoleon III.: Raised voices, cries of triumph and signs of despair, the golden glint and chink of coin, the sinister or fascinating rustle of notes lost and won, and, above all, the reiterated pealing of the bell, endeavoring to restore a semblance of order. The bourgeois was shocked by this.

All that has passed, but the Jocky club remains, an oasis of titled filigree elegance, setting the taste and decreeing the mode, in the desert aridity of French democracy—to use the symbolism natural to the Jocky.

The club headquarters, incidentally, occupy the exact geographical center of Paris society. For when the Jocky was looking for a site it took a large map of Paris, stuck a pin to indicate the residence of each member, and found the center this way.

The Jocky has three American members. They are Frederich H. Allen of Bolton Priory, Pelham Manor, N. Y.; R. B. Corbin, 778 Park avenue, New York, and Luis de Yturbe, Boston.

Demidoff, son-in-law of Jerome Bonaparte and one of the Jocky club's founders.

Favorite Poems

SIR WALTER SCOTT, celebrated Scottish novelist and poet, was born in Edinburgh Aug. 15, 1771. At sixteen he was apprenticed into the legal profession, and throughout a considerable part of his life he was employed at legal tasks and on political appointments at the same time that he was creating his literary works. "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," from which "Breathes There the Man" is taken, was first published in January, 1805. Scott was made a baronet in 1820, the title becoming extinct with the death of his eldest son in 1847. Toiling with his pen to clear away heavy debts incurred by a publishing house which he had founded, the famous poet and novelist fell gravely ill in 1829. He clung to life, undaunted, however, until Sept. 21, 1832, when he breathed his last on his beloved estate at Abbotsford.

BREATHES THERE THE MAN

Breathes there the man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land;
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well;
For him no minstrel raptures swell;
High though his title, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentered all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

THIS BOY JOE

By Booth Tarkington

Madge Tells Joe of a Mysterious Man Who Has Been Attentive to Mabel Benns—Joe Thinks It Must Be Cooper

THE STORY TO DATE

Joe Hadley is a sentimental high school student of the small town of Aurora, Ind. His mother has recently died. His father is a state senator. While he is at the capital Joe's sister Emma tries to keep watch over Joe, as does his Uncle Milt, his mother's brother, who lives with and on them. Joe meets Madge Alterbeck at a roadhouse in Columbia City, where he is taken by his sporting friend, Yeastie Marshall. Yeastie is driving a new car which he tells Joe is a gift from his family. Brought up in an old-fashioned atmosphere, Joe is confused by Yeastie's principles of life. He is uncertain just what is right or wrong. He falls for the cheap glamor of Madge and desires to convert her to a higher life. Ben Webster, a detective, appears at the roadhouse. Yeastie tells Joe the place may be raided. He picks a quarrel with Madge and her friend, Mabel Benns, and hustles Joe away, leaving the car behind. Next day he sends Joe back for the car. On the way back to Aurora Joe is followed by a man in a shabby touring car. He leaves the car on a side street for Yeastie to pick up. Too late Joe realizes that the sedan was stolen and that he has become Yeastie's partner in theft. He dares not confide in his family. His father is having trouble, having gone against a crooked bill sponsored by Gus Cooper, the town boss. He has returned home a broken man, to die soon after. Joe calls on Madge.

INSTALMENT V.

MADGE looked at me, frowning. "Listen, you keep away from that bird, hon!"

"I do," I told her. "I don't like Yeastie, Madge. I've wanted you to know I don't like him. The truth is, I just about hate him! I began to feel that way toward him that night."

She looked puzzled. "What night?"

"Why, that night I met you, Madge. That night out at Arbuckle's when Yeastie made you and Mabel Benns so angry and you got angry with me, too."

"What?" She took her hand away, leaned back and looked at me. "Listen, ain't you that fellow from Terra Haute who was at the Alhambra that night along the first of August and——"

"O, my!" I said, and felt sick. She didn't know me. She hadn't remembered me and had got me mixed up with somebody else—and yet she'd sat there with me and stroked my cheek and she'd let me hold her hand.

She looked put out. "Listen! Honest, ain't you that fellow who said he was from Terra Haute at the Alhambra and Mabe and I——"

"No, I'm not!" I spoke up; all of a sudden I was resentful. "I oughtn't to waste a thought on you, but here I've been thinking of you about two-thirds of the time for months and months! You ought to be ashamed—just this minute telling me you could forget everybody else in the world but never me! My goodness!"

"Listen," she said, "honest, ain't you that fellow from——"

"No, I'm not! I've never been in Terre Haute in my life, and I don't know what you mean by the Alhambra. I don't even know what the Alhambra is."

She looked me over. "I guess you're right, hon. That fellow was older than you; that's right—I can see that now—had darker hair, too. Yes, that's right. I thought you was him the minute I came in the room just now, but I guess I got mixed up or something. But you do look something like him. Say, listen, when was I out with you?"

"You never were," I told her, speaking angrily. "You never were and you never will be! You make me tired!"

"O, don't say that!" She laughed and was gentle again right away; put her hand back on my sleeve. "I know I've seen you before somewhere."

I got lofty with her then. "Do you suppose I'd be here if you hadn't? I was introduced to you out at Arbuckle's by Yeastie Marshall, and then he picked a quarrel with you and Mabel Benns, and you got angry with me for being his friend—which I'm not. I suppose you've met so many since then you won't be able to remember me!"

"Wait a minute," she said, and she put her fingers to her forehead. "Just a minute. I remember that night Yeastie got fresh. I remember there was some kid with him. Sure there was a kid with him!"

"Thank you!" I said. "Thank you very much indeed!"

She looked at me. "Honest, I remember. I mean, honest, I do now. Wasn't I calling you my Boy Scout or something?"

"Yes, you were!"

"Pete's sake!" she said. "You look some older than that kid and kind of bigger and——"

"I believe I have my growth, thank you!" I interrupted her. "That was a long time ago and I may be an inch taller."

"Sure," she said, and gave me a suspicious look. "You claim you've quit being such a friend of Yeastie Marshall, do you?"

"I certainly do. I don't care to have it doubted, either!"

SHE seemed thoughtful. "I guess you're telling it straight. You were with him that night, though, so you must have been running with him then."

"No, I wasn't. I happened to be with him that night, but I wasn't 'running' with him. I used to go to school with him, but that night at Arbuckle's was the first time I'd seen him in I don't know how long, and I've only seen him about twice since then."

"That right?" she asked me. "Listen, you mean you never worked with him?"

"Worked with him? I don't know what you mean. I'm a senior in high school, and he quit after the eighth grade. I never heard of his doing any work in his life."

"Says you!" she said, deciding to be funny again. "Do tell! I swan! A whole senior in high school paying a call on little Madgie! Reginald, I'm simply overcome!" But she was good-hearted, all right, because when she saw how red and upset looking this made me she reached out and patted the back of my hand. "Don't get sore, High School—I never can help razzing some." Then she was serious. "Say, listen, you keep away from Yeastie Marshall, too."

"I do," I told her. "Besides, I think he doesn't live in Aurora any more; I've heard he's moved away. But what's the reason you tell me to stay away from him? That's what I'd like to know."

"Moved away, has he?" she asked, not giving me a direct answer, and she looked thoughtful again. "Maybe he has. I guess he's back here often enough—when there's something in it for him." She gave me a questioning look, serious and as if she wanted to see through into whatever was in the back of my mind. "Honest, ain't you wise to him?"

"Wiser than I was when I met you. I've always wanted to explain that to you, Madge." Then I went on and told her all about how Yeastie'd come by for me in a car and we'd gone out to Arbuckle's, so I'd meant it when I'd asked her to drive back with us, and then how Yeastie'd noticed Ben Webster and picked a quarrel with her and Mabel Benns and told me outside it was because Arbuckle's was going to be raided, so we'd sneaked home on the bus. "I've always wanted to explain this, Madge," I said. "I couldn't bear——"

SHE interrupted me. Her eyes had been getting rounder while I talked, and now she doubled her fist and struck the sofa a blow between us. "That's it!" she said. "So that's why! Mabe and I were mad then, but afterward the way he turned fresh looked phony and we tried to figure it out. We weren't wise to him yet. Right up to then we'd always doped him out for just a kid trying to be a sport, but afterward we kind of asked around and found out about him. He's mean to girls, and one of 'em told us! So he had a hot car out there that night, did he?"

"What?" I asked her. "What's a hot car?"

She looked at me as if while she'd been talking she'd forgotten I was there, but now decided to put a check upon herself. Then she smiled. "Never mind, old high school senior darling!"

"I do, though! It means a car some boy's swiped, doesn't it?"

"Swiped? Just kind of borrowed! O, yes, certainly! Why, certainly, kiddo!"

She spoke mockingly, and I got a deep scare inside of me; or, rather, an old scare of mine got deeper. I gave a gasp. "He stole it! You mean he stole it—was going to keep it—or sell it! You mean——"

"Never mind, kiddo! What you don't know won't hurt you."

All at once she looked businesslike when she said that; I saw she meant it.

"Listen, hon," she said. "You're a north sider, ain't you?"

"Yes," I told her. "You are, too. You live north of Main."

"You know what I mean," she said. "You got to live north of Fourth to be a north sider—up where the swell homes commence. You live up around there, don't you?"

"Yes, I do." I spoke with some vanity, but that dropped out of me flat as I saw she was trying to size me up and was probably wondering how much I was worth or something.

Garrett Price

She turned, too, and threw me a kiss, still laughing.

That's what she was doing, of course, but she was trying to "make conversation," too, at the same time, because she went on, "Mabe and I know quite a few north siders."

"Do you?" I asked. "Who?"

But I saw I'd been simple, because she looked arch. "Ah, that'd be spilling it, kiddo!" Then she looked speculative again. "Mabe's got a friend that's about the biggest north sider there is. I wonder if you know who I mean, because if you do you could tell me if he's as big a shot as Mabe thinks he is."

"I'll tell you if I know, Madge. Who is he?"

"Never mind. It wouldn't be right for me to give you his name." I saw this was somehow a point of honor with her, and probably would be with Mabel Benns, too, and any other girl like that. Not giving names was a technical matter about which they'd insist on being correct, I guessed, but Madge was willing to go on and see if I couldn't find out from her who this important man was—just so long as his name wasn't mentioned—because she was curious about him. "Well," she asked me, "who's some middle-aged kind of elderly man on the north side that's the head of about everything and got the most say in Aurora, or maybe all around the state for that matter, and a fairly swell dresser, always slicked up, and rich, but careful of his money, and——"

"Not Mr. Holbrook?" I interrupted; as he was the most important man in Aurora, he was the first one I thought of. "Not Mr. J. V. Holbrook? Tell me some more about him, Madge."

"Orright, hon. I'd like to know myself, because if he's really the goods, why, Mabe's going to be on velvet. He's even talked about adopting her." Madge laughed. "O, he's paternal something terrible! Let me see—O, yes, I remember. He's kind of fat-framed and double-chinned, but swell looking. The main thing about him, he's got big political pull—awful big, the biggest there is. I guess he's in the government or something. Anyhow, what he says goes in this town—or pretty near anywhere, for that matter."

"What!" A light seemed to flash before my eyes. I was startled, because it was Cooper she was describing; I couldn't have the slightest doubt of it. All of a sudden an old phrase ran garbled through my mind—"Mine enemy is delivered into my hands!" I tried to speak quietly. "Yes, I know a man like that, Madge."

"Well, leaving out names, what I want to know is, is he all he says he is?"

"Yes," I told her.

"Well, that's certainly going to be big news for Mabe," she said.

MADGE reached out and took my hand—it was pulling hard at a button on the upholstery of the sofa. "Listen, High School, how about it? The other boarders got to use this parlor, too, you know. Some of 'em'll be in here before long. You going to show me 'round the burg a little or something?"

"Wait," I said, and I took my hand away; I felt desperate. "I've got to tell you something."

She stood up. "Tell it as we go along, hon."

"I can't." I stood up, too. "I can't go along. I mean I can't take you anywhere. I've only got forty cents, and that's as much as I'd usually have. I live with my sister, and there's just enough to barely live on."

"O, boy!" Madge gave a funny kind of laugh, as if at herself, and if it hadn't been terrible to me to see how her face fell, I could have laughed, too—laughed like a lunatic. She was as openly disappointed as somebody that's lost a theater ticket through a hole in a pocket. "I thought you told me you were a north sider!"

"High School!" I said. "So I'm not cute any more, am I?" Then I did laugh, and she said "Hush!"; but I went on. "I'm the one person that really cares for you in the world, I expect, but I've only got forty cents and not likely to have any more, so you're through with me, aren't you?"

She gave me an odd look as if I'd begun to interest her again, in a bleak sort of way. "Blot it, kiddo."

"Yes," I said, "it bores you to hear me say I love you!"

"Love." She repeated that word so that it made the flattest sound in the world.

She stared at me and laughed. "Well, if you ain't cuckoo!"

"I am!" I said. "I'll show you how cuckoo I am! I graduate from high school next June. I've got a guardian, but I don't care what he says—I'll marry you!"

She gave almost a screech of surprise and laughter mixed up together.

"I will," I said. "I'll marry you!"

"Pete's sake!" She pushed me on the chest. "Nerts to the nuttiest!" she said, and went on laughing. "Wait till I tell Mabe! She's going to be adopted by her rich old higher-up, and me entering the sacred bonds of matrimony! Listen, hon, what'll we do with all that forty cents?"

I was bitter. "That's right, laugh at me because I'm poor! Don't you suppose I intend to go into business? Don't you know——"

She gave me another push, she was in such high good humor. "Go on! What business? Ever heard of the good old D. P.? D. P. stands for depression, son. Listen, I don't want to sit around here all evening; if I'm not going out I got to go up and get my laundry ready. You're cute, Brown Eyes, but you just run back to your 'rithmetic and jography now, huh?"

She was moving toward the door again, but I caught her by the arm. "Madge! You can't treat me this way! I want you to say you'll be engaged to me!"

"Engaged? For what?"

"To marry me! You've got to say you will, Madge! I can't stand it!"

"Well, sit it, then, hon."

"I can't!" I said. "Madge, if you won't be engaged to me right now—well, at least tell me when I'll have a chance to see you again."

At that she frowned. I knew she was thinking it'd be a waste of time. But she was good-natured. "Well, I don't care—some time if you want to. I got a good many dates ahead——"

I choked. "Do you suppose I don't know that?"

She seemed to consider matters computingly. "Well, I better not make a date with you exactly. Something might interfere with it. Tell you what you do. Think of some telephone number where I can call you and I'll give you a ring some time. Honest I will. We can go out and take a walk somewhere whether you still got that forty cents or not. Don't get mad, hon. Honest, I'll give you a ring some eve."

I gave her the number of our telephone. I wrote it down for her on a piece of paper with a pencil, and when I said it was my home number where I lived she was surprised and laughed and said, "You sure are a case!" Then, just at the door, she thought of something else. "Say, listen," she said. "Seeing's we're getting engaged, and I'm so liable to be going to be married to you and everything some day, what's your name?"

"My name?" I asked her. "O, my goodness!"

She patted my arm. "I'll never call you by it outdoors, of course, but just by the initial—like Mr. B., or Mr. M., or whatever it is."

"I told you at Arbuckle's," I said. "My name's Joe Hadley."

"Sure," she said, "I remember perfect." Then she put her hand on my shoulder, laughing, and pushed me out into the hall. "Good night, Mr. H.," she said.

I turned and looked back as I was going out the front door and she was half way up the ugly little stairway; but she turned, too, and threw me a kiss, still laughing.

I walked home in a kind of desperate exaltation, thinking this way and a lot of other ways, too.

Cooper! The great Gus Cooper! I had him now, and I could make him do anything I wanted him to. Whenever I'd thought of him before he'd seemed so powerful he was untouchable, but now I was Jack the Giant Killer and he was the giant.

I WAITED and waited for her to call me up on the telephone—to give me that ring she'd promised. Every day it seemed as if I couldn't bear going on just waiting.

Madge was always in my mind—Madge and Cooper—and Yeastie Marshall had almost disappeared out of it, except to give me an unpleasant little jump whenever I did think of him; but one day I was reminded of him—reminded of him uncomfortably. My Great-Uncle Ledyard wrote to me about once a year, and so did my old-maid cousins from up in Michigan, and even to get an advertising circular was quite a postal event for me, so to speak; but that morning in the mail there was a heavy looking letter addressed to me. I opened the envelope, and inside was another envelope, sealed. Across the top was written: "Private and confidential. Do not open." Underneath that was this: "For East E. Marshall, care Joseph Hadley, and to be held at Hadley's until called for by East E. Marshall."

I didn't like it. I didn't want to have any letter of this kind in my possession. I didn't want to be mixed up with letters for Yeastie, and I didn't want Yeastie to be calling for this one, either. He didn't; but what happened bothered me more than if he had. I got a letter from him the next day. This is what it said:

> Joe, old sport, do me a favor. I was expecting to be in Aurora around now but did not know what hotel. So I instructed a baby to write me inside a letter to you where I would be sure to get it. It ought to be there for me by this time. Now, get this right. Stick that letter inside another envelope, and do not forget to lick it, and address it to Parks M. Nelson, P. O. Box 218, Uniontown, Pa. Do not forget to put a stamp on, old egg. Long time since I saw you, but your old playmate, East E., not much around good old Aurora these days. Got a traveling salesmanship and am so-so jake. How is tricks with you and the old bunch? I sure always liked you, Joe, kid. Get my above instructions right about remailing the letter and do it quick. Important, see? This man Parks M. Nelson is a buddy of mine in Uniontown, and you address the letter to him, just like I instruct above. Do not put my name on it at all, because there is a blonde in Uniontown P. O. I do not wish to have know I am in Uniontown when I get there. See? Get this right, Joe, and next time I am in Aurora I will be seeing you.
> Your old buddy, E. E. M.

I did what he asked me to; I didn't see how not to. I hated doing it and felt so mixed up with ugly, dangerous complications that for days afterward I had a cold again whenever I was outdoors.

Emma told me one morning that she was going to marry Edgar Morrison that spring—"very quietly," she said, and some time in May. The only news to me in that was when it was to happen; but she went on to tell me that after a little wedding trip she and Edgar would come back to our house and live there, and I was pleased, because I looked up to him and liked him, though I hadn't got over the feeling that he and Emma were both too old-fashioned good to get much fun out of life.

Uncle Milt was pleased, too, because she told him the same day, and that evening, when Edgar came in, Uncle Milt got solemn and welcomed him to our family with more pomposity and affection and put-on grandeur than anybody else in the world could have got away with. He held Edgar's hand, shaking it sometimes, and keeping him standing; and the way Uncle Milt talked anybody'd have thought the grand duke of somewhere, after a long life of governing his people and devotion to his family, was consenting to bestow the hand of the young princess on a meritorious vassal of the house. Edgar had a good position as a department manager in one of the Holbrook plants, and Uncle Milt said he had always watched his career with the "highest gratification."

Uncle Milt said, "Yes, with the highest gratification, the very highest, my boy!" several times; and he put a lot into the tone he used, so it somehow seemed that he'd been watching over Edgar all the time and using influence to advance him. Uncle Milt could always get these effects; you couldn't tell just how. Emma'd been of legal age a good while; but he forgot that. "Here and now I formally give my consent," was one of the things he said, entirely in earnest. "I make her yours, this lovely girl, and I welcome you to the family with a full heart, Edgar Morrison. You have won the right to form a part of this household circle. By your conduct you have won it. By winning my niece you have won it. I welcome you! I welcome you!"

An Open Letter to Barney Ross

Dear Barney: Many are the pugilists who have decided to put their earnings into a business venture along the lines of catering to the food and drink appetites of their hosts of friends and well-wishers. Many have made nice livings out of it, but there is evidence you would run into difficulties others don't ordinarily have if you were to consider yourself in the rôle of restaurateur. Better go in for something where the merchandise is not perishable when you hang up your sign as a business man. With best wishes,

WYNN.

Functional Kidney troubles also may cause much more serious and disagreeable symptoms, such as Getting Up Nights, Leg Pains, Backache, Circles Under Eyes, Dizziness, Rheumatic Pains, Acidity, Burning, Smarting, and Itching.

Any Doctor can tell you that the speed of modern life and present day foods throw an extra heavy load on the Kidneys and that most people need help from time to time if they are to feel their best and preserve their youthful appearance. Fortunately, for sufferers, it is easy to help functional Kidney Troubles with the Doctor's guaranteed prescription Cystex, which now is available at all drug stores under a positive guarantee to satisfy completely or cost nothing.

Dr. T. J. Rastelli

Rendelle, another widely known Physician and Medical Examiner, of San Francisco, recently said: "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system, otherwise they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition. I can truthfully recommend the use of Cystex."

World-Wide Success

Cystex is not an experiment, but is a proven success in 31 different countries throughout the world. It is prepared with scientific accuracy in accordance with the strict and rigid standards of the United States Dispensatory and the United States Pharmacopoeia, and being designed especially to act in the Kidneys and Bladder is swift and safe in action. British Enlist Cousin Eve as a Week-ender

Correspondent Hits Trails and Villages Replete with Historical Glamor.

By Cousin Eve.

A mere bite out of the pomegranate was my fourth stay in London.

LONDON As always before, I am aware of the touch-and-go quality of its life. Even in Rome history is not more rampant than in London. And history throws a slightly sorrowful mantle over houses and streets where the great have passed.

History is sad because everybody died. There is no good ending to the story. So it is with London—memories!

Secluded Trevor Square Spot of Quiet, Shade, and Twilight.

I dined the other night with some people in our embassy. A young couple utterly charming, the Hiram Binghams. Going afoot in the long twilight, we passed through secluded Trevor square, with its little shaded park, and tiny chic houses with bright doors and window boxes. Love nests. History says the smart little house where we dined had been a royal love nest. After dining we set forth into the gated and locked little park in the center of this square and strolled under the trees a while.

It was quiet, for one hears no noises in London. Only the subdued roar of trafic. Never a loud voice. Children do not scream. Nobody shouts.

Another night we motored out of London to the northeast to dine in Essex. Through Camden Town and out into the country. Lovely country, prettiest villages ever, draperies of pink ramblers. A neat brightness about everything, the gardens, the inns, the air. Finally, into a deep dark forest, "Epping forest," said our host, who was driving. And forthwith we knew it was through these beautiful oak trees that Dick Whittington, model for every honest British country boy, found his way to London and became lord mayor. We passed Bishop's Stortsford, a romantic village where Cecil Rhodes, son of a country parson, was born to live and die in Africa.

Epsom Downs Road Replete with Historical Glamor.

And then we met buses full of horsey people coming from Epsom Downs. And this was the selfsame road traveled by Charles II. and Nell Gwynn going to Epsom for the races 200 years ago. And at once the ordinary asphalt under our wheels was transformed into a highway of ineffable romance and delight—the great lover Charles, and Nell the actress. I could see the dashing, rumbling coach, the red coated outriders, the gallant king, his companion, quite flamboyant and rather carelessly dressed, I fancied. And who hadn't been along this road? Romans, Gauls, Danes. I was confused with history.

One night I supped informally in Fleet street with William Waldorf Astor. This was out of the ordinary, and amusing to one who thrives on printer's ink and to whom the roar of printing presses is sweet music. That isn't exactly a perfect description of me, but it was what I told William Astor, who forthwith thought I should see the Observer, the Astor newspaper, and have supper with him and his editorial staf. The Astor paper is a conservative sheet, a weekly, coming out Sundays, with a large circulation throughout the British Isles. Fleet street is where all the newspapers in London are edited and published, an old, old street, a district, rather, for the Observer's offices are in Tudor street, nearer the Thames. We went down, down into the insides of an old building to see the presses start business, and I was given the first newborn sheet. Sort of a young cousin of the London Times.

Handsome "Bill" Astor's Team Wins Rochampton Polo Cup.

Then we trekked back for supper. William Waldorf Astor is the charming and able son of Viscount and Viscountess Astor. Therefore he is three-fourths American. His mother was Nancy Langhorne of Virginia and, as Lady Astor, is in the house of commons. "Bill" Astor is dark and good looking. He had been playing polo that day at Rochampton, and his team had won the cup. This was a large silver cup, and there was nothing to do but fill it with iced champagne and drink to everybody's health, long life, success in journalism, and polo playing.

Seated at the table were six brilliant and entertaining men—the chic editorial writer, the diplomatic columnist, the sports writer, the general political authority, a witty Scot, and Lord Astor's business manager. We had great fun. After supper William Astor took me for a little giro to Gray's inn, the famous square nearby, where are the great lawyers' offices of England, close to the law courts. The small houses of the square are old, and quaintly painted dark brown with yellow doors and window frames. Trees are dotted over the quiet inclosure, and one enters through low passages from the busy streets.

American Cousins Found in Heart of Hunting Country.

One got the week-end habit after all and traveled one Sunday to Leamington, heart of the hunting country. Here in one of the loveliest districts of England I found American cousins who have become a bit Anglicized and live in great peace and happiness. But they are still Americans, although Cousin Percy, while still in his 30s, was Britain's minister of aviation during the great war.

A many windowed rambling country house. Three hundred acres of gardens, flower, fruit, and vegetable; meadows, pasture for magnificent cattle. Cream that will not even pour. One is terrified to meet this cream at luncheon, plus great red raspberries. What of the silhouette?

Trip to Kenilworth Castle an Adventure in History.

We are in Kenilworth and our near neighbor is the Kenilworth castle, or what is left of it, of Amy Robsart and Queen Elizabeth. Taking to a motor, we study the ruins of the great dark pile, destroyed by Oliver Cromwell, who made headquarters in a small brick house on my cousin's estate. But in good shape is the tall five towered gate house, where Queen Elizabeth visited handsome Lord Leicester, lodging herself in the upper chambers. On the roof above the royal suite sentinels kept a sharp eye over the crenellated walls. My astute relative, like a professional guide, showed me where good Queen Bess had bricked over several of the most sightly windows in a quite regal manner.

Then on to Warwick, greatest of castles, stronghold of the king maker. The river Avon, many swans floating on its ripples, laps the great round towers and walls of the seat of the earls of Warwick. The present lord, grandson of that famous red haired beauty who was a favorite in the brilliant court of Edward VII., married a cousin, Rose Bingham. And she is one of the smart young beauties of London. The present lords of Kenilworth and Warwick have large incomes from gate receipts at their front doors, thousands of pounds a year.

Stratford-on-Avon Exists on Trade of Tourists.

A few more miles of charming villages, of crossroads, of Sunday afternoon churchgoers, and we are in Stratford-on-Avon, inspecting Shakespeare's garden. It is a pretty garden, having in it every kind of shrub and plant mentioned in Shakespeare's plays. Stratford exists on, by, and for tourists. Each tiny cottage, smothered in roses, harbors somebody who lives on the tourist business. Along the river bank rises the huge, pink, brick memorial theater which English people call "the jam factory." Much good, scarce American money was raised to build this terrible looking theater. To me it had the air of a storage warehouse. Inside, it was modernistic, and I paid a shilling to look at it. The curtain is a tremendous oddity, square blocks of many colored velvets, like a crazy, patchwork quilt.

Some one in our car had seen the curtains. She had never heard of plays in the summer festival and thought they were not so good. Other people I met in London raved and tore over the productions as things of great beauty. Prices varied from $2 in our money to one shilling and sixpence up aloft, which is 37 cents.

Some Think Shakespeare Theater Should Be in London.

There are people who think Shakespeare's theater should have been built in London, where it could have been a financial success. At Stratford it always will need help.

I was taken then to the dark thatched cottage where Shakespeare got his bride, Ann Hathaway. Hathaways lived in this roomy dwelling for 500 years. One was happy not to have been a Hathaway, especially Ann, after inspecting her bed and the twisted ropes of flax which were mattresses in those old days.

Ann hopped out of bed onto a slate floor, winter and summer. She wove her own coarse flaxen sheets and bed embroidered sheets, pink woolen blankets, and eiderdown puffs. Poor Ann! But hundreds of people were waiting in line to clamber up to see her attic. The gardens of all English cottages are full of flowers and charming, and so was this historic one.

Village of Broadway Home of Mary Anderson for 40 Years.

After an interval of fascinating country, heathery and hilly, we swept into Broadway. The vogue of this beautiful village was doubled when Mary Anderson, an American Shakespearean actress of great beauty, married Antonio de Novarro and came here to live 40 years ago. Broadway has one long street, many tea shops, and several inns. The antique shops looked good to me. We decided to have tea at the biggest, most opulent looking inn of all, and drove into the courtyard, where a flock of white, cooing doves fluttered over us.

Our tea was excellent, but utterly conventional and devoid of local color. We learned later that this inn was a sort of glorified emporium where every piece of furniture, cup, saucer, and pewter mug, was for sale.

Mary Anderson Novarro's House Ensemble of Thatched Cottages.

At the top of the village street on the right was Mary Anderson Novarro's house, a series of thatched cottages, of ancient build, made into one beautiful whole.

The windows had shining, small panes, the thatch was carved into swirling patterns, and a superb motor waited in a quaint cobbled courtyard. There were neatly clipped hedges, and evidences of a lovely unseen garden, way, way back. Mme. de Novarro, it seems, still is beautiful, with a classic beauty that never dies.

We returned home to log fires and our warmest frocks, although it was midsummer, after the most concentrated sightseeing ever. We had covered Warwickshire, Middlesex, and Berks.

Bond Street Nucleus of London Shopping Pleasure.

London shopping did not intrigue me much, except for Bond street. There the fruit and flower shops are far handsomer than ours. One window had satiny nectarines, gooseberries large as plums, great red hot house peaches, grapes green as Indian emeralds, dark blue grapes in huge clusters, and, in the center, a pot of sapphire blue hydrangeas.

London theatergoing always is like a party. One goes at 9, in full regalia. "Everybody" is present. Lovely, little, pale Leontovich in "Tovarich" has caught the town. "Noah," a French translation, has great vogue. It is the story of a silly ass who makes good in a big way. "Wind and Rain" and melodramatic "Two Mrs. Carrolls" both are wild successes.

New Dance Featured at Ballet Performance at Covent Garden.

Russian ballet at Covent Garden had a new dance, "One Hundred Kisses." William Astor thought it was a knockout, although he opined that Danilova and some of the so-called 16 year olds would never see 30 again. All the bucks of the town went, and beautiful arty ladies of society in sweeping tulles. The young of the royal family graced the royal box.

My education was furthered by a day at Oxford with the Bernays family, of which the head is consul general in Chicago. Their tall, splendid sons, Robert and Richard, will be going there soon to college. We motored along a charming road of many villages, and only knew we had arrived by the shop windows—Oxford bags, or plus tens. Many bookshops and tearooms. Athletic outfitters, sports shops. We lunched ravenously and then set forth on fascinating ramblings. It was the long vacation, and we began with Merton, oldest college of all, 1261. The windows were open in some of the boys' rooms, and a mustiness of ages seeped forth. Here and at Christ Church were portraits on the walls of the huge vaulted refectories, or commons, of great men who had honored their university. At Christ Church commons was Lord Rosebery as a handsome boy, and many bishops and archbishops down the centuries. At Merton an oddly enameled portrait of red-bearded Mandell Chrichton, who lived long at Lambeth as bishop of London.

Correspondent Finds Oxford Teas Are Prodigious Affairs.

We lingered over the beauties of Corpus Christi, of Magdalen, and of the Bodleian library, the most complete unit of its kind in the world. We wandered in cloisters by the river and marveled at the little stream so narrow and mild; at lawns and rose gardens, and stone carving queer and entrancing, at Thomas Cranmer, graven over an arch. We tea-ed ravenously, finding that Oxford teas are prodigious things. Albemarle tea has two poached eggs, toast, cake, and tea. Grosvenor tea has prawns, scones, tea, and cake. There were a score of tea combinations, all alluring and bearing great names.

We returned to London by way of Henley and Maidenhead, taking country roads, all charming. It was a peaceful hour when haymakers were coming home and gypsies showed dark faces behind feathery hedges. Bright wagons of these nomads were standing in many a lane, and fire for their suppers. Our radio caught up a pirate station in France, and we heard "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." The air was cool and scented with roses and new mown hay. The road twisted and turned into Henley, where the great regatta was held a week earlier. The Thames was still full of little shallow boats, punts. We rather hated to leave this day behind us.

Gordon Selfridge Biographer of Cosimo de Medici.

Gordon Selfridge has become a writer. He says his friend Horace Lorimer of Philadelphia pushed him into it by demanding a story of his life, which he refused to do, but forthwith made up his mind to write the life of Cosimo de Medici, who made all the money which Lorenzo spent so magnificently. Cosimo was a Florentine merchant, and Mr. Selfridge feels that he has grasped his psychology. All this and more that was highly interesting I heard while lunching one day.

The Selfridges lived for years at Lansdowne house, and Yarborough House, and Carlton House terrace, and in a Christopher Wrenn house in Kent, called Foot's Craye place, when I visited the family before Rosebud married Prince Wiasemsky. And again on the sea. Now they have gone into an apartment in Park lane and are happy.

Mr. Selfridge Planning Return to America, Barring an Election.

And Mr. Selfridge is coming home to Chicago in October with Violette, provided there is not a general election in England. In that case he will stay and give his election party. This is the grandest party that gold can purchase in London, and takes place on the top floor of Selfridge's. Four thousand invitations are sent out and everybody comes. The aristocracy, the stage, ministers, diplomats, whatnot. Two great orchestras, a cold buffet, champagne galore, a hot supper, election returns, and everybody in smartest regalia. It sounded like an excellent party.

AND STARR OBSERVES THAT BABIES SLEEP

"Look, Mommy, Cecily Gates is asleep," says Starr, the 2½ year old daughter of the young Edward C. Kohlsaats of Glencoe, pointing at her very new and very little sister. The children are granddaughters of Edward Christian Kohlsaat and Mrs. Gates Kohlsaat.

Sir John Lavery Suffers Loss of His Only Daughter

Sir John Lavery has suffered a further bereavement. His only daughter, LONDON Lady Sempill, died recently. She was married to Lord Sempill, who is greatly interested in aviation, and was the mother of two little girls, the elder of whom, the Hon. Ann Moira Forbes-Sempill, 15 years old, is heiress to the barony. It is one of the few baronies which may be inherited through the female line.

Sir John has given his last portrait of his wife, the late Lady Lavery, to the Belfast Art gallery. The portrait was made during her fatal illness, and is done in tones of mauve and lavender, which recalls the fact that she wore a fresh orchid every day.

Dorothy Kahn Club Asks for Transportation

Services of 200 Automobiles Needed to Take Little Cripples to Outing.

IT WOULD take the stony heart of Scrooge for anyone free and with an automobile to refuse the plea being made this morning by the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children. The club members are asking for the use of 200 automobiles for a few hours next Wednesday, that many hundred handicapped boys and girls may have an outing.

Every year the club gives a picnic, replete with goodies and games, for the little cripples who are pupils in the Christopher, Gompers, Jahn, and Spaulding schools. For months ahead of time these boys and girls look forward to the party and its ice cream, candy, clowns, and souvenirs.

Readers Who Wish to Lend Their Services Invited to Communicate.

But this time many of the 800 youngsters will be unable to enjoy the party unless some generous friends provide cars to transport them to and from Lincoln park. If anyone who reads this appeal is willing to assist the club members, arrangements can be made through Mrs. R. D. Katz, 7420 Chappel avenue, Butterfield 0200, or through Mrs. B. J. Cohn, 5335 Kimbark avenue, Dorchester 5161.

The Rev. Harold Kenny of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith is to be the speaker at a meeting of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women, at 3:30 this afternoon, in the club quarters, 111 East Pearson street. The Rev. Mr. Kenny will discuss "Home and Foreign Missions." Mrs. Madge Cunningham has planned a musical program to follow the lecture.

Chicago Woman's Club to Hear Lecture on the Black Hills.

Anyone who has been to the Black Hills, or is interested in making this part of America his vacation destination, will want to hear A. J. Schill, Wednesday morning at the Chicago Woman's club. Mr. Schill is going to give an illustrated lecture on "Rambling Through the Black Hills of South Dakota." Mrs. George H. Lamberton, chairman of the summer activities' committee, will introduce him.

On Tuesday afternoon the club's Navy pier committee will present Dr. Anna Blount, of Oak Park, in the Navy pier auditorium. Dr. Ione F. Beem is chairman of a series of similar programs.

Strictly social will be the bridge tea of the Catholic Woman's league, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in the league lounge, 410 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. P. C. McCrory is chairman of the league's committee on summer activities.

Britain Issues Code for Drivers and Pedestrians

Some 15,000,000 copies of Britain's new "Highway Code" have been distributed to every home LONDON and office in England by the postmen. A new departure is the printing of 80,000 copies in Welsh. The code contains simple instructions for both pedestrians and motorists on the rules of the road, and represents the culmination of months of exhortation in the press and the films.

This post was held last year by Mrs. William A. Becker, newly elected president general of the organization.

MRS. VINTON EARL SISSON.

Both in Winnetka, where she lives, and in Chicago Mrs. Sisson long has been active in club work. She is a former member of the board of the Chicago Woman's club and a past president of the Austin Woman's club. She has served the Illinois D. A. R. as vice regent.

The committee on national defense is conceded to be one of the most important, if not the most important, working unit in the general organization of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Through it many of the policies of the society are made known. In assuming the chairmanship Mrs. Sisson points out that she expects to follow Mrs. Becker's policy of a conservative educational program for national defense.

This week Mrs. Sisson will have in the mail the September issue of National Defense News, the magazine of the committee. Ready for mailing in the next fortnight will be the new handbook of the committee, which is a complete and yet concise exposition of national defense.

Satire on Modern Governments Has Run in London

A brilliant satire on modern governmental systems, Kurt Weill's musical LONDON play, "A Kingdom for a Cow," recently opened at the Savoy theater.

Weill's music is banned in Germany, but that won't hurt it here. The most striking thing about the production is the youthfulness of those responsible for it. Kurt Weill, composer of the score, is 37; Robert Vambery, who has written the libretto, is 27; the decor has been designed by Hein Heckroth, 32 years old, and the producer is 27 year old Felix Weisberger.

The play is on Gilbert and Sullivan lines, and London seems to have received it with curiosity and pleasure.

Several Events Draw Londoners from Home City

The general exodus that is now on in London means the beginning of LONDON the Goodwood races, the start of the yachting season at Cowes, and the return of thousands of "seasonal" Londoners to the country. It includes several departures for America. Lord and Lady Duveen have taken a house for the rest of the summer in Long Island, where their daughter, the Hon. Mrs. William Garthwaite, has been planning to visit them.

The countess of Granard, daughter of the late Ogden Mills, has left for New York, and the Hon. Lady Ward, oldest daughter of the late Whitelaw Reid, sailed recently on the Berengaria. Lady Fairhaven, formerly Mrs. Urban Broughton, has joined her yacht, the Sapphire, and will be away until September. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Guinness have a party on their 600 ton yacht Fantome, which recently returned from the south seas. Luxuries on board the Fantome include some fine carved paneling and seven bathrooms.

Mr. Bingham, the American ambassador, had to postpone his departure for the United States, due to the illness of Mrs. Bingham, which involved an operation. Mrs. Bingham now is able to travel, and she and the ambassador and Miss Bingham are to leave for Washington soon.

Junior League Benefit Slated for October 4

Event of Gala Proportions to Be Staged as All Day and Night Festivity.

By Judith Cass.

ADVANCE notices of the all day and all night benefit the Chicago Junior league has planned for Oct. 4 at the Drake hotel make one's head fairly whirl. Committees! Chairmen! Amusement! According to the Junior Leaguers themselves, it will be colossal, gigantic, stupendous, amazing! And, like the circus which these four adjectives bring to mind, the party promises to be a three-ring circus with new thrills, with surprises, with some of Chicago's smartest and most prominent young women selling popcorn, peanuts and pop.

You like bridge? Come right this way for a lecture by one of the country's authorities . . . and you may have luncheon first at the cost of $1. The bridge lecture will cost $2, and there will be a prize for the winner at each table. Nor will these prizes be simple little things. They range from a round trip by air to New York, to a dainty jeweled wrist watch.

Clifton Utley to Lecture on Power, Money, and Glory.

Curious about world affairs? Come take a peep into the room where Clifton Utley, popular current events lecturer, will explain the balance of power, money, and glory throughout this puzzling world.

The hotel will be filled with sweet-young-things in bellhop outfits. "Bells" will be glad to get you a brilliant chartreuse yellow program that tells the events of the day by means of a clock, and on looking at it you will find, for example, that when the hour hand points to 11 a. m. Mr. Utley's name will appear, and the room in which he will lecture. The program will cost 5 or 10 cents.

Chicago and Evanston Leagues Coaching Songbirds.

The Chicago Junior league and the Evanston Junior league are coaching their airiest songbirds, and after an elimination contest on the air, the winner will appear with the Drake hotel orchestra the night of Oct. 4 at the dinner dance and cabaret. The winner also will have a month's engagement with the orchestra. Her part in the evening's entertainment will be quite small, however, for the entertainment committee already has reached out long arms to engage professional talent.

Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Lang and Miss Margot Atkin, is chairman of the benefit. Miss Honor Merrell is the business manager, and Miss Margaret Wilder is in charge of tickets. Mrs. Robert Hotz and Mrs. Ernest Byfield, in charge of the professional talent at the cabaret, will see to the guests' amusement. Mrs. Norman Pritchard will see that the correct wines are served, and Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord will see that the cocktails are mixed and served in the best of their several traditions. Mrs. Charles True Adams and Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr. will award the stunning prizes at the close of the bridge game.

Other Leaguers to Park Cars and Assist in Check Room.

Mrs. Charles S. Connell [Barbara Graf] will park your car [we don't know if she does it personally]. Mrs. Talcot Griswold and corps of assistants will check your wraps; and Mrs. W. English Walling II., and Mrs. Edward K. Welles will reserve you a room at the hotel in case you come from out of town to join in the fun and frolic. Miss Harriet Borland will take table reservations; Miss Peggy Hixon will sell cigarets; Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr. will seat you at the Utley lecture, and Mrs. Ewing T. Webb will take the blame for any mistakes in the futuristic yellow program. Mrs. William M. Collins Jr. [Louise Neff] will have charge of a group of volunteer waitresses, and the waitresses, cigaret girls, check room girls, and those selling flowers all will be the young and lovely provisional members who, by October, will be newly admitted to serve their apprenticeship in the league. Miss Adelaide Atkin will have charge of an exhibit of rare books, which will be shown for a week preceding the benefit, in the Lord Nelson room at the Drake. At the same time the bridge prizes will be on display.

Tickets May Be Purchased for Each Individual Event.

There will be no general admission to the hotel, nor will there be any flat rate for admission to all of the day's events. Instead, tickets must be bought for each different event, and the prices will be fair. At $5 per person, one may enter the hotel at 8 o'clock and have dinner and enjoy the dancing and cabaret for the rest of the night. No extra charge will be added to any of the hotel's prices for food or wines or for rooms.

Chamberlin is recognized throughout the country as an expert horseman, and his wife shares his enthusiasm. The show will be an outstanding event.

Channons Await Completion of Home in London

LONDON The Court register reports that Mr. Henry Channon [formerly "Chips" Channon of Chicago] and his wife, Lady Honor Channon, "are continuing their tenancy of 21 St. James place, as their new house at No. 5 Belgrave square will not be ready until late autumn." No. 5 Belgrave square is next door to No. 3 Belgrave square, the royal residence of the duke and duchess of Kent. As predicted, when the duke and duchess chose that address, there is a revival in the popularity of that district. During late Victorian and Edwardian times it was the most fashionable square in London but during recent times it has been somewhat superseded by Mayfair. Now a Belgravia address again is the last word in prestige.

At a dance given recently by Lady Weymouth and Lady Nunburnholme in Grosvenor square it was duly reported that Lady Honor Channon was "watching the dancing." At Lady Moyne's dance it was reported that she wore an "elaborately frilled, dark blue organdy wrap with a dark blue dress."

It has been said, and truly, that a society person has no more private life than a gold fish.

At the same party were Lord Beatty, Princess Bismarck, Lady Isobel Manners, Lady Jersey, looking full of life in a pink chiffon frock over which hovered butterflies of the same material, and Mrs. Audrey Marshall Field in red tulle.

East Receives Large Influx of Chicagoans

White Mountains Resorts Active as Society Is United in Informality.

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H. The White Mountains resorts are most active, and arrivals from the seashore to spend August and September are many Chicagoans who are joining in the informal good times prevalent now since life has been reëstablished on something like a new social basis.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of Chicago and her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Poole, were among hostesses at the Profile Golf club, Franconia, when a program of week-end sports enjoyed included field hocky, golf, and tennis events, with a tea following in the club lounge. This room, decorated in colonial antiques, with the gleam of old brass and copper, and handsome hooked rugs adorning it, was decorated by Mrs. Poole, who has a fine collection of hooked rugs at her Sugar hill home.

Mrs. Winterbotham's Playhouse to Be Scene of Benefit Dances.

Mrs. Winterbotham has a "playhouse," a commodious building dedicated to dancing and games, on her Sugar hill estate, where on the evenings of Aug. 23 and 30 she is to give two subscription supper dances, the proceeds to go for the benefit of the hospital at Littleton, which serves this community. Miss Emily Glessner of Chicago is a member of the younger set adding to the attractiveness of these annual affairs. Formerly they were given for the benefit of Dow academy at Franconia, whose gymnasium was thus equipped through Mrs. Winterbotham's generosity.

Mrs. Howell Erminger of Chicago and her daughter, Miss Bertha Erminger, have reserved rooms at the Mountain View house at Whitefield, N. H., joining friends. They were absent last season, but have spent many summers at Whitefield.

Mrs. William Eisendrath of Chicago has arrived at the Waumbek, Jefferson, N. H., to join her sister, Mrs. Charles B. Strauss of New York.

Evanstonians to Stay for Time at Spalding Inn, Whitefield.

Arriving at Spalding inn, Whitefield, were Mrs. George A. Robinson and Miss H. Evelyn Robinson of Evanston, who will spend several weeks there.

The Hotel Randall at North Conway welcomed Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Skinner of Oak Park and Dr. and Mrs. J. Wendell Clark of Chicago, who are touring together the White Mountains resorts. Later Mr. and Mrs. Skinner went to Hotel Alpine at Bethlehem to spend a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mayo of Chicago are at Inn Unique, Notchland, at Crawford Notch, where they are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Mayo of Wilmington, Del. They attended there the première of the Notchland Players, who presented Oscar Wilde's play "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Foster Motor Out to Mount Washington.

Motoring to the Mount Washington at Bretton Woods, where they were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sanderson, were Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Foster, now spending the summer at the Meadowbrook club at their old home at Derby, Vt. Many Chicagoans who formerly were members of the Opera club will visit the Meadowbrook club this month and enjoy visiting the islands owned by the club on Lake Memphramagog on the Canadian side.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Mack of Chicago gave a tea at Polly's place in Colebrook, going down from the Balsams at Dixville Notch, ten miles distant, where they are spending the summer.

SUMMERS IN CHICAGO

Miss Hope Kaufman, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Kaufman, is spending most of the summer with her father and brother, Harry Jr., at the Congress hotel. She will return to Farmington this fall for her senior year and will be presented to society in 1936. Harry Jr. is a student at Lake Forest college.

British Canon Calls Society Unions Happy

LONDON Canon Carnegie, rector of St. Margaret's, Westminster, who probably celebrates more "society" marriages than any two other clergymen combined, declares roundly that "95 per cent of 'society marriages' are happy and successful."

He bases this upon observation of the marriages which he has celebrated. He declares that the popular and cynical impression that these fashionable brides are headed straight for the divorce courts is completely contrary to the facts as borne out by his personal records.

While 95 per cent seems a surprisingly large percentage, there seems to be no question that the big increase in divorces recorded nowadays is coming entirely from the working class and the lower middle class who, for the first time, now have available the "poor person's divorce" facilities. While many conservative churchmen and churchwomen are genuinely horrified at this increase in divorces among the working class, social workers insist stoutly that it is the only solution to the problem presented by the hundreds of thousands of "irregular unions" which have long flourished behind the façade of irrevocable marriage.

It was usually assumed that these "irregular" unions were pretty much confined to the larger cities, where there was a certain amount of privacy possible, but a few months ago a representative of the ministry of health, who is in charge of the work in the fishing villages along the northeast coast, gave an astonishing picture of social conditions there, the open exchanging of wives having reached the point, he said, where it had ceased to excite local comment. Villages are notoriously coercive communities, and if that sort of thing can go on in villages, things have indeed reached a remarkable pass.

Mrs. Fiermonte Braves Newport Social Front

Enoz and Wife Stride Into Activity in Wake of Luncheon Invitations.

By Nancy Randolph.

Not even the shifting of the Gulf stream has caused such variation in NEW YORK the Newport temperature as the presence of the Enzo Fiermontes. For days the former Madeleine Force Astor Dick and her youthful husband lunched strictly en famille with Madeleine's sister and hostess, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, at Bailey's beach, while Newport tried to make up its mind.

The mere fact that Enzo was on the sacred sands of the one and only Bailey's was no small feat in itself. Just when it appeared certain no one ever would extend a friendly hand to the Fiermontes, that loyal soul, Mrs. Marjorie Oelrichs, chipped away some of the social ice when she gave a picnic luncheon for them. The senior Marjorie Oelrichs always has been a kindly person, and then, she's going to have something of a social problem on her own hands when her new son-in-law, Eddie Duchin, the orchestra leader, arrives on Bailey's sands with his bride, Marjorie Jr.

Henry Drummond Wolff Gives Luncheon Picnic for Fiermontes.

Anyway, Marjorie Oelrichs did the decent thing, and the next day Mrs. Henry Gassaway Davis III., the former Grace Vanderbilt, showed the way when she attended a luncheon picnic given in honor of the Fiermontes by Henry Drummond Wolff of London and his wife, the former Margaret Fahnestock of Washington, D. C.

Although this is Enzo's first visit to Newport, the atmosphere made itself felt at once. At the Casino, at Bailey's beach, and at the country club, where he has registered, his fine Italian hand has inscribed himself as Vincent Fiermonte. Vincent is the Americanization of Vincenzo, his Christian name, of which Enzo is a diminutive form.

This is the first time since she stunned society by her marriage to Enzo two years ago that the mother of John Jacob Astor III. has dared the sacrosanct Rhode Island strand with her youthful fighter.

Even when she attended the much heralded wedding of her son and the former Ellen Tuck French last June Mrs. Fiermonte discreetly left Enzo behind and made her own appearance on the Newport scene as brief as possible.

There was a jolly family circle gathered in Newport to welcome 3 week old William Astor, who checked into the spa at the beginning of tennis week with his proud parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Astor III.

Infant's Many Grandparents Present to Welcome Him.

In addition to his paternal grandma and stepfather, his maternal grandpop, Francis Ormond French, and Mrs. French, are there. So are his maternal grandma, Mrs. James Lenox Banks Jr., and Mr. Banks.

And, of course, hovering in the background is Mrs. William H. Force, the little stranger's maternal great-grandmother, still as handsome and almost as managerial as when she married her daughter Madeleine to the late Col. John Jacob Astor almost a quarter of a century ago.

The famous infant, heir apparent to the $100,000,000 Astor fortune, is getting his bearings at Chetwode, the impressive Newport villa which Jack bought before his marriage.

The Newport residence on Bellevue avenue is surrounded by a small, beautifully landscaped park, enclosed by stout fences, in which the infant can take his daily airing under supervision of his nurse and guards.

The blessed event and his red-headed mother didn't check out of Doctor's hospital until fully three weeks after the birth of the Astor heir. The former Ellen French and her son have thrived so well that if Mrs. Astor were any but the wife of an Astor, and her son other than so important an heir, they doubtless would have been dismissed from the hospital after the customary two weeks recommended for ordinary maternity cases.

Mrs. Vincent Astor Made Director of Opera House.

Speaking of Astors, how ironic, or something, that Mrs. Vincent Astor, who rarely sets her aristocratic foot inside the Metropolitan Opera house, should be made a director of the institution!

Although the Vincent Astors inherited a box in the famous "golden horseshoe," they scarcely see a performance a year. In the last eight seasons the beauteous Helen Astor has appeared at but one opening night performance.

However, she has always been a liberal patron of music and has a splendid musical education.

For the third successive season the Astors will be absent from Newport. Mrs. Astor now is abroad steeping herself in the various musical divertissements of the Salsburg festival, perhaps getting herself better prepared for her new tasks at the opera house next fall.

RETURN TO SPEND THE SUMMER IN CHICAGO

Mrs. Asaph Churchill Jr. and her baby daughter, Carol Marguerite, came from their home in New York to spend the summer in Chicago with Carol's grandmother, Mrs. Hirst Moorehead of East Delaware place. Mrs. Churchill is the former Dorothy Moorehead.

Paris Attracts Chicagoans as Summer Resort

By May Birkhead.

Chicagoans are sharing in the movement which makes Paris a place of considerable resort even PARIS during the dog days. It is no exaggeration to say that more well known Americans are passing through the capital this year than for some time past. Such resorts as Vichy and Deauville, with their many resources for health and recreation, have been receiving a host of fashionables during the last fortnight. Other travelers are finding time to stop in Paris, where the dressmakers are displaying their new autumn styles, and a good many have come here as the first important sojourn after a voyage on the Normandie. In this last category should be named Chauncey McCormick, whose fellow passengers on the Normandie included such New York notables as Mrs. Vincent Astor, Robert Walton Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Harriman, Condé Nast, and Frederic Pratt.

Among Chicagoans who contrived to see something of the music festival at Salzburg before reaching Paris are Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell and her daughter, Mrs. Henry R. Luce, who are returning home today on the Champlain. Mrs. Luce and Mrs. Carleton H. Palmer of New York, have been negotiating with foreign governments for a loan of paintings which will be seen in New York next November.

Star Conductors Bring Large Crowds to Salzburg Festival.

The Salzburg festival this year is a greater attraction than ever. The star conductors include Toscanini, Bruno Walter, and Weingartner, all three of whom have a big following in Paris. The real music lovers enjoy at Salzburg the rapt attention with which performances of opera and drama are followed, in spite of the fact that the Austrian town is now the resort of so many fashionables.

Last year we had a chance to see the superb motor road, which has just been opened officially, and unites Salzburg and Venice. The mountain panorama, which is everywhere striking, reaches its climax of beauty and altitude at the Grossglockner, the highest peak in Austria, or in central Europe. This inauguration is responsible for an unprecedented influx of pilgrims to Salzburg this year.

Many Attractions Draw Throng of Visitors to Vichy in August.

Vichy is drawing a large August throng, not only for the cure, but for the other attractions, such as the Wagnerian ring cycle, and the racing, the prizes this year being unusually high, and the turf talent notable. Among the sojourners there are Gen. Comte de Chambrun and his wife, the former Clara Longworth. They are arranging, on account of the large number of invitations, to have the wedding of their son to Mlle. José Laval, daughter of the French premier, Pierre Laval, on a big scale, and the church ceremony next Tuesday will take place at St. Honoré d'Eylau, where so many fashionable weddings are held, in Paris.

The bride and groom-to-be have been spending recent weeks at the Laval château near Vichy, or at the Hotel du Parc, at the famous resort. They, like Comte and Comtesse de Chambrun, are keen golfers.

Mr. Herman Gade, who recently returned to his château, Mesnil St. Denis, from Belgium, has an interesting experience to relate. His brother, John Gade, is naval attaché of the American embassy in Brussels, and it so happened that a United States destroyer, which could barely wedge through the canals, made its way by this route almost to the Belgian capital. The trip was a success from every standpoint. The American ambassador in Brussels invited Prince Otto of Austria, who, for years has been a student at Louvain, to pay a visit to the destroyer, an invitation which he was glad to accept.

Mr. Herman Gade Escorts the Prince to the Destroyer.

It fell to Mr. Herman Gade to represent his brother, and to accompany Prince Otto over the boat. Mr. Gade, after going to the prince's residence in his automobile, conducted him in state to the destroyer, where he was received with much ceremony. Mr. Herman Gade was enthusiastic over Prince Otto's youthful interest in everything, his simplicity, and his charm, and he found the same qualities in the prince's mother, the ex-Empress Zita.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moulton, whose country place, La Verrière, makes them neighbors to their good friends the Gades, to the west of Versailles, gave an evening party to celebrate the first anniversary of their wedding. It was an attractive affair, the supper being served at small tables on the terrace, overlooking the moat. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade and Miss Alice Gade were there, and so were Col. and Mrs. Bentley Mott, who are spending the summer at the Trianon Palace hotel in Versailles.

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Taylor Also Guests at Moulton Party.

Col. Mott has sent his interesting reminiscences to his American publisher, and the volume will appear soon.

Also at the Moulton party were Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Taylor, who are living at the Château de St. Vigor at Viroflay, near Versailles, and the Raymond McCunes, who have the Château du Haut-Buc, also near Versailles. The Moultons left the next day for Coblenz to attend the annual automobile races.

Saugatuck Is Summer Mecca of Art Study

Michigan Colony Attracts Interest of Students from the Chicago Region.

By Eleanor Jewett.

SEVERAL people were fired by the same thought this last week. That thought centered around the summer art schools, of which there are several within convenient driving distance of Chicago, chief among them, possibly, being the summer school of the Art institute at Saugatuck, Mich.

The Art institute itself had the school on its mind, for the weekly bulletin started off gayly with a glowing description of the many charms of Saugatuck, "the luxuriant foliage of summer trees, the picturesque stretches along the water front, the old docks with their accustomed fishermen, the sand dunes, the path through the woods, the old ramshackle shanty, and the figure painting," and in case your mouth waters too keenly in anticipation of these delights you may enjoy Saugatuck vicariously through an inspection of the first exhibition by the summer students in the Art institute school lobby.

Work of classes in lithography, landscape, and figure painting is hung. It is an attractive and promising exhibit.

A second person to have the Saugatuck school on his mind was Thomas Tallmadge, Chicago architect and loyal friend of this Art institute summer school. He wrote: "I often have a feeling that the art critics of Chicago, not one of whom has been to Saugatuck, as far as I know, have no idea of the astonishing art center we have in the middle west.

Three Art Schools Now in Flourishing Condition.

"There now are three schools in flourishing condition, and an art association, which is having an exhibition at present in the city hall of the works of Francis Chapin, Albert Krebehl, and three or four others. The largest of the schools in Saugatuck is the Summer School of Painting, now in active alliance with the Art institute, the latter enrolling its outdoor summer school students in the classes at the Oxbow. Frederick F. Fursman is the director, and Edward Rupprecht and Francis Chapin are teachers respectively of figure and landscape. There is an enthusiastic class in lithography under Chapin, and a night class in modeling and pottery making under Alvin Mayer, who is a one time fellow of the academy at Rome.

"Mrs. Walter Brewster talked to the class Sunday morning in their weekly 'sermon' on the subject of the Public School Art Association of Chicago. She spent a week there. Among other notables at the school are President McVey of the University of Kentucky and Mrs. McVey, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, and the Rev. Mr. Travis, rector of Grace church. These are all painting."

Activities of Colonies of Great Interest in Summer.

Mr. Tallmadge closes on a note dear to my heart, for the same idea struck me several years ago, but so far has not borne fruit. He says: "It seems to me that the activities of these colonies are of greater interest than accounts of exhibitions in the galleries, especially in the summer. You may not agree with me, but I often wonder why the art critics do not make a round of the summer schools. They would provide many stories."

An amusing story from Saugatuck concerns three young graduates [two boys and a girl] of eastern colleges, students of deep sea diving, who have discovered a sunken vessel in the old Saugatuck harbor and are going down to it every day with diving helmets, air pumps, etc., and getting, one imagines, thrills and pictures at the same time.

Mrs. Frederick Fursman Writes of Week-End Spent at Saugatuck.

Still another person to have been Saugatuck conscious last week is Mrs. Frederick Fursman, wife of the director of the Summer School of Painting, who sends a chatty account of a pleasant week-end in which Mr. Tallmadge, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, music and spirituals were engagingly mixed in what must have been one of the most pleasant week-ends of the summer.

And yet a fourth person, Nina K. Griffen, noted for her water colors, writes from Saugatuck extoling the Summer School of Painting and praising, too, Cora Bliss Taylor's art school, where William Schwartz is teaching this summer. Carl Hoerman's studio home in Saugatuck, with its outdoor theater and wood retreat, came in for enthusiastic praise from Mrs. Griffen, who is most discriminating in her taste. She also spoke with keenest pleasure of the excellence of the summer exhibits in the town hall of the little village.

Saugatuck Breathes Its Charms Through Praises of Its Friends.

So, if we do not all go to Saugatuck by the next train, it will not be for lack of knowledge of the place! Saugatuck calls through the voices of its friends, and we live in the hope that some day we may respond "in person."

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts announces a summer show of Chicago scenes, water colors and oils by Chicago artists. Among the exhibiting painters are Henry H. Brandt, Richard A. Chase, Frederick Dalrymple, Edward G. Dannhausen, Robert P. Kilbert, Nina K. Griffen, Jess Hobby, Lane K. Newberry, Berenice M. Newman, Margaret Selleck, and Ted Vognild.

The exhibtion is hung in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel. The first All-Illinois one man show there this fall will be paintings by Dale Nichols, whose exhibit will open in September.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

The O'Brien galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue, announce the appointment of Gerrit Vanderhoogt as manager of the print department. Mr. Vanderhoogt has arranged, for his initial show, a group of etchings by Soderberg, depicting various picturesque phases of yachting. Soderberg is well known for his etchings of boats. The exhibit lives up in every way to his reputation.

Scenes of A Century of Progress by prominent artists is the exhibition sponsored by Marshall Field in the antiques gallery, 9th floor. Among the artists represented are Elmer Forsberg, Edward T. Grigware, Tunis Ponsen, Carl Preussl, Rudolph Ingerle, Otto Hake, Victor Poole, and Otto Koch. There is a familiar ring to this exhibit. One thinks it was seen this spring in the Chicago Lighting institute, or is that a frightful blunder on the part of memory?

Meanwhile the Chicago Lighting institute, 20 North Wacker drive, is staging, to Sept. 1, a most entertaining show. Paintings by Carl Olson hang on the walls and reflect in their rendering of flowers and gardens the motif of the larger exhibit, which consists of illustrating with practical detail the electrification of a real garden. If you want to see a bit of fairyland come true, go and enjoy this fascinating study of lighting effects in a garden at night.

Flora Schofield writes from Paris of the beauties of the Italian exposition, just closed. It ran under the title "Beautiful Faces of Italy," and Mrs. Schofield says it was marvelously lovely.

DISPLAYS AMUSING SENSE OF HUMOR

"Hot Dogs," by Julio de Diego, from his one-man exhibit, one of a group of nine one-man shows, current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute, continuing on view until Oct. 13.

House of Lords Committee Looks Into Osteopathy

There are between 2,000 and 3,000 osteopaths in Great Britain, of whom only about 170 may be LONDON said to be "fully qualified," according to the report of a house of lords committee which has been investigating a proposal to set up a state register for osteopaths. The committee reported adversely on the grounds that no satisfactory definition of osteopathy could be furnished by the practitioners, and that the claim of osteopathy to cure all diseases was not a sound claim. They suggest that the question of a state register be postponed until a fully equipped medical school for osteopaths has existed long enough to turn out an adequate number of fully trained practitioners willing to accept limitations on what they can accomplish by manipulation.

They departed only twice from their routine—once to hop a bus at Roaring mountain for the jaunt to Old Faithful geyser, and once to board a speed boat for the 20 mile ride across Yellowstone lake, 7,000 feet above sea level. Miss Mary Neimeier was the leader of the party, and the other members were Agnes Bins, Pearl Cramer, Lenore Okerstrom, Melvin Pollyea, Paula Grauman, Jean Boskind, Amanda Rosenbaum, Clarence Sindbery, Catherine Powers, Sarah Cohen, Myrtle Borgstrom and Elsie Paulson.

Railroads Learn That Newspaper Advertising Pays

THE railroads of western America have found out the value of using newspaper space to tell their story. They appropriated $450,000 for an advertising campaign this summer and now they are reaping the harvest.

This is how Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, expressed it yesterday:

"Seldom is there an opportunity to arrive at such a definite conclusion of the power of newspaper advertising as that afforded by the recent campaign sponsored by the western roads to call attention to the completion of their $19,000,000 air conditioning program and the new low fares in force throughout the west.

"That this campaign, concentrated for the greater part in the advertising columns of the nation's newspapers, was an unqualified success is attested to by reports from the railroads of the west, showing a decisive increase in passenger trafic throughout the western territory this summer.

"The intensive campaign of the combined western railroads and the Pullman company is considered a vital factor in the development of the present record shattering business. Not only has the public responded in generous numbers to the new travel comforts, but a new and increasing interest is being shown by the average persons in the many attractions of the west as a vacation land."

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

IF you haven't yet taken your summer vacation and are looking for a new experience you might turn your attention to two of America's colorful spectacles: the fiesta at Santa Fe and the intertribal Indian ceremonial at Gallup. The former is to be held Aug. 31 to Sept. 3, inclusive, and the latter Aug. 28, 29, and 30. Both are on one of the routes from Chicago to the San Diego exposition and the west coast. They have been going on for centuries, but they are just becoming known to the majority of travelers.

Besides the New Mexico spectacles there is the Hopi snake dance, perhaps the weirdest of American aboriginal ceremonials. Held each year in the Hopi country of northeastern Arizona, the dance is reached by motor from Winslow. The exact date is not known until a few days in advance, when it is announced by the Indians. A telegram received in Chicago yesterday said the affair at Mishongovi would be held Friday of this week, and the one at Walpi next Sunday.

● Late in the 17th century a gentleman laboring under the name of Don Diego de Vargas Zapata Lujan recaptured for the Spanish crown the vast province that had been lost a dozen years before in the Pueblo Indian revolt. The Santa Fe fiesta celebrating that event dates from the year 1712, when Gov. Penuela directed that there should be annual ceremonies honoring the reconquest.

The festivities begin with the Visperas de la Fiesta at the cathedral and the procession to the Cross of the Martyrs. On Labor day a figure representing De Vargas enters the city with his steel clad soldiery and this pageant is followed by the opening of the Spanish-American market. Singing and dancing, games and contests for men of the mountain villages, and performances of a quaint melodrama are other events on the program. So are El Baile de Los Conquistadores (the Ball of the Conquerors), the night burning of a huge effigy of Zozobra, or Dull Care, and el Pasatiempo, or the hysterical parade. The last named comes on the final afternoon.

● Of all the Indian tribes left in the United States those of the southwest have been the least affected by civilization. They still live the primitive life. But even in their isolated mountain and desert reservations they face gradual absorption. So they stage the Gallup ceremonial in an effort to preserve from oblivion all that remains of their old-time spirit, customs, games, arts, and handicrafts.

Each summer Gallup calls to the medicine men, athletes, dancers, and singers of the thirty nomadic and pueblo peoples of Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, and Utah. In answer to the call the tribesmen put on their deeply religious dances and rituals. The corn dance, the turtle dance, the night chant, the mountain chant, and some two score others give impressive expression of a life and religion closely associated with nature. Foot races, horse races, and exhibits of every kind of Indian handicraft help complete the picture. The ceremonial draws red men from all over the southwest and white men from all over the world.

● The setting for these spectacles is a show in itself. New Mexico is a land of gigantic and impersonal beauty. Some of it may appear rather drab at midday, but the declining sun transforms areas of drouth and desert into Edens of opal and the whole landscape glows with warmth and softness.

The land may not appear very attractive to the newcomer—until he learns how to adjust himself to it. But perhaps it wasn't made for him anyway. Perhaps it was made for the horned toads and the lizards. They never had to learn how to live there.

Giant Do-X Airplane Now Lies in Museum

BERLIN.—(AP)—The giant Do-X, after a glorious trans-Atlantic and European career, is ending its days in the gloom of a Berlin aviation museum. The huge airplane's last trip was as prosaic and unnoticed as its flight to America in 1929 was triumphant. A small tug towed it through Berlin canals to a harbor where a wreath was placed on its wingless body before it was lifted from the water.

Young Democrats to Board Ship for Milwaukee Parley

SEVERAL hundred delegates to the Young Democratic national convention at Milwaukee Friday and Saturday of this week will go north from Chicago on board the S. S. Grand Rapids. The groups will include a hundred representatives from New Orleans and the Cook County Young Democratic organization, with R. W. O'Farrell as leader.

The Outdoors clubs of the Schurz and the Englewood High schools, under the leadership of Larry Craine and J. Hoskey, will board the Grand Rapids this morning for the excursion to Milwaukee.

Two late summer excursions for Chicagoans were announced yesterday by the Georgian Bay line, operating the North American and the South American. One cruise will begin Wednesday, Aug. 28, and will take in Milwaukee, Mackinac Island, and Sturgeon Bay. The trip over Labor day will begin Saturday, Aug. 31, and will take in Mackinac, St. Mary's river, and Sault Ste. Marie, with the return set for early Tuesday, Sept. 3.

The "lost port" of South Haven, which hasn't seen a passenger ship since the start of the depression, has succeeded in getting a water connection with Chicago. Beginning next spring, the Roosevelt will speed to South Haven immediately after unloading at St. Joseph, and on the return trip will pick up excursionists there. Under the arrangement of the last few years it has been necessary to take a bus from St. Joseph to "Michigan's summer capital."

September Tour to Coast Planned

THE heavy business in this summer's escorted tours to California has caused the Chicago and North Western-Union Pacific department of tours to schedule an additional trip, leaving Chicago Sept. 1. This was announced yesterday by John C. Pollock, manager of the department.

Mr. Pollock said that so far there have been four special trains, each carrying more than 200 persons, to the west coast. The tour leaving today will be the largest of the year, with the train booked to a capacity of 250. Among the passengers will be "Miss Wisconsin," headed for Wisconsin day at the San Diego fair.

French Learn What It Costs to Live in U. S.

Pilgrims on Normandie Seek Price Tags Rather Than 'Soul' of America.

By Edmond Taylor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[By Mail.]—When the Normandie put out from Havre on its maiden voyage to New York it carried with it the biggest crowd of Frenchmen who ever got free passage to the United States.

They have been back home long enough for one result to be felt. It has been a new discovery of America, and it is attested in a rush of articles in newspapers and periodicals. Many of the authors, it is safe to say, never would have made the trip if the French line had not invited them on a junket. They are the kind of people who do not travel—still the majority in France, despite all the speeding up of the jaz age. Their comments give a fresh view of America, or at least as much of it as they saw.

Not as Cheap as They Thought.

These persons, not being in general professional writers, did not look about for the "soul" or "spirit" of America, as did a galaxy of sophisticated writers, such as Paul Morand and Georges Duhamel, in the last decade. Morand learned more about New York than most Americans ever do; Duhamel visited Chicago and was apparently shocked at finding the stockyards were clean. At any rate, the fact prompted him to peevish words.

The junketeers of the Normandie were a more prosaic lot. What they looked for first were price tags. Word has finally got abroad among the French bourgeoisie that since the depression the United States is the cheapest country in Christendom. So the pilgrims meant to make their few days in New York profitable.

What apparently happened to them was the same as happened years ago to optimistic American tourists in Paris, who were dazzled by getting 30, 35, 40 or more francs for $1. The Frenchmen wanted to get the city for a nickel, and have been saying ever since that after all things do cost something in the United States. If your tastes are fancy the bill will run into money.

Three articles, it has been agreed, were cheap for the visitors. The first was automobiles. Compared with what French firms ask, American cars were dirt cheap. But what good did that do the Normandie tourist? Even if he had the means to buy a car he could not pack it up in his trunk and smuggle it past the customs officials at Havre.

A Killing in Silk Hosiery.

If he wants an American car he can buy it on the Champs-Elysees. But by the time he has paid for the enormous tarif slapped on it he has saved nothing. So the cheap American automobile was useless.

The second article they noticed was radio sets, along with all accessories. But again the object is rather bulky and not easily smuggled. And by the time you have finished paying the French duty on radios and accessories you are no better off than with the automobile.

Remained the one cheap American article, the fame of which has spread to the remotest villages of France—silk stockings. Here the French made a killing. No one can estimate how many pairs of the finest American hose passed under the noses of the customs inspectors of Havre when the Normandie returned.

For the rest, the slummers in New York were sorely disappointed. They found that food, under some conditions, was cheaper than in Paris, but as expensive if "solid, of good quality, and really fresh." Wet goods for these French were exorbitantly high. Just think of it—one of them has written—a glass of beer costing 3 francs 75! That would indicate that the bar he hit charged him 20 cents. A bottle of ordinary table wine, the kind served in a coalheavers' tavern, cost $2.50, which to the Frenchman is more than 37 francs. For that he can get a choice vintage in any restaurant, or a bottle of champagne from the dealer's.

No Place for Retaliation.

The tale has been as sad in regard to hotel rooms and theaters. The former, the Frenchmen thought, were certainly higher than in Paris, and the latter were out of sight.

The general conclusion has been that, silk stockings excepted, the United States is no place for the Frenchman to go to do currency profiteering, in return or retaliation for what Americans did in France during the inflation years.

The American, the Normandie pilgrims announce, can probably still pass a good summer in France on an ordinary vacation budget. They doubt if the Frenchman could do the same thing in the United States.

To support the campaign of seeing France first, the adventurous who might be inclined to stray to see the skyscrapers of New York or the gangsters of Chicago [whom the French are sure stand on every street corner picking off policemen] are reminded that at home the vacationist will get "more appetizing cooking and can drink his fill at moderate prices of the wines of France."

WHERE IT'S ALWAYS COOL IN THE SUMMER

A narrow lane through the sandstone formations at the Wisconsin Dells. Hidden from the sun, and surrounded by moss and fern, the passageways have an average temperature of 65 degrees throughout the warm months.

Indian Pow-wows at the Dells Draw Tourist Throngs

THE DELLS of the Wisconsin river, with their weird water carvings in sandstone, annually draw thousands of visitors from all over the country. But the Indian ceremonials, held throughout July and August in the glen below Standing rock, also are proving a magnet.

Accommodating a thousand onlookers, the natural amphitheater each summer echoes the rhythm of the drums and witnesses strange dances depicting the history of the Winnebagos and their belief in the great spirit. The rain ceremony, the wild goose dance, the deer dance, and the hoop dance are performed the same as they have been done for centuries. The Winnebago, Pueblo, Sioux, Zuni, Hoopa, and Cochiti tribes are represented. It is the only all-Indian powwow in the middle west.

The ringed canyons of stone at the Dells perhaps will be there forever. The Indians are becoming scarcer, and it may be only a matter of a few years before their ceremonials come to an end.

Minnesota Uses Pictures to Get More Travelers

ST. PAUL, Minn.—[U. P.]—The official conservation department photographer for Minnesota has amassed a library of 3,000 negatives in a campaign to sell the state as a place to spend vacations.

In three years N. N. Nadeau, photographer, has cruised a good share of the state's 11,007 pine studded lakes and trekked through many wilderness areas to assemble the photographs that go into the pamphlets for distribution throughout the nation.

British Queen Is Visitor at Garden Renamed for Her

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON Queen Mary recently visited the big rose garden in the inner circle in Regent's park, her first visit since it was renamed Queen Mary's garden.

There are some 20,000 rose trees there. Although most private gardeners are having a battle royal this summer with rose pests, the plants in Queen Mary's garden seem to be quite free from trouble, and the garden is lovely beyond words.

And that seems true of all the public gardens in London this summer. What is known as the "flower walk" in Kensington gardens is simply a heavenly place. Screened by sheltering trees and shrubs, it is a delightful walk, with roses flourishing in the sunshine, many of the newer varieties attracting attention from the expert visitors, while in the shade are to be seen the blue poppy, foxglove, bellflower, and begonia.

But one of our most popular resorts this summer is the so-called Dutch garden, near Kensington palace. Actually it is a garden of the old cottage favorites, but so skilfully massed that, as one looks across it from the quaint pleached alley which surrounds it, he scarcely recognizes snapdragon, shasta daisy, the tall yellow camomile, the purple verbena, and the low-growing phlox.

Which reminds me that I have read somewhere, or been told, that English gardening since the war has greatly improved in the handling of flowers in the mass, that the public gardens especially are "purer" in color and more effective than in what were, apparently, the somewhat higgledy-piggledy Edwardian days. Perhaps this is why one nearly always sees an artist's easel set up at some vantage point in these public gardens.

But I never cease to be amused at the contrast between poor old fog-bound London in November and the London of June and July.

LACK OF DREAMS ABOUT WAR AUGURS PEACE FOR ENGLAND

LONDON An Englishman was heard to say recently that there positively is not going to be a war, at any rate a war involving Britain, and he based this extremely confident forecast on a very curious thing, the fact that nobody in England has [judging from the absence of letters to the press] dreamed of being gassed or bombed.

This theory, of course, is based on that remarkable book by J. W. Dunne, called "An Experiment with Time," in which the author contends that in our dreams we definitly experience, among other things, future experiences or, at any rate, experiences which are, so to speak, headed our way.

Thus, if Dunne's argument is sound, we should expect a good many people to dream of being bombed if that much dreaded war is headed our way. And, according to that Englishman, some at least of those who dreamed of it would be certain to write in rather alarming vein to the newspapers. And from the fact that nobody appears to have written such letters, he concludes that nobody is experiencing such forecasting dreams and therefore there is not going to be a war involving Britain!

This is written less, perhaps, to reassure you on the subject of the next war than to illustrate what has been noticed repeatedly, the deep impression which this singular book has made upon English people of, at any rate, the professional classes. It seems that "everybody" has read it and been rather staggered by it. Several people have been heard to declare that it is the "most important book" written since the last war.

Take this Hot Weather Tip from car dealers:

"BETTER CHANGE TO ETHYL!"
ETHYL
ANTI KNOCK
COMPOUND
ETHYL GASOLINE
CORPORATION

THE automobile dealer who sold you your car wants you to be entirely satisfied. And this is what dealers are saying today:

"When your car knocks in summer, don't blame the car; blame the gas. Gasoline is more apt to knock in summer, especially in the new, smaller cars with their more efficient high compression engines.

"We could stop knock by retarding the spark—but that would make the engine even hotter and lose a lot of power! Better keep your spark properly advanced and change to Ethyl. That will bring out full power on the hottest days and keep your engine running cooler."

Take this hot weather tip from men who know—change to Ethyl and get all the pleasure from your car this summer!

ALWAYS LOOK! Only gasoline sold from pumps bearing the Ethyl trademark on globe or body contains sufficient Ethyl fluid to bring out the full performance of modern high-compression cars.

FACTS you should know about gasoline:

1. Pumps marked Ethyl contain the coolest fuel for summer use. The Ethyl fluid prevents harmful knock, which is more prevalent in summer. Thus, more of the potential energy of each gallon of gasoline is transformed into engine power and less sent as waste heat to the cooling system, already battling high outside temperatures.

2. Ethyl fluid is needed to develop full performance by modern high compression cars every season of the year. It makes older cars, too, run better as carbon and mileage accumulate. That is why approximately 95% of all premium gasoline sold in the United States and Canada now contains Ethyl fluid.

3. Sufficient Ethyl fluid (containing tetraethyl lead) is used to produce the highest anti-knock rating by the official test methods of the oil and automotive industries. The all-round quality of motor fuel so treated is protected by double inspection at the refinery and at the pump.

To get all the power and pleasure from your car investment, NEXT TIME GET ETHYL!

NEW WONDER BREAD

it's best for your children!

Tests prove that slo-baking makes it easier for little stomachs to digest . . . children get its full goodness quicker

WHEN YOU hear mothers say that the New Wonder Bread is best for your children, believe them! A million families agree that it is richer in energy and higher in food value than ordinary bread. And all this goodness is easier for little stomachs to digest, as proved by actual laboratory tests!

Only one bread—the new Wonder Bread—can bring your children the extra benefits of a loaf that costs 17% extra to bake . . . a loaf in which every ingredient, right down to the salt, sets new high standards for the baking industry. This is why, in the opinion of a million mothers, Wonder Bread is best for children.

Of the 24 kinds of flour available, we choose only the one that makes Wonder Bread best for your children. This is the rich flour from the heart of the wheat-berry, highest in energy and nourishment.

The body-building proteins and minerals of milk are essential to growing children, experts say. And the new Wonder Bread brings your children this extra goodness in far greater quantity than ordinary bread can offer.

Then slo-baking, our own method, makes every good thing in Wonder Bread easier to digest. Your children not only get greater benefit from Wonder Bread, but they get it quicker and easier.

It costs you nothing extra to prove that Wonder Bread is best for your children. In spite of the fact that it costs 17% extra for ingredients, and millions of dollars extra for slo-baking, your grocer sells it at the price of ordinary bread. Serve the new Wonder Bread for 30 days, and see how it benefits your children. Look for the new airtight wrapper with the familiar red, yellow and blue balloons.
